$50,000 SHORTAGE REPORTED IN AUTO FEE OFFICE HERE; AUDIT ORDERED

State Officials Check Records and Question Branch Employes — Secretary of State Bell Participates.

A complete audit of the records and accounts of the St. Louis office of the State Motor Vehicle Registration Department was ordered today by Gov. Phil M. Donnelly following a preliminary investigation of reports that a $50,000 shortage in automobile license fees had been discovered here.

The audit will include transactions for the years 1943-44-45, Secretary of State Wilson Bell said, since indications are that irregularities occurred over that period.

Inquiry into the reported shortage was started yesterday by Bell, State Attorney General J. E. Taylor, Assistant State Attorney General Brady Duncan, Col. Hugh Waggoner, superintendent of the State Highway Patrol, and Capt. J. F. Shaw, commanding officer of Troop C of the Highway Patrol at Kirkwood.

Clerks and other employes in the office at Fourth and St. Charles streets were questioned and records were reviewed for more than 11 hours. The interrogation continued today.

The method by which funds were reportedly stolen was by falsification of the records, the Post-Dispatch was informed. Inquiry disclosed that an employe selling license plates would accept fees for licenses for automobiles of a certain horsepower rating. Later this employe would reduce the horsepower rating on the records, thereby reducing the cost of the licenses. The differences between the cost of the licenses for automobiles of high horsepower and lesser horsepower were pocketed.

License fees as listed on application for licenses are $5 for an automobile of less than 12 horsepower; $8.50 for cars of 12 to 24 horsepower; $11 for 24 to 36 horsepower; $20 for 36 to 48 horsepower; $25 for 48 to 60 horse-

N. B. C. PUTS CURB ON PLUGS IN MIDDLE OF NEWSCASTS

Network's New Policy Conforms to One of the Two Broadcasting Changes Urged by Post-Dispatch.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 15.—The National Broadcasting Co. and its owned and operated stations will eliminate middle commercial announcements from all news broadcasts, effective tomorrow, it was announced today by Niles Trammell, president of the network.

This announcement followed a two-month editorial campaign by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, in which other newspapers and magazines throughout the country have joined, to induce the networks to "quit interrupting news broadcasts with commercial plugs." The Post-Dispatch also urged the networks to "quit permitting these broadcasts to be sponsored by objectionable advertisers."

President Trammell said today that the new policy was adopted by the National Broadcasting Co. and its owned and operated stations "to render a greater public service by more rapid presentation of vital news."

"The company," Trammell said, "has asked all its sponsors to cooperate as they have in the past to make this revision effective immediately, as a part of National Broadcasting Co.'s policy of constantly improving its news presentation.

"All sponsors of news programs have been requested to include their commercial announcements within the first two minutes and the last three minutes of all 15-minute news periods."

Trammell pointed out that the move was in line with a policy already in force under which National Broadcasting Co. sponsors co-operate with the company in eliminating middle commercials, or upon occasion, commercials of any kind from news broadcasts, during events of supreme interest.

"The new policy," he said "which will continue until further notice. will eliminate middle commercials at all times on all news programs originated by the National Broadcasting Co. network as well as local.

"During the last three years, great care has been exercised in both the wording and placing of commercial announcements which occur during news broadcasts, so that there might be no interference with the main portion of news, with proper emphasis always given to the principal news events.

"National Broadcasting Co. sponsors whose advertising support has made a greater and greater volume of worldwide news coverage possible invariably have cooperated in the paramount interest of the listening public. "This further step now being taken to eliminate middle commericials in all news broadcasts during the vital days to come, I am certain, will receive the same whole-hearted co-operation. The National Broadcasting Co. is taking this action because news today is our No. 1 public service obligation and

DOUGHERTY TRIED TO AID GAMBLER IN ROBBERY CASE

Sheriff's Efforts to Help Hyde Park Croupier Failed, Man Now Serving Prison Term.

Efforts of Sheriff John F. Dougherty to aid William J. Roche last year when Roche, a croupier at the Hyde Park gambling establishment was facing a robbery charge in Chicago, have been described to the Post-Dispatch by Roche's bondsman and others who told of visits Dougherty made to Chicago in this connection.

The Sheriff's efforts came to naught, and Roche is now serving a one- to three-year term in the Joliet Penitentiary. The gambling club in which he was employed before the robbery is the establishment in Venice in which, as the Post-Dispatch has told, Sheriff Dougherty has had a 2½ per cent interest. Before taking the Hyde Park job Roche had been a deputy sheriff under Dougherty's predecessor, Thomas H. Quinn, and before that he had been a deputy city assessor.

William Kozek, Chicago professional bondsman who supplied Roche's $10,000 bond, told the Post-Dispatch Dougherty and his former chief deputy, Gregory E.

SENATE ADOPTS COMPROMISE ON HANDLING OF MVA

Approves Bailey's Plan to Let Each of Three Committees Consider Bill for 60 Days.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

WASHINGTON, March 15.—By unanimous consent, the Senate today adopted the compromise proposal of Senator Josiah W. Bailey (Dem.), North Carolina, by which the Missouri Valley Authority bill, introduced by Senator James E. Murray (Dem.), Montana, will be handled consecutively by the Commerce Committee, the Committee on Irrigation and Reclamation and the Agriculture Committee for 60 days each.

The bill, despite Murray's request, had been referred by Vice President Truman to the Commerce Committee, which Murray asserted would be unfriendly to the legislation. For that reason he introduced a resolution Monday to discharge the Commerce Committee from further consideration of the bill and to refer it to the more experienced Agriculture Committee. Bailey, Commerce Committee chairman, countered with his surprise com-

St. Louis Captain Gets Home-Town Facts to Fire at Pittsburgh Buddy

The St. Louis Chamber of Commerce has advised Capt. Robert E. Power to go ahead and tell his tent-mate in the Philippines that Pittsburgh has nothing on St. Louis.

Capt. Power, a St. Louisan with Battery A, 145th Field Artillery, wrote asking for facts and figures comparing the symphony orchestras, smoke situations, botanical gardens and zoos in Pittsburgh and St. Louis. It seems that Capt. Power's tent-mate is from Pittsburgh, and . . .

Thomas C. Grimm, research assistant at the Chamber of Commerce lost no time mailing his reply, pointing out that, while the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra "is the second oldest in the country and is widely known as one of the country's best," he had "not heard much about" the Pittsburgh orchestra. As for smoke elimination, wrote Grimm, Capt. Power's tent-mate had only to know that three delegations from Pittsburgh have visited St. Louis trying to find out how St. Louis did it.

Shaw's Garden, he continued, passing more oral ammunition to the artilleryman, contains the largest collection of plant life in the western hemisphere and consists of 75 acres, to Pittsburgh's two-and-a-half-acre botanical garden. And if zoos come by the acre, added Grimm, consider the 77-acre St. Louis zoo alongside the 28-acre Pittsburgh zoo; think of the 2000 "mammals, birds and reptiles" in St. Louis and the lonely 750 in Pittsburgh. To clinch the argument, Grimm threw in a picture taken at the St. Louis zoo showing a panda sitting in a chair.

DRAFT CHAIRMAN SEEKS IMMEDIATE CALL OF STRIKERS AT 8 FOUNDRIES

Fifth Ward Board Head Orders All Reclassified 1-A, Asks to Send Them to Barracks for Physical Examination.

John J. Griffin, Fifth Ward Draft Board chairman, today requested authorization to send all foundrymen and machinists whose strike has shut down eight critical St. Louis foundries to Jefferson Barracks for an immediate pre-induction physical examination.

In a letter to State Selective Director Col. Claude C. Earp, Griffin said his board did not consider the men to be on strike "as their union leaders have ordered them back to work. We consider them as having left their jobs without permission of their draft boards."

Fifth Ward Draft Board clerks last night began reclassifying all strikers in the area and at least 10 received notices today that they face immediate induction. More notifications, Griffin stated, will be sent out today.

Other draft boards were reported to be contemplating similar action, but have not taken it yet.

WLB Calls Meeting.

E. A. Ruesing, director of the disputes division of the Regional War Labor Board at Kansas City, Mo., has called a meeting of the striking foundrymen for Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at Unity Hall, North Grand and Page boulevards. All members of the regional board, including John I. Rollings, executive secretary of the AFL Central Trades and Labor Union, will address the strikers.

Telegrams sent today by W. Willard Wirtz, regional board chairman, to five officers of the foundrymen's union said by a unanimous vote, labor, industry and public members of the board ordered the strikers back to work.

The message said: "The War Labor Board hereby orders in accordance with a unanimous vote in a special session today all employes of the eight St. Louis foundries to return to work at once and not further impede the flow of badly needed war materials.

"This is labor's unconditional responsibility in this critical war emergency. Processing of the union's appeal presently in Washington has been suspended and will remain so until this board is notified that all workers have returned to their jobs."

Copies of the telegrams were sent to the eight firms and all recipients were requested to notify the board regarding the steps taken toward compliance.

Some Return to Work.

Meanwhile, there were signs of a crack in the strikers' front. A few foundrymen and eight machinists went to work at National Bearing Metals Corporation, 4930 Manchester avenue, this morning.

The majority of some 2400 ma-

GERMAN PEACE FEELER UNOFFICIALLY CONFIRMED; BID REJECTED BY BRITISH

STOCKHOLM, March 15 (AP). An unofficial British statement today confirmed reports that a German approach to Allied representatives was attempted here a few days ago with a view to a possible armistice, but said it was immediately rejected.

"An approach was attempted a few days ago through a third party to a junior member of the legation staff," the unofficial British statement said.

"The third party was at once told that the British legation was not in the least interested in any such approach."

(British and American officials in London said they knew nothing of the reports.)

Other informants said a Swedish business man had been approached by a minor Nazi official in the hope of using him as a medium for talking to the Allies.

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP).—Army ground force casualties on the Western front from D-day last June to March 1 total 425,007, Secretary of War Stimson reported today.

Of that figure, he said, 34,468 represented casualties in month of February. He noted that the February losses were substantially lower than in January when 61,962 casualties were reported. In December the losses amounted to 74,788. The German break-through was in mid-December.

Stimson gave the Western front figures in reporting that Army casualties in all theaters reached 748,457 on the basis of individual names

FATHER KILLS SON DISCHARGED FROM MERCHANT MARINE

Says Youth, Who Overstayed Leave, Placed 'Black Mark on Family Name.'

SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 15 (AP).—Detective G. C. Shritron said today Ferdinand J. Sygler, 43 years old, had admitted killing his 17-year-old son, John, because the boy's discharge from the Merchant Marine had placed "a black mark on the family name."

The detective said the father had signed a statement in which he admitted shooting the boy yesterday with a rifle. Sygler is being held without charge. He was arrested last night.

The police were summoned by Sygler's 19-year-old daughter, Helen, who said the father and son had quarreled since the boy's discharge two months ago for overstaying a leave.

Stars and Stripes Formally Hoisted While Foe Makes Last Stand on Tip of Isle.

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN
The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright, 1945.

FIFTH AMPHIBIOUS CORPS HEADQUARTERS ON IWO, March 14 (Delayed).—High up on Mount Suribachi, where the Stars and Stripes were first raised, on Feb. 23, after capture of the 556-foot volcano by the Twenty-eighth Regiment of the Fifth Marine Division, the flag came down yesterday.

Instead, another flag went up—the official Stars and Stripes, signifying that Iwo was ours after 23 days of the hardest fighting in Marine Corps annals.

There were tears in the eyes of Lt. Gen. Holland Smith, commander of the Marine group of green-uniformed service troops at the brief ceremony, as a bugler blew the colors and Old Glory went up on an abandoned Japanese pillbox.

"Worst Battle," Says Gen. Smith.

"This is the worst battle we've had yet," he said. Obviously, he was thinking of his boys who had fallen on this foreign shore.

(An Associated Press dispatch from Iwo today quoted V. Adm. Richmond Kelly Turner as saying that American Marine deaths on the island were less than one-fifth those of the Japanese. This would indicate that around 4000 Marines had been killed.)

RUSSIANS BOLSTER ODER POSITIONS FOR BERLIN DRIVE

Still No Moscow Confirmation of Crossing in Force — Planes Pound Wollin Island.

By DANIEL DE LUCE

MOSCOW, March 15 (AP). — Sporadic Russian attacks from the mouth of the Oder River to the vicinity of Frankfurt improved Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's First White Russian Army springboard positions today for a new offensive as operational silence prevailed along the Berlin front.

(There were persistent German reports that Zhukov's forces have thrust across the Oder in force between Frankfurt and captured Kuestrin, east of the Reich capital, but they have not been confirmed by Moscow.)

North of Stettin, Russian planes inflicted a savage pounding on Wollin Island, in the channels connecting Stettin Bay and the Baltic. Front dispatches said the pressure was so great that Nazi field commanders appealed to the German Navy for support to keep the Dievenow River, between Stet-

Yanks Turned Joke on Rhine Crowd Assembled to See Bridge Blow Up

By HOWARD COWAN

WITH THE UNITED STATES FIRST ARMY EAST OF THE RHINE, March 15 (AP)—The German officer assigned to blow up the Remagen bridge was drunk when American forces captured it, an American sergeant asserted yesterday in contributing a new chapter on the Rhine crossing.

Staff Sgt. Joseph De Lisio, Bronx, N. Y., who captured the enemy officer, said the German was soused—plenty.

This was what a subsequent investigation disclosed:

The German, a lieutenant, had been told some days in advance that he would have to destroy the 1200-foot steel bridge. He had a flair for the dramatic, and when the United States Ninth Armored Division drew near he spread the word throughout Erpel, the town at the east end of the bridge, that "the bridge goes at 4 o'clock this afternoon."

PLANES HAMMER SIEGFRIED LINE IN SAAR AS PATCH'S TROOPS ADVANCE

Enemy Reports 10 U. S. Divisions Are in Remagen Wedge, Tells of 9th Army Crossing Attempt at Duisburg.

By JAMES M. LONG

PARIS, March 15 (AP).—American forces east of the Rhine captured four towns and extended their bridgehead to an area 11 miles by six today, and the Germans said the new United States Fifteenth Army had joined the assault from the Remagen foothold.

The German radio reported that 10 American divisions, 100,000 or more men, now were across the Rhine and had cut the Frankfurt-Ruhr autobahn.

The enemy reported also that the Germans had "smashed an American Ninth Army attempt to cross the Lower Rhine north of Duisburg, wiping out part of the force in fierce hand-to-hand fighting and driving the remainder back across the river." The report, sent from "Field Marshal von Rundstedt's headquarters," said the unit which crossed "was to be the spearhead for stronger forces to follow."

Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's United States Seventh Army launched an attack today at many points along a 50-mile front in the Saar basin and North Alsace, gaining up to three miles in the first few hours against light to moderate resistance. Preceding the attack four waves of medium bombers blasted Siegfried line defenses.

The American Third Army crossed the Lower Moselle River on a nine-mile front within eight miles of Coblenz and drove toward the Rhine west bank south of the city. Third Army troops advanced up to six miles.

Battle at Remagen.

Last Allied front dispatches from Remagen, filed at 9:30 a. m. battle-front time, said the American First Army was within a half mile of the six-lane military highway in the thickly wooded hills northeast of Honnef, northern anchor of the bridgehead. The Americans were sweeping the road with machine-gun fire at the time, and in effect, had cut the route.

U. S. TROOPS SEIZE TWO SMALL ISLES IN PHILIPPINES, GAIN ON MINDANAO

Romblon and Simara in Center of Archipelago Taken — Yanks Push 5 Miles East of Zamboanga.

MANILA, March 15 (AP).—United States forces landing under cover of night Tuesday seized control of Romblon and Simara, two small islands strategically situated in the heart of the Philippines, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

The landings brought to 23 the number of Philippine islands invaded by the Americans.

On Mindanao, at the southern end of the archipelago, Yank invasion troops pushed five miles east of captured Zamboanga.

The Romblon and Simara invasions were carried out by troops of Maj. Gen. Frederick A. Irving's Twenty-fourth Division. MacArthur's communique said "complete tactical surprise" was attained on each and American losses were minor. The enemy garrisons were wiped out.

Grip on Sea Lane Tightened.

Romblon Island, 10 miles long and five wide, lies between Tablas and Sibuyan islands, both of which are in Japanese hands. Simara Island, about 20 miles northwest of Romblon, is five miles long and three wide. Their capture strengthened the American hold on the main shipping route from the United States to Manila.

In the Mindanao gains the Forty-first Infantry Division captured the towns of Masilay and Harlow, north of the two captured Zamboanga airdromes, while patrols pushed five miles east of Zamboanga to seize Tumaga, Recodo and Mercedes.

United States aircraft and naval guns supported the ground operations, silencing eight artillery batteries.

MacArthur made no mention of the intensity of resistance, which last was reported increasing.

New Gains on Luzon.

On Luzon Island, Maj. Gen. Verne D. Mudge's First Cavalry Division and the Forty-third Infantry Division, under Maj. Gen. Leonard F. Wing, advanced eastward from captured Antipolo on the strongly defended watershed east of Manila. The Sixth Division turned back several counterattacks on high ground to the north, inflicting heavy casualties.

This was the first mention of the Forty-third Division fighting on the Shimbu line, one of the strongest Japanese defense areas of the island.

To the south of Manila, Brig. Gen. Hanford MacNider's 158th Regimental Combat Team advanced east and north of captured Batangas and began clearing the Calumpan peninsula between Batangas Bay and Balayan Bay.

Heavy bombers pounded Southwestern Formosa with 100 tons of bombs, concentrating on oil storage areas, barracks, rail yards and a hydroelectric plant inland. Borneo was hit with 60 tons.

Patrol bombers ranging the China Sea sank or damaged a 2000-ton freighter and four smaller cargo ships.

PRISONERS SAY NAZIS BLEW UP OWN PEOPLE ON BRIDGE

By EDWARD D. BALL

ANDERNACH, Germany, March 15 (AP).—At Fourth Armored headquarters there was a report the Germans on the east side of the Rhine had opened fire on German troops and civilians trying to get across the Crown Prince Wilhelm bridge near here, and then blew it up last Thursday as it was filled with this eastbound traffic.

This report, which came from prisoners, was not confirmed, and no announcement of such an incident reached Third Army Headquarters. Nor was there any sign of such slaughter around the blasted bridge today.

The bridge was hit by American bombs recently and its main span collapsed, but the Germans had built a cleverly camouflaged foot and light vehicle bridge beneath the spans still standing, and over the wrecked section which was sticking out of the water. It was this makeshift arrangement which the Germans destroyed Thursday.

Yanks Take 4 Towns East of Rhine

The Germans reported fierce fighting in the village of Houvel, three and one-half miles northeast of Honnef, in the area where they said the autobahn was severed—embarrassing Nazi communications for both the east Rhineland and the imperiled and outflanked Saar basin.

Assault forces in the bridgehead reached Agidienberg, three miles northeast of Honnef and 1000 yards from the autobahn, Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead reported.

In addition to the four towns captured in the bridgehead, fighting was going on in five others.

The towns captured were Rhondorf, a mile north of Honnef at the northern end of the bridgehead, Lorschied, four miles northeast of Linz, Hesseln, four miles northeast of Hoenningen, and Hahnen, just north of Hoenningen at the southern end of the bridgehead.

Besides Agidienberg, the Americans were fighting in Hoenningen, Notschied, Kalenborn and Steinshardt; northeast of Linz and five miles in from the Rhine.

The only mention of the Fifteenth Army came from the enemy, but front line dispatches said a news blackout was being enforced on new divisions reaching the Rhine.

The Germans were building up their strength due east of Remagen and made the wholly unconfirmed assertion that their bombers had destroyed the Ludendorff bridge and the nearby pontoon bridge.

The enemy, however, obviously was hesitating about throwing in his full strength against the Remagen bridgehead for fear that an even more dangerous Allied crossing of the Rhine might be made elsewhere.

And yet the Remagen crossing, now six miles deep and more than 11 wide, already was threatening to burst into the open southern approaches to the Ruhr. If the superhighway is not already cut, it can hardly survive the concentrated and growing power of the First Army for more than a few hours. Its severance will disrupt German supplies and reinforcements not only for the East Rhineland but for the Saar district as well.

Beyond Honnef, the First Army was less than 20 miles from the southern edge of the Ruhr and within five miles of rather open country where tanks could rampage.

The Rhine was crossed a week ago today, but the enemy has not yet been able to mount a major counterattack.

Loss of War Factories.

The Third and Seventh Armies already had outflanked the Saar from the north and south and were threatening to pinch off the whole district. Before American troops invaded the Saar, it produced 6 per cent of Germany's coal and 10 per cent of its iron and steel. The Ruhr, however, produced three fourths of all German war materiel in 1942. The Ruhr is almost a continuous factory settlement of 5,000,000 people; the Saar had 800,000 when war started.

With the Ruhr already smoking as much from bombing and shelling as from production, the heightening question was how much longer its factories and forges could continue to feed steel for German war needs.

The western edge of the Ruhr, the Rhineland and the cities of Cologne, Krefeld and Muenchen Gladbach already were in Allied hands. Artillery bombarded the heart of the Ruhr basin for 15 miles east of the Rhine, battering such production centers as the Krupp works at Essen, the inland port of Duisburg, Duesseldorf, Muelheim and Oberhausen. Aerial bombs supplemented the shells.

Third Army Gains.

The Third Army's Moselle crossings were made on treadway bridges near the northeast corner of the Saar region. At least 10 towns were taken across the Moselle including Macken, Morshausen, Oppenhausen, Herschroisen, Udunhausen, Bauhof, Alken, Burgen, Nordershausen and Brodenbach. All are eight to 14 miles southwest of Coblenz.

The German radio said five Moselle crossings were made and that the attack was driving strongly toward Boppard. Patton was said to be using up to four armored and four infantry divisions.

Resistance was light, principally from small arms fire. But the Germans asserted that the Third Army suffered heavy casualties and was being subjected to strong counterattacks today.

Patton's Third Army captured 3795 Germans yesterday and buried 201. The troops captured an enemy hospital at Bad Bertrick, 19 miles southwest of Mayen, finding 170 Germans and five wounded American prisoners.

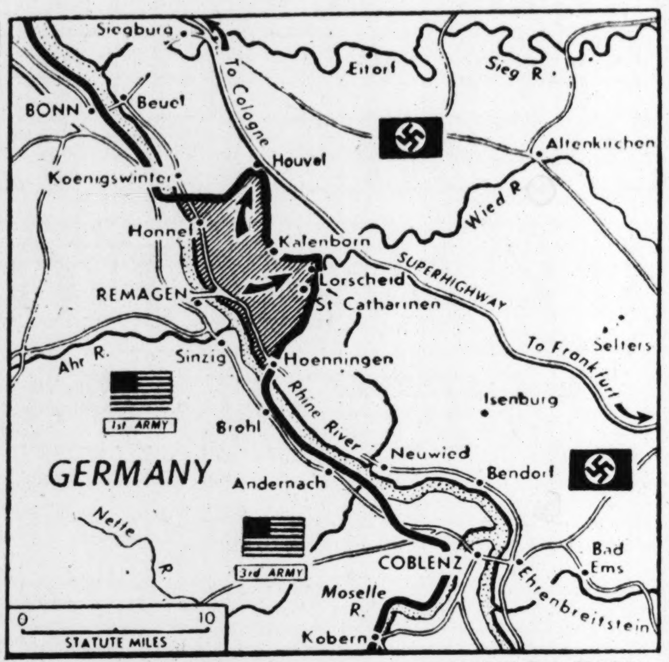
In the Trier-Saarburg area, Third Army infantrymen gained up to three miles along a six-mile front. They entered Weiskirchen, 12 miles southeast of Saarburg and 24 northwest of Saarbruecken, and repulsed two counterattacks.

7th Army Advances.

Yesterday the Seventh Army pushed into the Saarland at a new point and reached the suburbs of Voelklingen, site of the largest steel mill in the basin.

The Seventh Army advanced up to four miles yesterday on a seven-mile front west of Saarbruecken, crossing the frontier and reaching the Saar River at several points. Six towns were captured.

It was disclosed that yesterday's advance was intended only to be a line-straightening operation, but that when German opposition proved to be unexpectedly light the Americans kept moving.



—Associated Press Wirephoto.

United States troops advanced northeast of Honnef today almost to the Ruhr-Frankfurt-on-Main superhighway. German reports said the Yanks had entered Houvel and crossed the highway. Further expanding the Rhine bridgehead the Americans occupied Lorscheid, almost due east of Remagen.

tance, the bridge holds a large place in the lives of residents of this beautiful Rhine valley. Oil paintings of the bridge hang in many homes up and down the river. When word spread that the bridge was to be destroyed crowds gathered.

Germans in "Grandstand Seats."

Dynamite was planted at strategic spots on the structure and the last folks in Remagen who wanted to leave were given a chance to cross to the east bank.

The speed of the American tanks was more than the Germans had expected, however, and scores of enemy vehicles had to be left in the thick woods on the hill above Remagen.

Nevertheless, German soldiers and civilians from miles around were sitting in "grandstand seats" at every suitable vantage point on the east bank, waiting for the spectacular sight of American troops pulling up at the Rhine and getting the bridge blown up right in their faces.

A few minutes before 4 o'clock the German officer signaled the plunger down. Two small puffs of dust and smoke accompanied by explosions echoed through the hills, but the bridge almost unbelievably remained on its piers.

(A dispatch from Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead yesterday said engineers of the First Army attributed the failure to a faulty fuse. It may have been that because of the German lieutenant's celebration, the fuse was not properly inspected.)

Crowd in Pandemonium.

Everyone on the east bank froze in paralyzed consternation. Then pandemonium broke loose. Few of the German soldiers present were even armed, so sure were they that the Americans would not be able to cross the river.

Antiaircraft gunners on a high cliff at the east end of the bridge raced to their guns and tried to level them on the bridge. At the same time American troops raced across. Within a few minutes more than 300 Germans had surrendered, including the officer assigned to blow the bridge.

The village of Linz, south of Erpel, surrendered to an American chaplain. The next day doughboys, mopping up there, found two German officers riding in an American jeep which they had captured in the Ardennes offensive.

As they walked away to prisoner of war cages they muttered, "It's preposterous! It's impossible!"

U. S. CASUALTIES IN WEST 425,007; 70,414 ARE DEAD

compiled in Washington through March 7.

Added to Navy losses of 91,132, this placed aggregate casualties since Pearl Harbor at 839,589, an increase of 15,957 over last week's report. The increase in dead was 3873.

Stimson said that in February on the Western front 4145 were killed, 26,436 wounded and 3887 reported missing.

From D-day to March 1, the breakdown for the Western front showed 70,414 killed, 297,547 wounded and 57,046 missing.

The classification of Army casualties in all theaters since Pearl Harbor and corresponding figures for the previous week follow:

Killed, 145,733 and 142,285; wounded, 450,766 and 438,734; missing, 89,656 and 91,237, and prisoners, 62,302 and 60,666. Of the wounded, 228,502, or more than half, have returned to duty.

Similar figures for the Navy: Killed, 34,938 and 34,513; wounded, 41,443 and 41,209; missing, 10,483 and 10,671, and prisoners, 4268 and 4317.

Stimson said that on Luzon and Leyte, 150,278 Japanese killed and been counted and 1516 captured in addition to thousands killed or drowned on transports. Our casualties there are 31,221, including 6889 killed, 23,978 wounded and 354 missing.

Stimson in his weekly war review termed the Remagen bridgehead as a foundation for "attack on inner Genmany." He said the bridgehead "may be the scene of still heavier fighting, but we have had time to consolidate our position."

The war on the western front has "'reached a very critical stage," Stimson asserted.

As an example of the progress of fighting along the Rhine, he said he had received a report on the capture by a single American army corps of the following materiel: 68 tanks, 166 88-millimeter guns, 23 self-propelled guns, 43 75s and 105s, 41 antitank guns, 51 80-millimeter mortars and a large number of smaller weapons.

Reporting that about 140,000 prisoners have been taken by the Allies since Feb. 23, Stimson said:

"The desperate situation of the Germans is indicated by German army orders to shoot all stragglers. Last December we captured orders which directed the shooting of attempted deserters and the notification to all troops that the families of deserters would be subject to the death penalty.

"I cite these as examples of the iron grip the Nazi leaders are attempting to maintain over the German army and people."

promise, but neither proposal was voted on Monday because of Senate rules. Murray's resolution went to the calendar.

When the calendar for unobjected bills came up today, Bailey asked for consideration of his resolution as a substitute for the Murray proposal. Murray accepted the compromise, but Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley took the floor, saying that he did not like thep rocedure and that there should be a definite rule for referring bills to a single committee. He did not object, however, and the Bailey resolution was unanimously adopted.

Some MVA Bill in 6 Months.

The Bailey compromise guarantees that MVA legislation—of some sort—will be reported to the Senate in six months. It stipulates each of the three committees shall report within each 60-day period, the time of calculation starting from the date of passage—today.

The Commerce Committee will consider the navigation and flood control features, and the Irrigation and Reclamation and Agriculture Committee will consider the features pertinent to their jurisdiction.

Murray Accepts Compromise.

In accepting the Bailey compromise, Murray pointed out that last session he had asked that his original MVA bill be considered by the Irrigation and Reclamation Committee as well as the Agriculture Committee.

"I have no objection," he told the Senate, "to the (amended) bill being referred to the Committee on Commerce, which has jurisdiction over navigation and flood control, for the period of 60 days, for the purpose of studying it."

Although noting that he would not object to the compromise, Barkley said that it was "questionable practice" to have bills sent to two or three committees.

Against Setting Precedent.

"I simply wish to observe," he said, "that the adoption of this resolution should not be taken as a precedent or as an indication of a trend toward a practice of having bills going to two or three committees before they can be considered by the Senate itself."

Barkley continued that a joint committee of the two houses was working on the problem of streamlining Congress and he hoped that this joint committee would offer suggestions giving some sort of rule which would enable the chair and the parliamentary adviser to determine to what committee a bill dealing with more than one subject should go.

Vice President Truman, who was in the chair, agreed with Barkley.

"The chair," he said, "has been accused several times of being arbitrary in connection with the determination of where bills should be referred. The chair wishes to have bills referred to committees to which they should be referred and hopes that a rule such as suggested by the Senator from Kentucky will be adopted."

960-FOOT RHINE PONTOON BRIDGE LAID IN 31 HOURS

Span, Perhaps War's Longest, Required Special Engineering Measures Against Current.

By HAL BOYLE.

WITH THE U. S. FIRST ARMY ON THE RHINE, March 15 (AP).—American Army engineers, working with the speed of circus roustabouts, took just 31 hours to throw across the Rhine near Remagen a pontoon bridge which they believe is the longest built in this war.

The 960-foot bridge required special engineering measures because of the speed of the river current.

"Now we've got everything up to light vehicles rolling across it," said Lt. James A. Murphy Jr., New Britain, Conn.

The bridge was erected by the Fifty-first Combat Engineer Battalion under Lt. Col. Harvey R. Fraser, Elizabeth, Ill.

"It was the sixth bridge we had built in two weeks—and the toughest," said Lt. Murphy.

It was found that the current on the east side of the Rhine ran faster than had been estimated, and available anchors would not hold the pontoon bridge in place.

"Nearby were some assault boats. By pushing against the current, these boats kept our pontoons from floating downstream and held the bridge in line until we could improvise another method to anchor the pontoons securely," said Murphy.

German planes attacked the bridge site almost continually from the time work began. The engineers labored to the accompaniment of antiaircraft batteries and bombs and kept the construction going right through the raids.

"Our casualties have been light," said Murphy. "Fewer Americans have been killed than enemy planes brought down. All attempts to knock out the bridge have failed and traffic is flowing over it smoothly."

Allied planes destroyed 25 German aircraft attacking the Remagen bridgehead Tuesday, and American ground guns the same day shot down 23 of 87 Nazi planes trying to blast the Ludendorff bridge and the pontoon bridge.

Army Apparently Had No Plans Ready to Cash In on Luck at Rhine

Orders Issued by Gen. Hoge Indicate Yanks Were Drawn Into Unanticipated Operation at Remagen.

By B. J. McQUAID

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright, 1945.

ON THE RHINE FRONT, March 15.—Capture of the heights of Hargarten and lessened intensity of enemy artillery fire have greatly relieved the Remagen bridge situation for units of Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First Army. But the Germans superior tactical position, in view of their hold on the six-lane autobahn and well shielded road network leading down from it to our bridgehead perimeter, remains a menace.

Not until we eliminate that menace by grabbing the superhighway will it be possible to repeat our Roer River crossing tactics when the troops who made the assault crossings quickly cleared the banks on their flanks, permitting other units to cross unopposed.

Our seizure of the Ludendorff railroad bridge more and more appears to have been so wholly unanticipated that no plans or preparations exist for quick exploitation of such a windfall.

It appears, from transcripts of messages flashed on the day of the occurrence between Brig. Gen. William S. Hoge of Lexington, Mo., commander of the Ninth Armored Division's Combat Command B, which had been driving toward the River, and Lt. Col. Leonard Engeman, whose battalion was the first actually to cross the bridge, that this was a repetition of an old familiar military pattern.

Many old soldiers like to drum into recruits the story of the eager young captain, who by committing his company, committed the whole battalion, whereupon the regiment had to support the battalion and the division had to support the regiment, until, finally, the whole army found itself in a situation it had never contemplated.

Here are the transcripts as they were given to the writer:

Engeman to Hoge: "Bridge intact. Am putting doughs across. What are your plans? Advise soonest possible."

Hoge to Engeman: "Get demolition off bridge and secure high ground. I will protect your rear and support you with additional troops. Dig in well in high ground and establish blocks, well mined on the east side of the river."

The men of the Combat Command, and the forces who quickly followed them across, succeeded admirably in extending the holdings in the north and, particularly, the south, along the east bank and in capturing the stiffly defended heights leading up immediately east of the shore. For reasons not yet fully clear, however, the progress of the exploitation, slowed down to a crawl after the second day.

Until Tuesday the dominating height of Hargarten, some four miles southeast of the railroad bridge, remained in enemy hands, and as a result, the most vital area of the bridgehead, the crossing itself, remained under directly-observed artillery fire.

N. B. C. PUTS CURB ON MIDDLE PLUGS IN NEWSCASTING

commands the eager interest of all ages and all classes."

The Post-Dispatch began its campaign Jan. 18 with a leading editorial, "A Suggestion to Radio." Later editorials applied the term "Plug-uglies" to the objectionable matter. Cartoons by D. R. Fitzpatrick illustrated the theme, one of these picturing "Radio Plug-ugly" as a hog talking into a microphone. The editorial on this subject, in Tuesday's Post-Dispatch, "Five Radio Dialogues," gave instances of the interruption of important war news announcements with plugs for shaving creams, cigars, laxatives, vitamin pills and dog food.

The Post-Dispatch's campaign was made a news subject by the national weeklies Time and Newsweek, and was indorsed editorially by the New York Times and World-Telegram, the Christian Science Monitor and other dailies, and by the weekly New Republic, Broadcasting, and Editor and Publisher. Paul Porter, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, gave his indorsement to the suggestions.

KSD, the Post-Dispatch radio station, and WJR in Detroit eliminated middle commercials from news broadcasts last June. Since the campaign against "plug-uglies" began, stations which have taken the same action as to locally originating newscasts are WTMJ, Milwaukee; WIBC, Indianapolis; KFRE, Fresno, Cal.; and WCMI, Ashland, Ky. Readers from the Atlantic to the Pacific have written to the Post-Dispatch indorsing the movement.

MANILA HARBOR WRECKAGE WORST OF WAR, BUT WORK TO CLEAR IT HAS BEGUN

MANILA, March 15 (AP).

ONE of the Navy's foremost salvage experts says the tonnage of sunken ships in Manila's wrecked and clogged harbor is far greater than in any other port in the war and the clearing will present a stupendous problem. Commodore William A. Sullivan, who came from salvage operations in European ports to direct the opening of war ravaged Manila's harbor to shipping, estimated that more than 300 ships were sunk here.

Sullivan, the officer who started the liner Normandie salvage job, estimated that the sunken tonnage of Manila's harbor is three times that of Cherbourg's and the task of clearing it might be three times as hard.

He said he could not hazard a guess on the time required, but he expects within a few days to raise one of the six ships the Japanese sank to blockade the main harbor channel through the breakwater. Its removal will allow the first ships to thread their way into the harbor.

STIMSON KNOWS OF NO PLAN TO ABANDON ALASKAN HIGHWAY

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP).—Secretary of War Stimson said today he knew of no plans to abandon the Alaskan highway in Canada. He was asked at a press conference about the statement of Senator Magnuson (Dem.), Washington, in the Senate yesterday that he understood the highway, built to form a military link between the United States and Alaska, would be abandoned.

"I know of no such plan," Stimson replied.

EDMONTON, Alta., March 15 (AP).—Brig. Gen. F. S. Strong, commander of the Northwest Service Command of the United States Army, said today the Canol development at Whitehorse, Y. T., would stop April 1.

In Edmonton for a conference with Maj. Gen. W. W. Foster, special Canadian Commissioner for Northwest Defense Projects, Strong said that by June 30 "we will have only a handful of men to look after the oil refinery."

CHURCHILL ADMITS YALTA WON'T STOP ANY AGGRESSION BY ONE OF BIG 5

Defends Voting Arrangement, but Concedes It Differentiates Between Treatment of Large and Small Powers.

LONDON, March 15 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today there was axiomatic truth in a member's statement that under the Yalta agreement on world security "there is nothing at all' to deal with aggression by the great powers.

Rhys Davies, a Laborite, drew the Prime Minister out with the observation that the new international organization agreed on at Yalta envisaged action to prevent aggression by the smaller powers.

"It is not clear that similar action could be invoked to prevent aggression by the great powers," Davies added. "Are we not entitled to ask that our delegates at San Francisco will bear this important point in mind when discussing the problem?"

"No, sir," was Churchill's direct answer. "As far as we are concerned we made a perfectly voluntary agreement with other great powers that were gathered at Yalta and that does prescribe for a differentiation between the treatment of the great powers in these matters and of the smallest powers.

"We may deplore, if we choose, that there is a difference between the great and small, between the strong and the weak in the world. There is undoubtedly such a difference and it would be foolish to upset the good arrangements proceeding on a broad front for the sake of trying to attain immediately to what is a hopeless ideal."

Prediction on Victory.

Earlier today Churchill addressed a Conservative party conference, the first full meeting he has addressed since assuming party leadership four and a half years ago.

"Victory lies before us, certain and perhaps near," he said, asserting that the war in Europe might end "before summer ends or even sooner."

He pledged his party to promotion of free enterprise and served notice he intended to guide Britain in the trials of peace.

The 2000 delegates gave their leader a tumultuous ovation as he concluded his 45-minute address.

He cautioned the party against "humbug and blandishment" and against bidding for votes and party popularity "by promising what we cannot perform."

Attacks Socialism.

His temper obviously taut after recent sharp exchanges with left-wing critics in the House of Commons, he struck out at "our socialist friends" and their program "for nationalizing all the means of production, distribution and exchange."

He asserted that would imply "not only the destruction of the life of the whole of our existing system of society and life and labor, but the creation and enforcement of another system or systems borrowed from foreign lands and alien minds."

"No restrictions upon well-established British liberties that is not proved indispensable to the prosecution of the war and the transition from war to peace can be tolerated," he said.

"Control for control's sake is senseless. Controls under the pretext of war or its aftermath which are in fact designed to favor the accomplishment of totalitarian systems, however innocently designed, whatever guise they take, whatever liveries they wear, whatever slogans they mouth are a fraud which should be mercilessly exposed to the British public.

"At the end of our mainmast we fly the flag of free enterprise. We are determined that the native genius and spirit of adventure, of risk-taking in peace as in war, shall bear our fortunes forward, finding profitable work and trade for our people, and that good and thrifty housekeeping, both national and private, shall sustain our economy."

With more than 1,000,000 British homes damaged or destroyed, Churchill said: "Never was there a time when so much was planned and projected and so much remained to be turned from paper into action. Nothing is more clear than that when the war is over the world will face an acute shortage of food for several years. It would be madness indeed to cast away the increased food production which has been achieved in the war."

To Stay in Office.

He indicated clearly that he has no intention of stepping down from the driver's seat once Germany is defeated.

"Should it fall to me," said Churchill, "as it may do, to form a government before the general election, I shall seek out not only Conservatives but men of any party or no party who are willing to serve and thus invest our administration with a national character.

This, obviously, was meant to include victory over Japan as well as Germany.

For Churchill, only a few minutes later, declared Britain was obligated to repay injuries inflicted by the Japanese "and the infernal cruelties they have perpetrated upon His Majesty's subjects, British, Australian, Indian, Burmese and Malayan alike."

"This requires an intense effort and no mood of war weariness must prevent us from doing our duty to the last inch and to the last minute," he declared.

Cautioning of difficulties ahead, Churchill declared: "Let there be no mistake about it. It is no easy cheap-jack Utopia of airy phrases that lies before us.

"This is no time for windy platitudes. The Conservative party had far better go down telling the truth and acting in accordance with the verities of our position than gain a span of shabbily bought office by easy and fickle froth and chatter.

"Woe betide those public men who seek to slide into power down the slippery slope of vain and profligate undertakings. This is no time for humbug and blandishment, but for grim and stark facts and figures, and action to meet immediate needs.

"It would be very easy for us all to promise or even to give each other presents, bonuses and gratuities in the most enthusiastic manner but if we woke up in the morning and found that the pound sterling ($4) bought only five shillings' ($1) worth of goods or services we should have committed the crime of cheating the soldiers and workers of the country."

Betty Hensel 'Postpones' Wedding; Cary Grant or a Cold the Cause?

St. Louis Girl in Los Angeles Hospital After Marriage to Army Medical Officer Is Put Off.

BETTY HENSEL

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 15.—Betty Hensel, former Powers model, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil R. Hensel of St. Louis and Beverly Hills, is in a Los Angeles hospital following the "postponement" of her marriage to an Army medical officer, which was scheduled for yesterday afternoon. Hollywood rumors connect Cary Grant, film star, formerly Archie Leach of the St. Louis Municipal Opera, with the sudden change in Miss Hensel's plans.

These reports have crossed the continent, and Walter Winchell yesterday led his "Man About Town" notes, written in New York, with the sentence: "Cary Grant's new interest is Betty Hensel."

Announcement was made yesterday that, because of the young woman's sudden illness, the wedding of Miss Mary Elizabeth Hensel and First Lt. Henry William Dodge, Army Medical Corps, was postponed. Invitations to the wedding went out March 3, and the ceremony was set for All Saints' Church, at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon ,to be followed by a reception at the Beverly Hills Hotel.

Mother's Explanation.

Mrs. Hensel, Betty's mother, said to the Post-Dispatch correspondent today that the postponement was due to a nervous breaktdown, which was the result of a "bad cold." When asked whether the wedding would take place after Miss Hensel's recovery, she said no definite plans had been made, because of the possibility that Lt. Dodge might be sent out of the country on active war duty.

Asked about her daughter's acquaintance with Cary Grant, Mrs. Hensel expressed surprise at the current rumors, and said: "Betty and Cary are just very good friends."

Grant could not be reached. Miss Hensel has been seen with him in Hollywood night spots. Grant's separation from his second wife, the former Barbara Hutton, Woolworth heiress, is expected to be followed by divorce proceedings shortly. Virginia Cherrill of the movies divorced him in 1935.

Lt. Dodge Said to Have Left.

Lt. Dodge, accompanied by his parents, is reported to have gone to San Francisco. The family lives at 1 Sutton place, New York. He is a graduate of Yale University and Columbia University Medical School, and recently completed his interneship in Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. Hensel and their daughters, Misses Mary Elizabeth and Emile Jane, came from St. Louis more than a year ago, and have lived at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel. They have planned to return to St. Louis in June. They lived at the Park Plaza Hotel and at their summer place on Baxter road, St. Louis County. Hensel is president of the E. R. Hensel-Iron and Steel Co., with headquarters in the Cotton Belt building, St. Louis.

Miss Hensel, a graduate of Mary Institute, St. Louis, attended Briarcliff Junior College, Briarcliff Manor, N. Y. She made her debut at a tea dance at the St. Louis Woman's Club in the 1939 Christmas season, after having been a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet's ball of that year. She met Dodge in New York several years ago.

Grant, 41 years old, whose real name is Archibald Leach, was born in Bristol, England, and in his teens took up acrobatics, eccentric dancing and stilt walking. Failing to sell his stage talents in New York after his arrival there, he walked on stilts at Coney Island, carrying a sandwich sign advertising a restaurant.

Arthur Hammerstein gave him his first chance on Broadway, and he sang and danced in several musical comedies before coming to St. Louis in the summer of 1931, to take juvenile roles in Municipal Opera. His change of name came after his removal to Hollywood, the following year. Since then he has become a top-notch box office attraction.

80,000 U. S. INCOME TAX RETURNS FLOOD MAIL ON LAST DAY

Line at Federal Building Smaller—Final Day on State Forms Also.

A deluge of mail swamped the Federal income tax collector's office today, the morning mail bringing 80,000 returns in the last-minute rush to avoid penalties for late filing. The deadline is midnight tonight, and returns postmarked before midnight will be accepted as on time.

The crowd in line at the basement office in the Federal Building, Twelfth and Market streets, was much smaller than usual, and a number of deputies were shifted from the work of assisting taxpayers to that of tackling the piles of mail.

Internal Revenue Collector James P. Finnegan estimated his office had received more than 500,000 of the approximately 725,000 returns expected from the Eastern District of Missouri. The downtown office and a branch at 24 North Meramec street, Clayton, were to remain open until 9 o'clock tonight.

Tonight also is the deadline for filing State income tax returns. To assist last-minute taxpayers in filing these returns, the Tax Assessor's office in the City Hall was to stay open until 9:30 o'clock, and the Assessor's office in the Clayton Courthouse planned to remain open until 9 o'clock.

Chadeayne to Be Dinner Speaker.

Henry F. Chadeayne, president of the St. Louis Artists' Guild, will address a dinner meeting of the Societe Francaise de St. Louis at the Forest Park Hotel next Friday evening at 7:30, it was announced today by Robert C. Roach, president. Mr. Chadeayne will discuss the importance of French culture in St. Louis.

WPB LIFTS CONTROL ON PENICILLIN FOR USE OF CIVILIANS

Manufacturers Allowed to Distribute Drug Through Normal Channels.

CHICAGO, March 15 (AP).—The War Production Board Office of Civilian Penicillin Distribution today relinquished control over distribution of penicillin for civilian use, permitting manufacturers to distribute the drug through normal trade channels.

Dr. John N. McDonnell, director of the OCPD, said the WPB had made available 1,280,000 vials of the drug for the period from March 15 to March 31, and an additional 1,500,000 vials will be available for civilian use through April. Each vial contains 100,000 units. Previously 400,000 vials a month have been available for civilian use, Dr. McDonnell said.

While the 24 firms manufacturing the drug will have more freedom in distributing penicillin, Dr. McDonnell warned its use would be restricted solely to those types of cases in which the drug has been tested by Dr. Chester Keefer of Boston, chairman of the committee on chemo-therapeutics.

"Penicillin will not be available for use in pills, ointments and tablets," Dr. McDonnell declared, "until production increased and greater availability permit freer use."

CHARGE QUASHED, FINE VOIDED IN TRIANGLE FUEL CO. CASE

A motion by the Triangle Fuel Co., 4567 DeTonty street, to quash a charge of violating a city ordinance, was sustained yesterday by Judge David W. FitzGibbon in the Court of Criminal Correction. The company had appealed a Police Court fine of $100 assessed against it Feb. 16, 1944. The fine was set aside.

Police Judge Joseph B. Catanzaro had found the company guilty of delivering to a consumer coal other than that contracted for. Victor Packman, counsel for the company, pointed out that the city ordinance governing the case was not violated because the kind of coal ordered by the consumer had been delivered, although its size was not the size ordered. Judge FitzGibbon, who took the case under advisement after a hearing, March 2, agreed that the ordinance said nothing about size of coal, but referred only to "kind.'

Louis L. Horen, president of the company, who was acquitted in Police Court of a charge similar to that against the company, said, "Now that the company has been cleared by the courts, we hope the decision will give pause to those groups which have attempted to put out of business a company that has had only one complaint filed against it in 10 years."

MORE MEAT IF CEILING IS RAISED, SAY STOCKMEN

Subsidies Failed, They Tell Senators—Packers Assail OPA Rules as Ruinous.

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP).—More meat will be available if the OPA will "adjust beef ceiling prices to compensate for increases in the cost of producing beef," the American National Livestock Association contended today.

"The attempt to take care of this little matter by way of subsidies has failed," A. D. Brownfield, Deming, N. M., president of the association, said in a statement filed with the Senate Banking Committee. Most fed cattle go to the market now on a "roughing-through or short-feed basis," he said, adding:

"The feeders cannot afford to put a lot of good feed into good cattle. The pity of it is we have such a nice corn crop. The corn crop in 1944 was the largest in history; calf slaughter in 1944 was up about 2,561,000 head. If feeders had had confidence and sufficient margin there would have been a tremendous increase in poundage."

Packers Testify.

The livestock association representatives were invited to testify after the committee was told that OPA regulations are wrecking the packing industry. The committee is considering legislation to extend the price control act, now due to expire June 30.

Chief demand from packer spokesmen was for an amendment directing that a "fair and equitable margin" be allowed on all livestock products. As it is, they told the committee yesterday, packers are losing money on some meat items and are not able to make it up on others.

Howard C. Greer, general manager of Kingan & Co., Indianapolis, testified that his company suffered out-of-pocket losses of about one million dollars on its operations in the last eight months.

"Many of the items demanded in large quantities by war procurement agencies carry prices which are demonstrably lower than cost," he said.

Lend-Lease at a Loss.

For instance, Greer testified, his company is required to furnish more than 200,000 pounds of frozen pork sides weekly for lend-lease to England at a loss of $1 a hundredweight.

The present situation, he said, has set up a chain of cause and effect which finds more and more livestock going into the hands of processors not subject to Government set-aside orders for war purposes.

That the war agencies find it necessary to increase the percentage of output packers such as his company must set aside for them, with consequent reduction of the percentage available for the civilian trade and discouragement for expansion of operations. He summed up the outlook:

"This tendency, if continued, ultimately would result in the war agencies getting more and more of less and less, till finally they received 100 per cent of nothing.'

EMILY HAHN'S MAJOR BOXER REPORTED EXECUTED BY JAPS

CHUNGKING, March 15 (AP).—Unconfirmed reports received here from Hong Kong say that Maj. Charles Boxer, chief of British Army Intelligence at Hong Kong at the time of Pearl Harbor, recently was executed by the Japanese, who charged him with operating a secret radio set in a prisoner of war camp.

In a current book, "China to Me," the author, Emily Hahn, identified Maj. Boxer as the father of her daughter, Carola, 3 years old. Miss Hahn, an ex-St. Louisan, who has been living in New York since she was repatriated a year ago from the Orient, said, "unless there is more evidence, I do not intend to believe the rumor."

She explained that she had heard such a report through the British War Office several months ago but thought it might have arisen through the reported imprisonment of Hong Kong civilians for operating a secret radio and the simultaneous imprisonment of a civilian named Boxer.

RED CROSS URGES PLEDGES BE MADE BEFORE MONDAY

Hopes Campaign Will Go Over Top Before Deadline—Gifts Total 69 Pct. of Quota.

Contributions to the Red Cross War Fund campaign reached $1,901,486 today, 69 per cent of the campaign quota of $2,740,000, Walter Behmer, campaign chairman, reported.

Pointing out that the drive's deadline is Monday, Boehmer said that "people have been responding generously and we ask that all contributions be turned in before Monday so the drive will have a chance of going over the top."

With contributions totaling $72,780, the Downtown Division reached 76 per cent of its quota, district 3 in the division being the first to reach its quota. One of the district's teams, headed by Mrs. Harry M. Webster, reported donations amounting to 203 per cent of its quota, while another, under Mrs. Louis Rosen Jr., reported subscriptions totaling 110 per cent of its goal.

Contributions of $7500 each from the Gaylord Container Corporation and Pet Milk Co. were announced by Major B. Einstein, chairman of the special gifts division. Boehmer reported receiving $250 from Time, Inc., as St. Louis' share of Time's national contribution.

The special campaign office at 224 North Broadway will remain open until 5 p. m. today to continue distribution of tickets for the Blue Network radio feature, "Breakfast in Hollywood." The broadcast will be held next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday from the Fox Theater at 10 a .m. each day.

Employes of 34 additional business firms, schools and other organizations have reached their quotas, Jack J. Mayer, chairman of the Commerce and Industry Division, reported.

NAGEL ORDERED REINSTATED AS SCHOOL BOARD CANDIDATE

Frank P. Nagel, school custodian whose name had been ruled off the ballot for candidates for the Board of Education because of a large number of apparently invalid signatures on his petition, was ordered reinstated as a candidate yesterday following a hearing by the Board of Election Commissioners.

The commissioners announced that the two women who had filed objections to the petition had withdrawn their objections, and the board could not possibly check each of the 7221 signatures on Nagel's petition to determine their validity. The board did not wish to do Nagel an injustice, the announcement said, and would therefore order Nagel's name placed on the ballot for the election April 3.

Mrs. Laura S. Edwards, secretary of the Public Education Association, who filed one of the protests, did not attend the hearing. Instead she sent word that she had withdrawn the objection. Mrs. Lydia Rothweiler, 5979 Wanda avenue, appeared and told the board she wished to withdraw her protest if it were permissable. She objected to the petition form of nomination, rather than to individual candidates, she said.

OPA COUPONS FOR 10 MILLION GALLONS OF GASOLINE STOLEN

CHICAGO, March 15 (AP). — Rae E. Walters, regional OPA administrator, disclosed today that two million gasoline coupons good for 10 million gallons were stolen last night.

He estimated the coupons, of the C-7 series made valid March 1, were worth $2,700,000 in the black market and represented more gasoline than was saved by recent ration reductions in the Chicago metropolitan area.

The coupons were stolen from the OPA central issuance center warehouse where three armed guards are on duty. There also is a burglar alarm system. Walters said the guards neither saw nor heard anyone in the place and it appeared the alarm system had been tampered with.

Osaka Arsenal Believed Blown Up; B-29 Hurled Mile Upward by Blast

Explosion After Explosion Buffeted 60-Ton Superforts in 300-Plane Raid on City.

TWENTY-FIRST BOMBER COMMAND, Guam, March 15 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay expressed belief today that Osaka's 150-acre arsenal—vital to the Japanese war effort—went up in explosion after explosion in Wednesday's 300-plane Superfortress raid on Japan's second largest city.

Blasts so terrific the concussion blew some of the 60-ton Superfortresses 2000 to 5000 feet higher into the skies were the basis of LeMay's belief.

The arsenal was one of the chief targets in the attack which laid waste an area of five square miles in the heart of the city—the third 2000-plus ton incendiary blow in five days at Japan's largest cities. The Osaka arsenal produced anti-aircraft guns, artillery, machine-guns, rifles, shell cases, bombs and fuses. It included a steel mill, chemical works and research laboratory.

After talking with pilots, LeMay said that although he had no reconnaissance photographs showing the arsenal was destroyed, it must have been blown up to cause such tremendous explosions as these:

One Plane Lifted Almost Mile.

One B-29 was blown from 7000 to 12,000 feet, turned completely over and sent into a slow roll. After falling 10,000 feet, the pilot, Lt. Stanley C. Black, Helena, Mont., recovered control and flew it home.

Another B-29, Joltin' Josie, was lifted from 7000 feet to 10,000 feet, then dived to 2000 feet before the pilot regained control. He too made it home.

Capt. Jack D. Nole, San Antonio, Tex., said four violent blasts rocked his Superfortress.

Heat Melted Ice on B-29.

Heat from the fires was so intense it melted vision-obscuring ice from the nose of a B-29 piloted by Lt. D. C. Lazuin of Detroit, "so well that the crew could see clearly and make a fine bomb run."

Turbulence due to the uprushing heated air was more violent "than any thunderstorm I've ever been in and much more trouble than any Jap fighters or flak," another pilot said.

For their part in the Tokyo, Nagoya and Osaka raids, LeMay awarded a Silver Star to Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Power and an Oak Leaf Cluster in lieu of a second Silver Star to Brig. Gen. John H. Davies. Power commands Guam-based B-29s, and Davies commands Superfortresses based on Tinian.

JUSTICE'S ACCOUNTS SHORT, COUNTY ACTS TO COLLECT

The St. Louis County Court at Clayton today directed County Counselor Erwin F. Vetter to take steps to collect a shortage in the accounts of Franklin P. Childress, Jefferson Township Justice of the Peace, who died in office June 17, 1943.

An audit of Childress' accounts made by County Comptroller Clarence Hackman showed a deficit of $1080 in fees due the county between May 1, 1940, and the time of his death. It showed also that he owed $349 to Constable Robert Kelly, which Kelly in turn owed to the county.

The audit did not list another $234 which Childress was said to have held back because it was collected as marriage fees and he maintained the money was his, not the county's. Childress received a salary of $2000 a year. Salaried Justices of the Peace in St. Louis County are required by law to turn fees over to the county.

JAPS ORDER EVACUATION OF CIVILIANS FROM TOKYO, 4 OTHER BOMBED CITIES

LONDON, March 15 (AP).

IN a swift aftermath to powerful raids by American Superfortresses, the Tokyo radio said today the Japanese Government had decided to evacuate five major cities, among them the fire-blitzed capital, of all persons except war workers. The decision was reached at a cabinet meeting this morning, the broadcast said.

Supplies will be transferred from the affected areas at the same time as the population, Tokyo announced. A Transocean agency dispatch broadcast by Berlin named the cities as Tokyo, Yokohama, Nagoya, Osaka and Kobe.

The German account said the evacuation remained on a voluntary basis for the time being, but added that "special measures will be taken" if the populations failed to respond.

HAY FEVER SEASON ARRIVES AND COUNT OF POLLEN BEGINS

Already High Enough to Cause Sniffling Often Taken for a Cold.

The hay fever season has arrived in St. Louis chiefly due to the warm weather of the last few days and today the Post-Dispatch begins the daily publication in its daily weather report of the count of the pollen inducing this affliction. The authoritative count is provided by a physician specializing in allergies.

This year the season began at the usual time, the allergist said. The first pollen counts are already high enough to start the chronic sufferers sniffling, he added. This morning the count obtained for elm was 760 and for cedar 82. The count represents the microscopic pollen in a cubic yard of air in 24 hours.

Much of the cedar pollen has blown in from the Ozark area, the allergist said. If the weather remains warm and windy, oak and sycamore, the most unpleasant of the early pollens will soon be noticed. Many persons at this time of year who think they have contracted a spring cold, are actually allergic to one or more of the pollens, he said.

31 COUNTY CHILDREN HAVE SCALP DISEASE

Ringworm Infections Disclosed—142 Examined Under Diagnostic Lights.

Thirty-one of 142 St. Louis County school children examined with diagnostic lights today at the St. Louis County Health Center, proved to be infected with scalp ringworm, it was announced by Dr. E. G. McGavran, County Health Commissioner.

These students will be kept out of school for treatment. It will be 16 days before it can be determined whether they are suffering from the virulent or the mild form, Dr. McGavran said.

Among the schools in which the ringworm infection was found were the Benton School in Valley Park, the St. Paul the Apostle school in Pine Lawn and St. John's school in Mehlville.

Dr. McGavran said that, in addition to the regular Thursday morning examination by appointment, the Health Center would also see children from 2 to 3 o'clock each afternoon except Thursday, Saturday and Sunday.

Dr. McGavran said that the County has been able to acquire five new lights of a type pronounced just as effective as the Wood's lamp in diagnosis and he has an order for 25 to 30 more from a concern in Cleveland.

The St. Louis Board of Estimate and Apportionment has advised Dr. Joseph F. Bredeck, Health Commissioner, that it will approve the purchase of five more diagnostic lights. Dr. Bredeck said the Board of Education wants to acquire 10 of these lights and the Health Department five. The Board of Education is sending two men to New York to expedite the purchase of the lamps.

Dr. Bredeck said a clearance center would be established at 1503 South Grand boulevard to take some of the load from Barnard Free Skin and Cancer Hospital. Pupils will be referred there by school nurses and doctors.

Dr. R. C. Farrier, director of the East Side Health District, reported seven positive and five suspected cases of the infection among East St. Louis school children. He has requested private physicians to report all cases coming to their attention and is making attempts to obtain diagnostic lamps.

CHADEAYNE SAYS KAUFMANN FAILED ON AIR PROGRAM

Democrat Asserts City Lags — Assails Smoke Law Nonenforcement Against Terminal.

Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann was charged with failure to assume proper responsibility in development of St. Louis as an air center and his administration was charged with failure to enforce the smoke ordinance effectively and impartially, in a radio campaign speech last night by Henry F. Chadeayne, Democratic nominee for Mayor.

Under the Republicans there have been four years of "talks, conferences, committees and confusion relative to an aviation program," said Chadeayne, quoting W. Stuart Symington, head of the Metropolitan Plan Association, as saying recently that St. Louis had the worst over-all airport facilities of any large American city. In spite of last year's airport bond issue, the administration has failed to take any constructive steps to keep pace with the advancement of aviation, he asserted, and "St. Louis is lagging far behind other cities in taking steps to establish this community in its rightful place as an air center."

Chadeayne promised that, if elected, the Democrats would create the office of Aviation Commissioner, with a qualified appointee reporting to the Mayor.

"Smokiest, Dirtiest Winter."

The past winter, said Chadeayne, has been "the smokiest, dirtiest winter" since the smoke elimination ordinance was pased, due to failure of proper enforcement. He revived last year's campaign complaint over a period when the Terminal Railroad was alowed to use more than 25,000 tons of illegal coal, "at a saving of more than $100,000," while "basket peddlers were sent to jail for selling small quantities of the same kind of coal."

He pledged passage of an ordinance to protect consumers against coal of excessively high ash content and poor quality, and pledged vigorous and effective enforcement of the smoke ordinance.

"Grandiose" Plan Forgotten.

Mayor Kaufmann's "grandiose" campaign proposal last autumn for a service center for war veterans was quickly forgotten after the November election, "to be brought out again when there was a political advantage to be gained," Chadeayne declared. He contrasted with this plan the leadership of the Social Planning Council, of which he is president, in proposing a similar center, now under consideration by the War Chest, with the hope that the state will provide the service instead of the local community.

Chadeayne pictured Kaufmann's plan as an "idle campaign promise" and his own as the logical handling of a problem. He pledged that the city, under him, would establish the center if it was not done by others.

Would End Street "Foxholes."

Under proper organization and supervision of the Department of Streets and Sewers the "local foxholes" would not exist in the streets, he said, promising correction of the condition. He pledged efforts to obtain regular collection of ashes and rubbish by the city, saying this was the only city of more than 500,000 population not giving this service. Failure of the city to collect garbage regularly, he said, was a disgrace and a menace to public health.

Vigorous efforts to eliminate slums and substandard housing were promised by Chadeayne. He also pledged full co-operation to labor and industry on postwar plans.

FILM TECHNICIANS VOTE TO GO BACK DESPITE PICKETS

900 of 17,000 Out on Strike Returning — Studio Production Drags.

HOLLYWOOD, March 15 (AP). —The first break developed today in the ranks of Hollywood's AFL jurisdictional movie strike as the Film Technicians' local 683 voted to return to work, regardless of pickets.

The technicians represent 900 of the 17,000 studio workers on strike. By a majority vote the technicians upheld the stand of their leaders who asserted the strike was "a wildcat walkout having nothing to do with wages, hours or any logical union cause."

The first of the returning technicians started work this morning to develop the film shot in the first three days of the strike.

Otherwise, opposing sides stood pat on their demands, and studio production dragged.

IATSE Top Officers Arrive.

Nevertheless, threatened wholesale defections from the ranks of the rival International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes apparently had been headed off by the hasty arrival of top officers of the organization.

A big turnout was predicted for tomorrow night's mass meeting of the Screen Actors' Guild, but whatever decision its 8000 members reach won't be known until next week, when votes are tabulated. Representatives of the three factions—the two unions and the producers' association—are to argue their cases.

Verbal Clashes.

Verbal clashes continued between Herbert K. Sorrell, president of the conference unions, who called the strike when producers refused to recognize the affiliated painters' local as the bargaining agent for studio set decorators, and Richard A. Walsh, head of the powerful IATSE, which also sought control of the decorators.

Sorrell scoffed at Walsh's threat to pull out projectionists, machinists and stagehands from the nation's theaters, and repeated:

"The War Labor Board can settle this thing in five minutes if it will order the producers to abide by the award the WLB arbitrator made in favor of the painters' local.

"After that, the producers can appeal to any agency they desire, including the Supreme Court, and we will abide by whatever is decided. But make the producers deal with us pending such an appeal."

Walsh retorted: "If the producers recognize the other organization over our protest, then we'll have to move against the showing of their pictures." He asserted that "the War Labor Board attempted to coerce the producers into recognizing our rival organization . . . by compulsory arbitration."

HOSPITAL HEAD PUT TO BED ON HIS DESK WHEN HE GETS SICK

Uzzie Phillips, superintendent of the 158-bed Christian Welfare Hospital in East St. Louis suffered an attack of indigestion yesterday, but all beds in the hospital were occupied, so nurses put a mattress on his desk and made up a bed for the superintendent in his office.

Two hours later an extra bed was found and crowded into one of the hospital rooms. Phillips was reported to be recovering.

MARINES RAISE VICTORY FLAG; U.S. TAKES OVER IWO

met, himself came within a few inches of stopping a Japanese bullet yesterday while watching an intense fire-fight on the north end of the island.

His voice echoed with emotion when he said:

"It is a victory that was not accomplished by any one service but by a brotherhood of all services, formed in the holocaust of battle. . . . Let us bow our heads in commemoration of their gallantry. . . . Well done."

The ceremony began at 9:30 this morning when John E. Glenn, New Orleans, a 21-year-old sandy mustached bugler, walked onto the black sand knoll licked by sporadic dust clouds and sounded attention.

Nimitz's Proclamation.

As the group stood at attention the corps personnel officer, Col. D. A. Stafford of Spokane, Wash., read the proclamation from Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz "to the people of the Volcano Islands."

"United States forces under my command have occupied this and others of the Volcano Islands. All the powers of the government of the Japanese empire in the islands so occupied are hereby suspended. All the powers of government are vested in me as military governor and will be exercised by subordinate commanders under my direction.

"All persons will obey promptly all orders given under my authority. Offenses against the forces of occupation will be severely punished."

After the proclamation, printed in both English and Japanese, was read the bugler sounded the colors and Pfc. Thomas J. Casale, Herkimer, N. Y., sent the flag up the pole. He was assisted by Pfc. Albert B. Bush, Cleveland. The color detail was in charge of Sgt. Anthony C. Ysui, Portchester, N. Y. The three men in the color detail and the bugler were from the corps' military police company. They were chosen for the honor by their platoon leaders on basis of performance of duties and military bearing.

Fighting Still Going On.

After the colors were hoisted the bugler sounded "Carry On" and the men broke up to walk back along the dusty road to their various tasks.

Though Iwo is ours enemy resistance has not entirely ended. In the extreme northern end is still a small area which includes a strong point of enemy resistance. It is a 900-yard long ridge running south from Kitano point. It will probably take several days yet for the island to finally be declared "secured."

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz's communique from Guam today reported gains of from 200 to 400 yards against the surviving Japanese pocketed at Kitano point on Iwo's northeastern tip, and the accompanying dispatch said progress was slow because of the necessity of clearing the rough land with bulldozers so tanks could be put in action against the caves.

The communique listed 20,000 as a "very close approximation" of enemy dead on the island, and said the Japanese were booby-trapping American bodies. It disclosed that Navy and Marine as well as Army planes are flying from Iwo airfields.

7 KILLED, 16 HURT IN CRASH OF NAVY TRANSPORT PLANE

SAN CARLOS, Cal., March 15 (AP).—The crash of a big transport plane killed seven men and injured 16 others, the Navy said today.

The accident occurred last night southwest of here. The plane carriel 23 persons, headquarters said, all Navy and Marine personnel.

The plane was flying from Olathe, Kan., by way of San Pedro, Cal., to Oakland, Cal. It pancaked in high wind and heavy rain on a steep hillside, breaking in half. The pilot was killed, and the co-pilot suffered a broken leg. Most of the passengers were thrown clear when the plane hit.

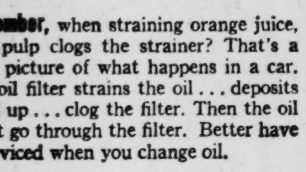
Smoother going in 4TH War-Winter

"Charge it." These are good words to say when your battery growls at its tough winter job. But better still, have your Standard Oil Dealer check yours regularly so it's always in tip-top shape, fully charged for efficient service.

Remember, when straining orange juice, how pulp clogs the strainer? That's a good picture of what happens in a car. The oil filter strains the oil . . . deposits build up . . . clog the filter. Then the oil won't go through the filter. Better have it serviced when you change oil.



"Fits like an old shoe." Car parts fit like that today. They've lost their "new car fit." That makes it hard to keep lubricants where they belong, where they prevent metal-to-metal contact. Have your Standard Oil Dealer lubricate your car every 60 days, or at 1000 miles—whichever comes first.

Add up all the years of experience of Standard Oil Dealers and you'll get a figure many times the age of the Pyramids. But we wanted to improve even on that. So we ran dealer schools and car clinics. That's why we can say, "For Better Car Care, see your Standard Oil Dealer."

FURNITURE STORE MAN BURNED

Clayton Grey, a furniture repairman of 2745 Park avenue, suffered serious burns yesterday when a fire of undetermined origin damaged his second-hand furniture store at 2756 Park avenue.

Police reported damage of $1000 to the two-story brick building, $500 to the contents of the store and $300 to living quarters above the store. The building was owned by Julius Schneider of 2914 Eads avenue.

ARMY TO GET ALMOST ALL IN 18-20 GROUP

Navy to Fill Needs From 21-to-38 Brackets During Next 3 Months.

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP).—The Army's growing need for young infantrymen to replace combat losses will take practically all inductees under 21 years old for the next three months.

Beginning today, the Army and Navy announced jointly, the only exception to Army assignments for men drafted in that age bracket, will be the comparative few who qualify for such specialized naval programs as radio technicians and combat air crewmen.

Routine manpower needs of the Navy will be met from the 21-to-38 age brackets during the three-month period.

The move is another step in the Army's efforts to increase its sources of supply for infantrymen. In recent months the service has closed all other branches. The announcement presumably does not affect the Navy's policy of enlisting 17-year-olds.

About 80,000 youths reach their eighteenth birthdays monthly, and the recent division has been approximately 55,000 to the Army, and 25,000 to the Navy.

ST. LOUIS PILOT FOUND JAPS READY FOR RAID

Broke Loose With All They Had, Marine Veteran of 30 Missions, Says.

Marine First Lt. Joseph C. Schmucker Jr. of St. Louis, with a record of 30 bombing and strafing missions as Corsair pilot with the Hell's Belles fighter-bomber squadron in the Pacific, has returned to the United States, a Marine dispatch from Miramar (Cal.) air depot reported today.

Lt. Schmucker, operating from the Marshalls, blasted Jap targets on Wotje, Mili, Maloelap and Jaluit islands, and participated in a long-distance flight to photograph Nauru, Jap base west of the Gilberts. His plane was damaged by enemy fire only once, when a group he was with attempted to repeat a previous day's surprise on one Jap-held island by flying in from a new direction. "They were waiting for us the second time," Lt. Schmucker said, "and broke loose with everything they had." The extent of damage to his plane was not detailed. Schmucker, a Normandy High School graduate, was a production engineer for Curtiss-Wright here. His parents live at 7235 St. Andrews road, St. Louis County.

Temporarily Missing.

Staff Sgt. Thomas J. Duchek's last of 35 combat missions as waist gunner on a Flying Fortress wound up with his being temporarily reported missing over Germany when his plane was shot up by flak and dropped out of its formation. But the crew managed to reach a friendly base without further trouble, and later was listed as safe.

Sgt. Duchek, who has received the Air Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters, was quoted in this account of the episode in a Fifteenth Air Force dispatch from Italy: "My last mission was the roughest. We attacked Blechhammer, Germany, the day after Christmas. When on the bomb run, we encountered antiaircraft fire. It knocked out two of our engines, hit the bombsight, ruined our radio, struck our navigation instruments and cut part of our oxygen lines, ruined some of our instruments and seriously wounded our co-pilot. We were forced to drop out of the formation, and our pilot headed for the nearest friendly base. We reached a small field and he crash landed the plane without further injury to any of our crew." Sgt. Duchek is the brother of Miss Leona Duchek, 4768A Rosa avenue.

Shell Makes B-17 "Wind Tunnel."

Staff Sgt. Glenn R. Stockglausner, 3550 Pestalozzi street, who recently bailed out of a shot-up Flying Fortress into a pine tree, flew later as waist gunner with another B-17 which was turned into a flaming "wind tunnel" over German territory by an antiaircraft shell, an Eighth Air Force dispatch from England reported.

The 80-millimeter shell bored through the fuselage and set wind-whipped flames whirling within the plane. Though it did not explode, it caused extensive damage, necessitating an emergency landing, the dispatch said. After tense activity aboard the craft, the pilot brought it across the North Sea to a field just inside the English coast for a perfect landing. One man had been burned before the fire was extinguished.

Describes Freed Prisoners.

Maj. John O. Garthe, husband of Mrs. Edith Lee Garthe, 3985 Meramec street, is attached to an Army General Hospital in the Dutch East Indies. In a recent letter to his wife he described the American officers just released from Japanese prison camp in the Philippines, where they had been since May, 1942.

"They impress you as pale little children who have been underfed and abused for a long time and are now very happy in a serious way to be back among their own people," he wrote. "After talking to those two men—one partially blind from vitamin deficiency, the other crippled from lack of food and a piece of American steel in a Jap shell—you feel like standing off and saluting, in all dignity and respect, and at the same time you feel like biting your tongue for every time you beefed about things over in this paradise," he concluded.

Maj. Garthe, a former resident of Chicago, has been in the Army Medical Corps for about five years.

Other St. Louisans in Italy.

Additional St. Louisans were listed in dispatches from the Italian front detailing the fighting records of various American units engaging the Germans there. Ten men from this area are serving with the 346th Field Artillery Battalion, which fired 1200 rounds into German defenses recently as Fifth Army infantrymen took Monghidoro, 25 miles south of Bologna. The St. Louisans are Cpl. Clifford T. Dowdy, 2023 South Jefferson avenue, truck driver; Pfc. Stanley C. Franklin, 4265 Cleveland avenue, wireman; Cpl. Peter A. Parisi, 1228 North Seventh street, radio operator; Cpl. John A. Nolle, 4160A Fair avenue; Cpl. Fred C. Hummel, 6725 Alexander drive; Cpl. George W. Hawthorne, 3419A Juniata avenue; Pfc. Harry B. Kennedy, 4564 Athlone avenue, computer; Pfc. Walter P. Schlie, 3303 Oxford avenue, Maplewood, driver; Sgt. Raymond T. Naughton, 1040 North Taylor avenue, Kirkwood, section chief, and Cpl. Roger H. Lammers, 711 Forest avenue, Ferguson.

With the 936th Field Artillery Battalion, originally an Arkansas National Guard unit, which has been harassing German troops on heights before Italy's Po Valley, are Cpl. Wilbert F. Jester, 5655 Cote Brilliante avenue, ammunition man; Cpl. George R. Reisel, 4020 Cottage avenue, radio operator; Pvt. Ernest R. Halland, 5079 Cabanne avenue, driver; Maj. Edward W. Sweeney, 5930 Ridge avenue, battalion supply chief; Pfc. Charles W. Kilper, 6033 Pernod avenue, cannoneer, and Cpl. Matthew C. Jones, 2214 South Seventh street, ammunition man.

Carving Road Through Po Valley.

A group of St. Louisans are alternately employing tools and weapons as members of the 316th Combat Engineer Battalion, carving out a route of advance into the Po Valley. The unit has often filled in or built bypasses around craters on Italian Highway 65 leading into Bologna. Men from here are Pfc. Roland T. Brune, 3426 Macklind avenue, driver; Pvt. Robert R. Cooper, 1008 Sidney street, rigger; Sgt. Harold F. Reichert, 5067 Terry avenue, carpenter; Pfc. Russell Short, Gambleton place, radio operator; Pvt. Julian H. Stockamp, 2419 Broadway, basic engineer, and Maj. Herbert C. Wolf, 6216 Dexter street, Affton, battalion staff officer.

GEN. ROMULO SAYS TOKYO ORDERED FILIPINOS KILLED

Commissioner Brings Evidence of Japanese Atrocities to U. S. for Congress to See.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 15 (AP).—Bitterly describing "coldly premeditated atrocities" in Manila, Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo was back in the United States today with a sheaf of documents and films to "indict the Japanese people on the floor of Congress."

The resident commissioner of the Philippines, who arrived here from Manila yesterday after a reunion with his wife and their four sons, said the prime purpose of his trip was to appear before Congress "and describe in detail, with sworn affidavits, the atrocities the Japanese committed on helpless civilians."

He arranged to leave for Washington today.

Romulo told reporters that "the rape of Nanking was a picnic compared with what the Japs did to Manila."

He said he carried documentary evidence that the Japanese imperial marines in Manila had direct orders from Tokyo to kill as many Filipinos as they could.

Japanese Angry.

"The Japanese were irate in having failed to get the support of my people. They wanted to make an example of the Filipinos to influence greater East Asia."

Mrs. Virginia Romulo, small and quiet, nodded vigorously as the General said the Filipino soldier must be given the privilege of participating in the invasion of Japan, "for I think we have earned that right."

Nineteen-year-old Carlos Romulo Jr., proud at having killed seven Japanese during his years as a guerrilla, spoke up:

"The ambition of every guerrilla is to be a military policeman in Japan so we can double and triple what the Japs have done to us."

Mrs. Romulo and three of the youngest boys were picked up one at a time from a Central Luzon province by American flyers in tiny cub planes. Carlos left his guerrilla band to join the family.

Romulo said that inside Manila's intramuros (walled city) the Japanese herded virtually all the men into Fort Santiago, doused the place with kerosene and set it ablaze.

1700 Civilians Killed.

"In that fort 1700 civilians died," he declared. "Only three escaped, through machine-gun fire, to describe the horror.

"I entered Fort Santiago later and I saw the burned corpses lying helter-skelter. Some were holding onto the grillwork, and would drop off when I touched them."

He related that women and children were mowed down as they sought to flee from the intramuros through a breach made by American artillery.

"I saw the body of a daughter of a banker I knew. She had been raped and then cut in two with sabers."

Talks of Independence.

Romulo, expressing hopes for close Filipino-American relationships after the Philippines receive their independence, said the United States undoubtedly would retain air and naval bases in the islands.

"It is within the realm of possibility that you won't have to send American soldiers there," he said. "Maybe the Filipino soldiers will protect the bases for you. We have shown that we can fight loyally for America."

The general had numerous souvenirs with him, including two Japanese sabers he plans to give to House Speaker Sam Rayburn and Secretary of War Henry Stimson.

Lucas to Head Campaign Group.
WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP).—Senator Scott Lucas of Illinois was named chairman yesterday of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee.

DRAFT CHAIRMAN SEEKS IMMEDIATE CALL OF STRIKERS

chinists defied orders of union leaders to go to work. District Lodge 9 of the AFL machinists' union last night gave out the order after receipt of a telegram from Harvey W. Brown, international union president, which said machinists crossing the foundrymen's picket lines would not be penalized. The Lodge consists of one representative from each machinist's local union in the area.

Strikers reclassified into 1-A, Griffin told a Post-Dispatch reporter, face induction into the armed forces within 10 days unless they go into the foundries. This action, he said, is being taken under the law which states that, when a man with a deferment leaves his job, he must be reclassified immediately into 1-A. Deferment, Griffin explained, means any kind, physical included.

Physical examinations for the strikers, who are being placed into the category of "job skippers," will be based on lowered physical standards. Men unfit for duty will be sent to Camp Ellis, Ill., for special assignment. They would be given an alternative of entering the Army reserve and taking an essential job.

Picket Lines Maintained.

Pickets continued to block the entrance of other workers to most of the foundries this morning. At the Fulton Iron Works Co., 1259 Delaware avenue, Wellston, however, men stayed out even though no picket line was formed. The strikers there included machinists.

As the strike entered its fourth products forged in the foundries products forged on the foundries felt an increased pinch. Stock piles were reported dwindling and the Willys-Overland Motor Co., Dayton, O., has already appealed for help to the Navy representative in St. Louis.

Plants making rail equipment, parts of B-29 Superfortresses, ammunition hoists, artillery shells and high-octane refinery equipment said they were low on castings normally supplied by the foundries.

Officers of the AFL Molders' & Foundry Workers' Union, Local 59, were awaiting word from Harry Stevenson, the union's international president, before making any further efforts to urge the foundrymen to resume working. At a meeting of foundrymen Tuesday, they voted 205 to 133 to remain on strike.

More Than 4000 Out.

More than 4000 workers are out in the eight foundries. Of that number, 1105 are foundrymen protesting against the War Labor Board failure thus far to approve a 5-cent-an-hour increase agreed to by their union and the eight firms.

The national board had the appeal under consideration when the men went on strike last Monday after a vote taken last week under provisions of the Smith-Connally Labor Disputes Act.

RUSSIANS BOLSTER ODER POSITIONS FOR BERLIN DRIVE

tin Bay and the Baltic, from being breached.

Hard fighting continued in the forests on the perimeter of Altdamm, Stettin suburb on the east side of the Oder.

Southwest of the East Prussia capital of Koenigsberg, troops of the Third White Russian Army yesterday drove within four and one-half miles of reaching the coast of the Frisches haff (lagoon) and splitting the strongholds of Braunsberg and Heiligenbeil from Brandenburg. Brandenburg is 12 miles southwest of Koenigsberg. One column pushing along the railroad to Braunsberg took the railway station of Vogelsang, four miles to the southeast.

The Soviet command announced that more than 4000 Germans were killed and more than 2000 taken prisoner in the East Prussia fighting.

Forces of Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's Second White Russian Army, meanwhile, tightened their assault arcs about Danzig and Gdynia. The Soviet attack was expected to carry into Gdynia, but German resistance stiffened markedly in the Danzig area.

(A report to Stockholm said Col. Gen. Heinz Guderian had been replaced as German commander on the Eastern Front by Col. Gen. Schoerner.)

RUNDSTEDT REPORTED FIRED FOR DRINKING TO EXCESS

WITH THE UNITED STATES FIRST ARMY ON THE RHINE, March 15 (AP).—Rumors which have leaked through enemy lines to the First Army say that Field Marshal Karl Gerd von Rundstedt has been drinking to excess and as a result Field Marshal Walther von Model now has replaced him in supreme command of German forces on the Western Front.

There have been reports for some time that Von Rundstedt was addicted to alcohol and that the failure of his December offensive in Belgium did not help his spirits.

GETS PROBATION IN BANK THEFT

James R. Joplin, former $60-a-month janitor at the First State Bank at Bonne Terre, Mo., received a six-month suspended jail sentence and was placed on probation today by United States District Judge George H. Moore after pleading guilty of stealing $300 in cash from a cash drawer in the bank last April 30.

Joplin's attorney told the court that Joplin had financial difficulties because of his wife's long illness and while cleaning up the bank after closing hour he noticed $500 in currency which had been left by a teller. He admitted taking $300 of it but has made restitution, the attorney said.

R.A.F. HITS REICH AGAIN WITH NEW 11-TON BOMBS

U. S. Bombers Blast Rail Yards Outside Berlin —6000 to 7000 Planes in Day's Attacks.

LONDON, March 15 (AP):—The Royal Air Force used its new 11-ton bombs against Germany again today while American bombers from Britain and Italy attacked Berlin's outskirts and a large oil refinery southeast of the capital.

The targets of the R. A. F. were not immediately announced, but in the first use of the 22,000-pound bombs yesterday the important Berlin-Ruhr railway viaduct at Bielefeld, 80 miles east of the Rhine was knocked out.

A fleet of 1350 American bombers from Britain attacked a number of targets, including the Oranienburg freight yards seven miles north of Berlin.

From 6000 to 7000 planes participated in the assaults on the thirty-first day of the sustained offensive against the Reich.

Oranienburg, virtually a suburb of battered Berlin, on the main highway and one of the two main railways to the Baltic coast where Russian armies are operating against Stettin, and on the Have River, which connects with a large freight canal. Recent reconnaissance showed the Oranienburg yards were extremely active.

Vital Oil Plant Attacked.

United States Flying Fortresses from Italy unleashed a shattering attack on what Mediterranean headquarters called "the most important target in Europe," the big Ruhland oil refinery 65 miles southeast of Berlin. It was a 1400-mile round trip, the deepest Fifteenth Air Force penetration of the Reich thus far.

Other Italian-based American heavy bombers battered three refineries in the Vienna area. An air force spokesman estimated that 25 per cent of Germany's total production of synthetic oil had been knocked out, at least temporarily.

British bombers were in action during the night, heavies striking at the Western Front supply centers of Zweibruecken and Homburg, while Mosquitoes rocked Berlin for the twenty-third straight night.

More than 5000 British and American planes participated in the operations yesterday in which the 11-ton bombs were introduced.

The Air Ministry announced that six to eight spans of the Bielefeld viaduct had been destroyed. Simultaneously R. A. F. Lancasters attacked another viaduct at Arnsburg, 27 miles southeast of Dortmund, with six-ton earthquake bombs.

The Allies' new bombs—already tabbed "townbusters" — are the largest bombs ever carried aloft. Specially equipped Lancasters were used for the job. A crew of six is required to load the bomb in a half-hour operation.

The primary role of the great bomb—25 feet, five inches in length—is for attacks on underground structures such as the factories known to have been built by the Germans deep in the earth.

Bodies for Bomb From U. S.

The Air Ministry said it had an increased velocity and it should "greatly exceed the devastation of any bombs so far employed."

"Although the bomb itself and also the aircraft which carry it are 100 per cent British, the United States has given valuable assistance with production. We already are obtaining supplies of complete bomb-bodies from America."

Italy-based U. S. fighters and bombers for the first time engaged yesterday in co-ordinated attacks with Russian aircraft on targets in Austria, Hungary and Yugoslavia, it was announced today.

The American fighter pilots encountered German planes attacking formations of Russian bombers and joined in the battle. Twenty Allied planes, including eight heavy bombers, were reported missing from the actions. Twenty-one enemy craft were destroyed, at least 17 of them by American pilots.

Fighter bombers of the United States Ninth Air Force, protecting the Remagen bridgehead, destroyed 60 German planes on an airfield east of Coblenz, and damaged 55 others yesterday. Three fighter bombers were lost. The Nazi aircraft were believed to have been preparing for a mass assault on the bridgehead when the Americans struck.

Recipe
SPLIT PEAS AND SAUERKRAUT
1 cup Washburn's Fancy Split Peas
1 teaspoon salt
1 quart water
½ clove garlic, minced
1 onion, chopped
1 cup sauerkraut
5 slices bacon
Cook split peas in salted water until tender but not mushy. There should be 1 cup liquid left on peas. Add garlic, onion and sauerkraut to cooked peas. Pour into greased 1 quart casserole and cover top with bacon. Bake in moderate oven, 350°F., about 30 minutes until bacon is done. Serves four.

Tasty, different main dish—
SPLIT PEAS and SAUERKRAUT

This is just one of many main dishes, besides soup, that you can make with Washburn's Fancy Split Peas. Tasty dishes—because Washburn's peas are full-flavored. Nourishing dishes—because Washburn's Peas are rich in proteins, high in minerals, and Vitamin B_1. Economical dishes—because a pound package of Washburn's costs little and serves 12 (for soup).

And so easy to prepare and serve because Washburn's Peas are triple-cleaned, require no pre-soaking and cook quickly.

power; $31 for 60 to 72 horsepower and $37.50 for 72 or more horsepower.

For example, if a motorist listed the horsepower rating of his automobile at 36 or 37 and paid a fee of $20 for his license, it vas pointed out, an employe could change the rating to 35 horsepower, reducing the fee to $11 and keeping the $9 difference.

In addition to alterations in records of automobile licenses, the Post-Dispatch was informed, irregularities also were found in the issuance of truck licenses. Bell explained that trucks which operate within a 25-mile radius of a city are considered local carriers and their license fees are considerably less than fees for trucks operating over larger areas. In some instances, he said, long-distance truck applications had been changed to local applications and the difference in the fees was not turned over to the State.

A spot check of 100 license applications for Buick automobiles in the Motor Vehicle Registration office in Jefferson City showed, officials said, that 20 of the applications had been falsified to indicate that the horsepower of the automobile was less than it actually was, thus reducing the license fee. In each of the 20 cases, Bell said, the license fee was reduced from $20 to $11. The other 80 applications examined were for Buicks of less horsepower.

Bell said the investigation so far had not shown who was responsible in the St. Louis office for the irregularities. Twenty persons are normally employed in the office here, and in rush periods as many as 40 are employed.

Another method of taking office funds, the Post-Dispatch learned, was by delaying transmittal of license applications and records until after July 1 when license fees are reduced 50 per cent by state law. If a motorist, for instance, applied for his license in May or June, it was learned, some employes here would accept the full fee, issue the license plate, but hold records of its issuance until after the July 1 deadline. When the records were sent on to Jefferson City only half the fee was accountable for, the rest of it could be pocketed.

State patrolmen first found falsified license bureau records after a motorist had inquired in Jefferson City about the registration of his automobile. It was pointed out that a motorist would have no way of knowing whether the horsepower rating of his automobile had been changed after the fee was paid, because no receipt is issued and state automobile certificates do not contain horsepower ratings.

The State officials, conducting the inquiry, started questioning witnesses about noon yesterday, took less than an hour out for dinner and spent the evening until 11 p. m. checking ledgers of the office.

Presumably the ledgers were taken from the office after closing hours and returned during the night, before the office opened.

Bell returned to Jefferson City today to keep a pressing appointment, but planned to return to St. Louis tonight. Duncan was left in charge of the interrogation.

JUDGE OAKLEY IN HOSPITAL

Circuit Judge Ernest F. Oakley was taken to St. Anthony's Hospital this afternoon when he became suddenly ill upon entering the Civil Courts building after lunch to return to his courtroom.

Circuit Judge Edward M. Ruddy, who had met Judge Oakley outside the building and walked in with him, said he complained of pains in his chest. Judge Ruddy helped him to his chambers and called an ambulance. Judge Oakley lives at 5511 South Grand boulevard.

Moore, were interested in Roche "from some political angle." Moore resigned recently after the Post-Dispatch had published his police record, and that of other Dougherty deputies.

Kozek said he had discussed Roche's case with Dougherty and Moore in Chicago, but would not say what the conversation was. He added that at one time, when Roche skipped his bond and was missing for two and a half months, he had asked friends in St. Louis to find out, through Dougherty, where Roche could be found.

Subsequently Roche returned to Chicago, and his bondsman surrendered him to the court to begin serving his sentence.

At Healy's saloon, a Chicago loop rendezvous of gangsters and gamblers, a Post-Dispatch reporter was told by bartenders who knew Dougherty that the last time he had been there "was when he was interested in the Roche case."

With him on that occasion, the bartenders said, was Thomas Walsh, a partner with Gregory Moore in the operation of the Capitol Bar and in the National Amusement Co., a slot machine distributing concern.

Among those with whom Dougherty discussed Roche's plight on that occasion, the bartenders said, was "Paddy" Dwyer, brother of John J. Dwyer, City Treasurer of St. Louis and chairman of the Democratic City Committee.

Sheriff Dougherty denied to the Post-Dispatch today that he had interceded in behalf of Roche. He said he did not know him and did not know Kozek.

The robbery for which Roche was convicted was that of the Olson Transportation Co., March 6, 1944, in which $700 was taken. Convicted with him were Wyncil Urban, notorious St. Louis gangster who was sentenced to eight to 15 years, and Raymond Fischell, who got 20 years as an habitual criminal. Roche had no previous conviction and applied for probation, but this was denied.

Resisted Extradition.

He was arrested in St. Louis for the Chicago robbery, and resisted extradition, obtaining his release on a writ of habeas corpus issued by Judge David J. FitzGibbon. The question at issue at that hearing was whether Roche had been in Illinois on the day of the robbery. He presented an alibi suported by his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Roche, 5545 Cabanne avenue, and Robert Hughes, 4262 Lee avenue.

Mrs. Roche testified that her husband had been with her in St. Louis on the day of the robbery, and Hughes testified he had talked with Roche on the telephone at his home on that day. Hughes fixed the date by saying the conversation was about whether they would attend a political meeting that night, explaining that they belonged to a political organization which met on the first Monday of each month and the day of the robbery was the first Monday in March, 1944.

Hughes did not name the political organization to which he referred. He could not be found by a Post-Dispatch reporter at the address he gave. A woman occupant at that address, who, neighbors said, was Hughes's mother, told the reporter she knew no one named Hughes.

When Roche succeeded in blocking extradition through the writ of habeas corpus, Illinois authorities obtained a Federal warrant charging him with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution, and it was on the Federal warrant that he was returned to Chicago later to stand trial on the robbery charge.

Convicted in July, Roche appealed, and was to have supplied a new bond to supplant that given at the time of his arrest. He left Chicago without doing so, however, and it was then that his bondsman asked St. Louis friends to seek to learn his whereabouts through Sheriff Dougherty.

Joseph Mazera, Ex-Senator Shea Choices for Deputies.

The names of Joseph Mazera, a retired city policeman of 4259 West Pine boulevard, and former State Senator John P. Shea, whose address was given as 4538 McPherson avenue, were submitted to Circuit Court Judges today by Sheriff John F. Dougherty to replace deputies whose appointments were rescinded by the Judges after an investigation of their police and criminal records.

Presiding Judge Edward M. Ruddy said a meeting of the Judges had been scheduled for this afternoon at which time nine new appointees of Sheriff Dougherty will be considered for approval.

Shea, who served in the Legislature from 1934 to 1938, was not known at the address the sheriff listed for him. In 1940, records showed, he was one of several St. Louisans who recommended a parole for Angelo J. Rosegrant, who was convicted of kidnaping Dr. Isaac Dee Kelley. In the State Blue Book, Shea was listed as a salesman, but acquaintances here said he was principally identified with horse racing and professional sporting events.

Behind-Scenes Story of Yalta

Those Vodka Toasts---Even Reds Don't Drink Them All Straight, But Thin Them With Wine or Water

Bottoms Up the Rule Only for Nations or Chiefs of State—Mrs. Boettiger Uneasy Until Adm. Leahy Gave Crossed-Fingers Sign Across the Table.

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
(Copyright, 1945, by the Associated Press.)
Third of a Series.

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP).

AT the end of the second full day of the Yalta conference there was time out for a bit of social relaxation. President Roosevelt gave a dinner for Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin and their top assistants. Stalin gave a similar dinner Feb. 8, and Churchill Feb. 10.

It was at these dinners, perhaps more than at any other time, that the Soviet chief exhibited the sense of humor described by one of the guests as "delightful."

At all the dinners there were toasts in the Russian manner—sometimes so many that the food chilled and leg muscles got sore from popping up and down.

Observant Americans quickly learned the Russians' secret of endurance. The toasts could be diluted between times by sipping water or a drink something like cider.

Even the Russians didn't down a heavy slug of vodka every time. Some of them occasionally took wine, weaker than most American vintages. Some of the toasts required only touching the glass to the lips.

But glasses had to be drained when one individual toasted another and again for what the hosts called "big toasts"—to a nation or chief of state, for example.

14,000 Bottles.

STALIN'S dinner was the biggest and the only one to which the few women onlookers at the conference were invited. They were President Roosevelt's daughter, Mrs. John Boettiger; Churchill's daughter, Mrs. Sarah Oliver; and Kathleen Harriman, daughter of the American Ambassador to Moscow, W. Averell Harriman.

Mrs. Boettiger was somewhat uneasy about the toasting, but she looked across the table and saw Adm. William D. Leahy, chief of staff to the President, smiling and exhibiting two crossed fingers on each hand.

The Russian Foreign Commissar, V. M. Molotov, started the toasts with tributes to the President and Prime Minister. Roosevelt was next, then Stalin stepped in.

The menu included caviar, bread and butter, consomme, sturgeon, beef and macaroni, cauliflower, sweet cake, tea, coffee and fruit—and vodka and five different wines. The cauliflower was a rare treat, because fresh green vegetables are seldom seen on Russian tables.

Since the Russians brought 14,000 bottles to Yalta, the vodka and wine weren't limited to the formal dinners. They—and caviar—were on the table for all meals, breakfast included. But at American headquarters, at least, few started the day on that diet.

Russian Fare for F. D. R.

EXCEPT for breakfast, Roosevelt ate Russian foods prepared by Russian chefs. For lunch there might be soup, a stew or goulash, fruits and pastries for dessert.

A typical dinner served to the President would include caviar, vodka, toast and butter; some smoked fish, like salmon; cabbage, soup, sturgeon, ham, beef, poultry or game (the meat might be on skewers), potatoes, pastry or fruit, champagne or a wine akin to sparkling burgundy, coffee with a different taste.

Even at the formal dinners there was no formal attire. Roosevelt wore business suits throughout the eight days. Churchill embellished business clothes with a tremendous black sealskin hat. Stalin always appeared in uniform.

Lavish as vodka and caviar sound, there were plenty of other luxuries: barbering and manicuring "on the house," cars and chauffeurs—but they all had to be imported from such famous Moscow hotels as the Grand and Metropole.

Conference Setting.

THE conference setting, the Livadia Palace grounds, was what Roosevelt called a combination of Hollywood, Newport and the South, but in stark contrast with it was the devastation of war in evidence on the countryside—skeletons beside the roads and shattered, blackened buildings.

The main conference room, on the first floor of the palace, once was the place where the top stratum of Czarist Russia wined and dined and danced. The room is about 50 by 150 feet, with a 40-foot ceiling.

The Czarina and her four daughters used the second floor in the old days. Gen. George C. Marshall was assigned the imperial bedroom, and Admiral Ernest J. King the Czarina's boudoir. There were snickers about that.

It's local gossip that an outside stairway to the second floor was primarily for the use of the monk Rasputin, a powerful court figure.

The plumbing was somewhat inadequate, so supplementary ("Chic Sale") facilities were installed outdoors. Washbasins, pitchers and buckets were supplied indoors.

Soviet guards were posted throughout the grounds. The Americans were advised not to offer them any gifts, not even cigarettes or candy. It is forbidden by Soviet military law, under heavy penalties, to accept them.

For the household staffs, candy and cigarettes were preferred to money tips.

Canteen for Americans.

A CANTEEN was operated for the American delegation. Tobacco, candy, toiletries, beer, 10-ruble notes for short-snorter rolls and a few other things were on sale—but no souvenirs. Russia just doesn't make luxury goods now.

Americans were cautioned by an Army detail not to pocket any "souvenir" towels or spoons because Russia is short in many items and the hosts might receive "an unfortunate impression."

Russian secret police watched even American secret service men at first. It didn't take long, however, to find out that they were all doing the same job and to start trading small talk and cigarettes.

Laundry and limited pressing were done on a naval auxiliary vessel at Sevastopol. It provided three-day service, although it was 50 miles away. A doctor and a pharmacist's mate ran a "sick bay."

The American staff numbered upwards of 300, most of them State Department people.

It was a hard-working conference, and it took 15 hours—from noon one day to 3 a. m. the next—to draft the final communique.

U. S. TO REQUEST SECURITY PARLEY BE OPEN TO PUBLIC

No Provision Being Made for Social Activities—Sessions in Opera House.

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP).—The United States will ask other United Nations to conduct the San Francisco meeting "with the greatest possible consideration for the widespread interest of the world in its deliberations."

Secretary of State Stettinius made this announcement today. His statement follows:

"The final determination of policy at San Francisco with regard to pres, radio and motion pictures will, of course, be made by the conference itself. This Government will propose the following procedure which will be subject to the approval of the other nations present:

"The meeting of the United Nations at San Francisco will be conducted with the greatest possible consideration for the widespread interests of the world in its deliberations. Plenary meetings and meetings of the principal commissions of the conference will be open to press and radio news correspondents and photographers and, in so far as facilities permit, to the general public.

"This is a working conference entrusted with the high purpose of preparing a charter for a general international organization for the maintenance of peace and security. No provision is being made for social activities and it is hoped that they will be kept to an absolute minimum."

Stettinius said in a statement last night:

"I have just made arrangements with Mayor Roger Lapham of San Francisco, which he is announcing, for the use of the opera house and Veterans' War Memorial Building for meetings of the United Nations conference to convene in San Francisco on April 25.

"Plenary sessions of the conference will be held in the opera house. Commission and other meetings will be held in the Veterans' War Memorial Building."

Exchange Ship Leaves Germany.

LONDON, March 15 (AP).—The Berlin radio announced today that the Swedish exchange ship Drottningholm sailed from Goeteborg this morning with 900 passengers, mostly British civilian internees and Argentine and Turkish diplomats homeward bound from Germany.

'Baby Flat-Top' In Pacific Since '43, Pyle Finds

Men Gripe but Are Proud of Record of 'Iron Woman' — Ship Gossipy.

IN THE WESTERN PACIFIC
(Delayed)

AN aircraft carrier is a noble thing. It lacks almost everything that seems to denote nobility, yet deep nobility is there.

A carrier has no poise. It has no grace. It is top-heavy and lopsided. It has the lines of a well-fed cow.

It doesn't cut through water like a cruiser, knifing romantically along. It doesn't dance and cavort like a destroyer. It just plows. You feel it should be carrying a hod, rather than wearing a red sash.

Yet a carrier is a ferocious thing, and out of its heritage of action has grown its nobility. I believe that today every navy in the world has as its No. 1 priority, the destruction of enemy carriers. That's a precarious honor, but it's a proud one.

Long Away From Home.

MY carrier is a proud one. She's small, and you never heard of her unless you have a son or husband on her, but still she's proud and deservedly so.

She has been at sea, without returning home, longer than any other carrier in the Pacific, with one exception. She left home in November of 1943.

She is a little thing, yet her planes have shot 228 of the enemy out of the sky in air battles, and her guns have knocked down five Japanese planes in defending herself.

She is too proud to keep track of little ships she destroys, but she has sent to the bottom 29 big Japanese ships. Her bombs and aerial torpedoes have smashed into everything from the greatest Japanese battleships to the tiniest coastal schooners.

She has weathered five typhoons. Her men have not set foot on any soil bigger than a farm-sized uninhabited atoll for a solid year. They have not seen a woman, white or otherwise, for nearly 10 months. In a year and a quarter out of America, she has steamed a total of 149,000 miles!

Four different air squadrons have used her as their flying field, flown their allotted missions, and returned to America. But the ship's crew stays on—and on, and on.

She is known in the fleet as "the iron woman," because she has fought in every battle in the Pacific in the years 1944 and 1945.

Her battle-record sounds like a train-caller on the Lackawanna railroad. Listen—Kwajalein, Eniwetok, Truk, Palau, Hollandia, Saipan, Chichi Jima, Mindanao, Luzon, Formosa, Nansei Shoto, Hong Kong, Iwo Jima, Tokyo . . . and many others.

She has known disaster. Her flyers who have perished could not be counted on both hands, yet the ratio is about as it always is—about one American lost for every 10 of the exalted race sent to the exalted heaven.

She has been hit twice by Jap bombs. She has had mass burials at sea . . . with her dry-eyed crew sewing 40-millimeter shells to the corpses of their friends, as weights to take them to the bottom of the sea.

Yet she has never even returned to Pearl Harbor to patch her wounds. She slaps on some patches on the run, and is ready for the next battle. The crew in semi-jocularity cuss her chief engineer for keeping her in such good shape that they have no excuse to go back to Honolulu or America for overhaul.

Lots of Gossip.

MY CARRIER, even though classed as "light," is still a very large ship. More than 1000 men dwell on her. She is more than 700 feet long.

She has all the facilities of a small city. And all the gossip and small talk too. Latest news and rumors have reached the farthest cranny of the ship a few minutes after the captain himself knows about them. All she lacks is a hitching rack and a town pump with a handle.

She has five barbers, a laundry,

MARSHAL PAVEL A. ROTMISTROV (left), chief of Red Army tank forces, conferring with MARSHAL IVAN S. KONEV at an observation post on the First Ukrainian Army front.

By DAVID M. NICHOL
Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Correspondent Formerly in Moscow, Copyright, 1945.

A SHORT, slender man, with a taste for ballet and opera, and wearing heavily rimmed glasses that give him the appearance of a college professor more than a soldier probably will be immediately responsible for the entry of Red Army tanks into Berlin.

Even before the war, Pavel A. Rotmistrov, one of 10 children from a peasant home near Kalinin, had distinguished himself as a theoretical expert in armored warfare. Field command has enhanced his reputation and skill until he now holds the resounding title of "Chief Marshal of Tanks" in the Soviet high command.

As most other Red Army leaders, his background was little known. Even in Moscow, few persons other than his intimates attached much importance to the man who went frequently to the Bolshoi Theater until he donned his Marshal's stars and the black flashes of the tank service. Recently the Soviet Information Bulletin provided additional details.

Too young to serve in World War I—he now is only 44—Rotmistrov's career is typical of the singleness of purpose that marks most of the Red Army's commanders. After elementary schooling he enlisted in 1919, studied in the engineering school, entered infantry school in 1924, won a three-year "scholarship" in the Frunze Military Academy in 1928, and in 1938 after several commands, became a lecturer at the Red Army's Academy of Mechanization and Motorization.

Rotmistrov had a chance to test some of his theories in the Finnish war, but the German attack was the critical period. He was then chief of staff of a tank corps stationed near the Nazi border. The retreat toward Moscow was a bitter post-graduate course, but the lessons he learned were permanent.

Since then he has participated in almost every decisive tank action and at least two of them have become military classics. In one, he smashed the backbone of the Nazis' 1943 offensive—almost literally within a single day, a week after the drive began some reports say as many as 1500 tanks and armored vehicles were engaged, near the tiny Donets valley village of Prokhorovka.

That was a grinding, smashing affair. The other was an entirely different operation. Early last spring, with the Germans fighting south and west of the Dnepr River, Rotmistrov broke off an engagement, left only a small screening force and raced 50 miles around Nazi positions to bottle up 10 divisions and all their equipment. Two weeks later they were destroyed. His Marshal's baton was one of the results.

Then he was co-operating with Marshal Ivan S. Konev, whose troops now are hammering at the southeastern approaches of Berlin.

Davis Says Now Is Not Time to End Controls

Economic Stabilizer Points to Changes V-E Day Will Cause.

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP).

WILLIAM H. DAVIS, new Economic Stabilization Director, told Government officials today that "now is no time to relax either the price controls or the wage controls" developed under the Stabilization Act.

Davis released the text of a letter he had sent to Dr. George W. Taylor, his successor as chairman of the National War Labor Board; Marvin Jones, War Food Administrator, and Price Administrator Chester Bowles. Davis said that Fred M. Vinson, who left the post of Economic Stabilizer to become Federal Loan Administrator, "held the line" well.

The text of the letter follows:

"As I take over the responsibilities of Economic Stabilization Director from Judge Vinson, who had held the line so well, I think it is fitting and proper to give you this statement of my convictions. To each of you, a full measure of credit is due for the economic stabilization already achieved. Assured of your continuing support, I feel we can move forward with confidence.

"We are approaching a critical day: the final defeat of Germany. Up to now our national policy of economic stabilization has worked very well, better than anyone dared to hope. No one can doubt that V-E day will powerfully affect the swirling currents of a 200-billion-dollar war economy. A person brought up, as I was, on the Maine coast, does not let go the wheel heading into a squall. Every understanding person with a fair share of the milk of human kindness will, I believe, be doubly alert in this eleventh hour to guard against the tragic evils of inflation.

"We need to look ahead with all the foresight we can muster; to estimate as closely as we can and plan for foreseeable contingencies. But we should not relax controls until we have felt the force of the Senate Committee Splits on Bar On Political Spending by Unions, Finds PAC Did Not Violate Law

Report Recommends Removing Hatch Act Limit on Receipts and Outlays by Political Committees and $5000 Ceiling on Individual Campaign Contributions.

By ERNEST B. VACCARO
WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP).

SENATE campaign investigators divided today over a Republican proposal to prevent future political spending by unions.

They agreed there was "no clear-cut violation" of the Corrupt Practices Act on the part of the CIO Political Action Committee in the 1944 campaign, but a suggested revision of the act proposed by Senators Ferguson (Rep.), Michigan, and Ball (Rep.), Minnesota, drew Democratic majority dissent.

The Republicans sought a prohibition against "expenditures," as well as contributions, made in connection with any Federal election by a corporation, bank or labor organization."

Chairman Green (Dem.), Rhode Island, and Senators Stewart (Dem.), Tennessee, and Tunnell (Dem.), Delaware, disagreed on the ground that such an extension of the Corrupt Practices Act might limit freedom of speech, press and assembly, and that prohibitions and sanctions fail to prevent "pernicious political activity."

The clash over union election activity was in a 250-page report on the 1944 campaign filed with the Senate.

The committee, which questioned Sidney Hillman, head of the PAC, said its inquiry developed that, while the Corrupt Practices Act prohibits unions and corporations from making contributions in Federal elections, it "does not extend the bar to expenditures."

This position, taken by Hillman at the time, later was concurred in by the Attorney General, the committee asserted. Ferguson and Ball would apply the prohibition to political convention spending as well.

Final reports of the PAC and its affiliated National Citizens' Political Action Committee, showed total contributions received of $1,405,120 and expenditures of $1,327,775.

In its report the special Campaign Investigating Committee also:

1. Criticised Fulton Lewis, Washington radio commentator, for what it said was his refusal to co-operate with the committee in its effort to run down his charge that employes of a Minnesota shipbuilding concern used "threats and coercion" in solicit-

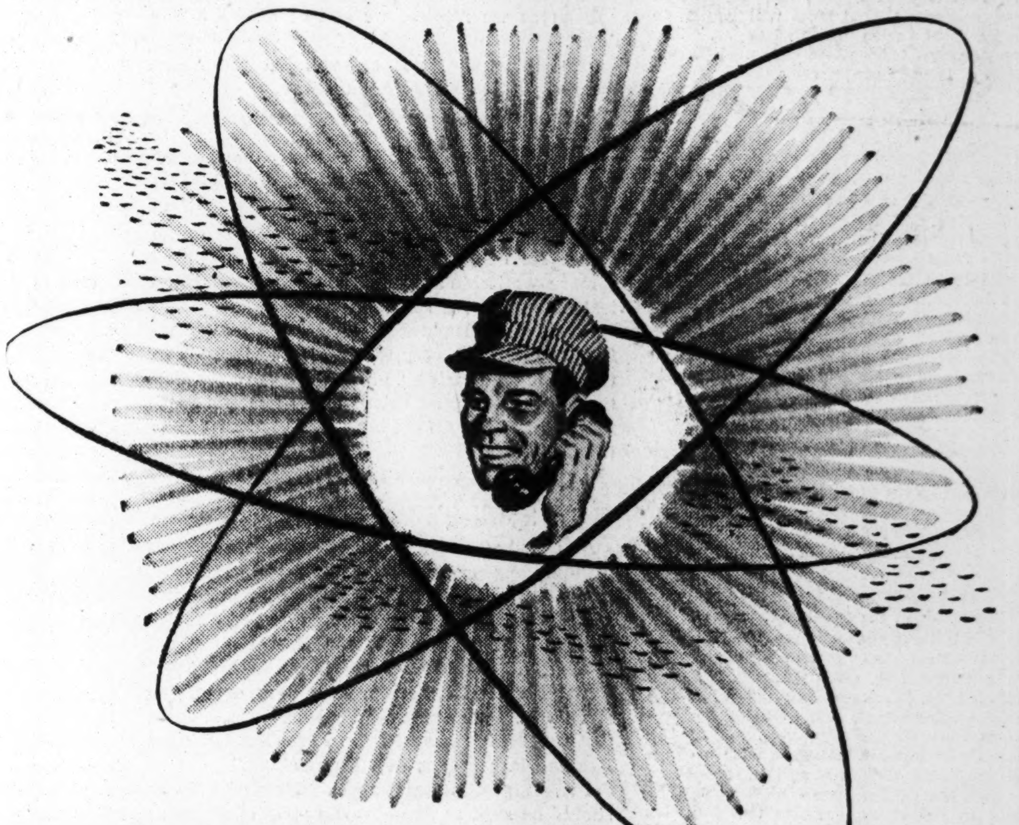
JESSE JONES AND WIFE EACH DONATED $5000 TO F. D. R. CAMPAIGN FUND

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP).

THE Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee disclosed today that Jesse Jones contributed $5000 to help elect the man who later ousted him from his job as Commerce Secretary and Federal Loan Administrator. His wife also gave $5000 to the Democratic National Committee.

A list of prominent family group contributions showed the du Ponts of Delaware giving $109,823.83 and the Pews of Pennsylvania, $96,995.96 to the Republican National Committee and various groups supporting the Republican ticket. On the Democratic side, Marshall Field, Chicago publisher and department store director, gave $14,000; Mrs. Field, $8000.



ELECTRONICS . . . are workin' on the railroad

"Train Three-One-One to yardmaster . . . Train Three-One-One to yardmaster . . ." Yes, radio communication has been tested, and it's working on the ROCK ISLAND LINES.

Almost a year ago, ROCK ISLAND was the first railroad to receive its own permit from the Federal Communications Commission to test radio in connection with the operation of its trains. Regular installations were made, engineer-to-conductor-to-flagman, train-to-yardmaster.

The ROCK ISLAND LINES established an Electronics Department. Experiments also include transmission of written messages in facsimile by radio, induction and radio telephone between engine and caboose and between stations and moving trains, portable short-wave radios that automatically bridge gaps in storm-damaged communication lines . . . and microwave-radar developments.

This is another practical example of the working of ROCK ISLAND LINES' Program of Planned Progress. Yesterday's planning provided a war-ready transportation system which is doing its wartime job with notable efficiency. Today's planning will provide finer, safer, swifter transportation . . . tomorrow!

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Bronx Cheer for Modernism

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

You are already engaged in one campaign against a public nuisance, the radio plug-uglies. I would like to suggest another war much closer home that urgently needs to be waged against another nuisance—modern art in war memorials.

We have now one block of stone topped by an Edam cheese and decorated by a cartoonist's figure seemingly seized in a most uncomfortable position by a cramp. In your picture section on March 9, you gave us a preview of the horror being conceived for the frieze of the new War Memorial.

Why is it artistic to give the Wac a face that would send the most woman-hungry GI screaming back to the Japs for relief? Why in the name of honoring the dead should the soldier and the Wac have the postures of zombies curiously weak in the knees? It is true that the front-line soldier is rarely pretty, but why must he remind us of one of Dick Tracy's opponents? Only in an asylum for physically over-developed morons can the artist have found a model for the head of his heroic figure, which seems to be trying to slap a fly somewhere off-stage to the left.

The meaningless mannerisms of the whole school of modern sculptors are boringly evident. Few of the public would insist that the artist merely copy nature, but haven't we any rights as judges, and isn't it time to exercise them? I, for one, am heartily tired of having the modern artist tell me that the ugly and the inane are art. If he and his very small group of cultists wish, let them flutter their hands and coo their unintelligible appreciation in private. If we the public fail to express our real reaction, we will deserve a war memorial that we will want to hurry past with averted eyes. My reaction to this piece of pretentious foolery is a rude noise.

FORREST T. CAMPBELL.

Some Red Cross Work

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The 1945 Red Cross drive is now in full swing. The Red Cross does many wonderful things to help our boys, especially those serving overseas. It tries to make them feel at home and not to be too homesick. It provides clubmobiles, which serve doughnuts and coffee to them.

The Red Cross provides shows and dances, and even the Red Cross girls to dance with. These girls travel all over the world to try and give the boys a feeling of home surroundings.

The Red Cross needs money to keep up its fine work, and St. Louis should want to top its quota in this drive.

A Charge of Unfairness

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Of all the prejudiced, misleading and unfair editorials concerning Poland that your paper has ever printed, the one entitled "A Stronger Poland" takes the prize as the worst. This editorial represents only Communist versions of the history of Poland. Anyone with a grain of common decency and a moderate knowledge of European history will be able to detect and refute the fallacies contained in that editorial.

You are entitled to your opinions. But you also contribute to the formation of other people's opinions. Consequently, you have a serious obligation of presenting the whole truth in so far as this is humanly possible, dispassionately, objectively and without coloring. Your editorial comments on Poland have betrayed many lapses in this respect.

On behalf of the 20,000 American Poles in St. Louis, I wish to register a vigorous objection to your unmerited and unfounded attacks upon a nation that, at the very least, has never killed an American boy in any war—which is more than can be said of several of our allies today who are being shown every consideration.

Press Representative, Polish-American Congress.

Bias Against Married Teachers

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The St. Louis Board of Education prides itself on its fairness in matters pertaining to the racial question, and justly so, but is it fair in its attitude toward married teachers? During the critical period of the man-power shortage, married women have stepped in to help ease the situation. Without their help the St. Louis school system would have suffered greatly.

My own duties have been doubled since the war, but I have received no increase in salary because of this added responsibility. As soon as the war is over, I, like a hundred or more other married women, will be thrown out of a job. Isn't this discrimination? Aren't we fighting this war to do away with discrimination and prejudice?

Kansas City has just recently rescinded its outmoded rule against married women teachers. Are we willing to admit that St. Louis is more backward than Kansas City and other large cities? Let's get wise to ourselves and insist that the Board of Education extend its fairness to all classes.

No Time for a Letdown

By every conception, the American First Army's brilliant coup in capturing the Remagen bridge has brought us appreciably closer to V-E day.

The Rhine had been expected, by Allies and Nazis alike, to be a formidable barrier. Judging by the time required to cross lesser streams, Lt. Gen. Hodges' forces seemed scheduled to be held up for weeks, if not for months. The Germans were methodically destroying every bridge as they withdrew across the Rhine. Preparations were made for an amphibious operation, lesser only in scale to the Normandy invasion of June 6.

Then came the break. The Remagen bridge was found still intact when American advance forces came out upon the heights overlooking the city. The daring and decisive action that followed is already immortal in our annals. The commanders who ordered an immediate advance, the first men who crossed the bridge in full knowledge that it was mined, the engineers who neutralized the charges—all merit the Allied world's gratitude.

Their triumph, and the speed with which it was followed up by pouring men and arms across the stream, are developments that "have seen the entire course of the war changed on the Western front and the end of the conflict brought unquestionably nearer," Don Whitehead reported yesterday in a dispatch from the Rhine front.

Naturally, there is rejoicing on the home front, and the prophets of victory by "next Tuesday" have emerged again. Though Mr. Whitehead writes glowingly of the Rhine crossing, he does not join those prophets. Instead, he injects a sobering note: "Only a super-optimist could fail to see that there is much bloody fighting ahead before Germany is beaten into total defeat."

This is the grim and unpleasant fact that we on the home front ought to remember in the midst of our jubilation.

Congress, for one, should remember the job still ahead as it stalls and compromises on the necessity for passing an adequate man-power control law to fill the factories and speed the nation's lagging war production.

The job still ahead should also be remembered by war-plant workers who are tempted to look around for a comfortable berth in civilian production. It should be particularly remembered by war-plant strikers and aggrieved workers who consider going on strike. The men on the Rhine need tons of munitions and equipment to batter their road to Berlin. Shall we let them down as they round into the home stretch?

Predictions of early victory have been frequent. They came with the first mass bombings of Germany as far back as 1942. They came again last summer during the sweep through Northern France. The predictions will be fulfilled some day, of course, and the date was advanced by the Rhine crossing, but there is the reckoning with our fiercely determined Japanese enemy still ahead.

Even as we rejoice, we cannot afford a letdown.

The Rhine has been crossed, but the Allies are not yet in Berlin—or in Tokyo.

Frustrating Pin-Ups

Actor Louis Hayward, ex-Marine, says service men are frustrated when they come home to find that most women don't look like pin-up girls. He concludes that the men would find it more profitable and realistic to pin up mechanical blueprints for study.

Putting Mr. Hayward's premise to a test, we failed to find any very frustrated service men in the immediate vicinity. Moreover, it seems that the actor forgot that this is a day of rapid technical advances. An old blueprint is less realistic than a Varga girl.

A Soldier's Plaza Suggestion

An excellent suggestion for St. Louis municipal planners appeared in the Post-Dispatch recently, in the form of a letter from Pvt. John J. Logue, stationed at Fort Leavenworth. It is Pvt. Logue's thought that when the World War II memorial is built, it should not be placed in Memorial Plaza, but on its margin, in a park or on the riverfront. St. Louis, the soldier said, should "let the Plaza devote itself to growing tall elms like the lazy greens of New England."

Pvt. Logue is dead right. Memorial Plaza should be kept as an unbroken strip of greenery amid the city's brick and asphalt. It should not be cluttered up with buildings, no matter how handsome, and it should be extended to take in the built-up blocks that now interrupt the vista to Aloe Plaza. Furthermore, the setting of Aloe Plaza, with its charming Milles Fountain, should be improved some day by elimination of the drab buildings and glaring signs that are now its background on two sides. Why not locate the new memorial to face the Milles Fountain, across the plaza from Union Station?

Those are matters for the future, but it's well to begin thinking about them now. St. Louis should be grateful to Pvt. Logue for reminding us.

Retreat by Report

The report on newscast advertising printed in today's Mirror represents a rapid disengaging movement. The National Association of Broadcasters' committee which made the report avoids attack on the main problems of advertising good taste. The committee chairman himself says "the statement . . . is admittedly one which fails to go to the roots of the matter."

Most of the suggestions of the committee are good—good enough to have been almost unnecessary. For instance, most broadcasters already restrict the length of newscast plugs. However, the committee fails to be specific about two major problems of commercial bad taste in newscasts. These are (1) interruption of news broadcasts with commercial plugs and (2) sponsorship of these broadcasts by objectionable advertisers.

The committee is willing to advise radio that "sponsorship of news broadcasts be determined with the same judgment of good taste and seriousness which governs the preparation . . . of the news itself." The committee is not willing to say that news sponsorship by advertisers of pills, kidney remedies and deodorants is an affront to the public. As for interrupting plugs, the committee is content to advise proper placement of these, and to note that many stations are doing away with them.

We think that the big networks should take the lead in ending interrupting plugs and objectionable sponsorship of news. Distasteful commercials threaten the future of radio's fine news service. Instead of attacking this problem, the NAB committee retreated, and not entirely in good order.

Wall Street or Main Street?

While Bretton Woods has been marking time legislatively, it is becoming increasingly clear that the American people aren't yet hypnotized by the Wall Street bankers' barrage of technical criticisms of the proposed International Monetary Fund, well termed by Assistant Secretary of State Acheson "a substitute for international monetary warfare."

They now know that the much-heralded Burgess report backing the bank but blasting the fund was not laid before the American Bankers' Association in convention assembled, but is the work of a big-banker-dominated commission under the association's auspices, and was issued without prior approval by A.B.A.'s rank and file. Thomas L. Stokes, Scripps-Howard columnist, says this illustrates the way the big bankers are trying to kill the Bretton Woods plan because it might cut into their profits and power in the postwar world.

The bankers of Main Street promptly registered their disagreement with their Wall Street cousins. The Independent Bankers' Association, with national headquarters in Sauk Center, Minn. —whose Main Street was immortalized by Sinclair Lewis—a body recognized as representing the country banker's point of view, has approved the fund as well as the bank. It reported to Congress that the technical details of the fund "are as sound and as workable as it is possible to formulate in advance of an actual trial and tested experience."

This, we believe, represents the mood of the people. The Main Street banker is close enough to them to appreciate their determination that America won't upset the international apple-cart this time because of either isolationism or just plain greed.

The little banker knows what Secretary Morgenthau meant last week by his appeal to the House Committee on Banking and Currency for the quick passage of the legislation to implement our participation in both fund and bank. He knows how important it is that the assembling delegates to the San Francisco Conference of the United Nations, beginning April 25, have this Exhibit A of our sincerity in the cause of international economic peace.

Concord on Dumbarton

An old and minute form of democracy has gone to work in behalf of a new and grander form. A dispatch from Concord, N. H., tells how the citizens of that State turned out for town meetings, held in colonial style, to vote on American participation in a world peace agency.

Town moderators report a ratio of nearly 20 votes to one in favor of the peace plan. What the Concord dispatch means is this: people who understand the principles of the town meeting also understand the principles of Dumbarton Oaks.

Trade Barrier In Insurance

One of the best things in the Supreme Court decision that insurance is commerce is that it will end a form of interstate trade barrier. In Missouri, that barrier consists of a 2 per cent tax on premium collections from which companies organized in the State are exempt. Now Missouri must apparently either remove this discrimination in favor of "home" companies or lose some $2,500,000 annual revenue now collected from "foreign" companies. A bill to do the former is in course of preparation, according to a Jefferson City dispatch yesterday.

The alternative seems unthinkable. If the Legislature refuses to act, the foreign companies will in all probability refuse to pay the tax. Thereupon they would be barred from doing business in the State. Naturally they would not take that lying down; they would go to court to enjoin Missouri from restraining interstate commerce. There could, we should think, be only one outcome: decision against the State, after protracted litigation and loss of the tax revenues for the period during which the existing discrimination continued.

Hence it is urgent that the Legislature end the discrimination before May 1, on which date the foreign companies might stop paying and start the State on the disastrous alternative course. And Missouri insurance companies should not oppose the passage. Though they stand to lose a special advantage they now enjoy in Missouri, they would surely gain as much or more in other states where they are now discriminated against. It is in the ultimate interest of insurance companies and everyone else that every kind of interstate trade barrier be struck down, for it is by unhindered trade among the states that greater prosperity comes—including greater ability to buy insurance.

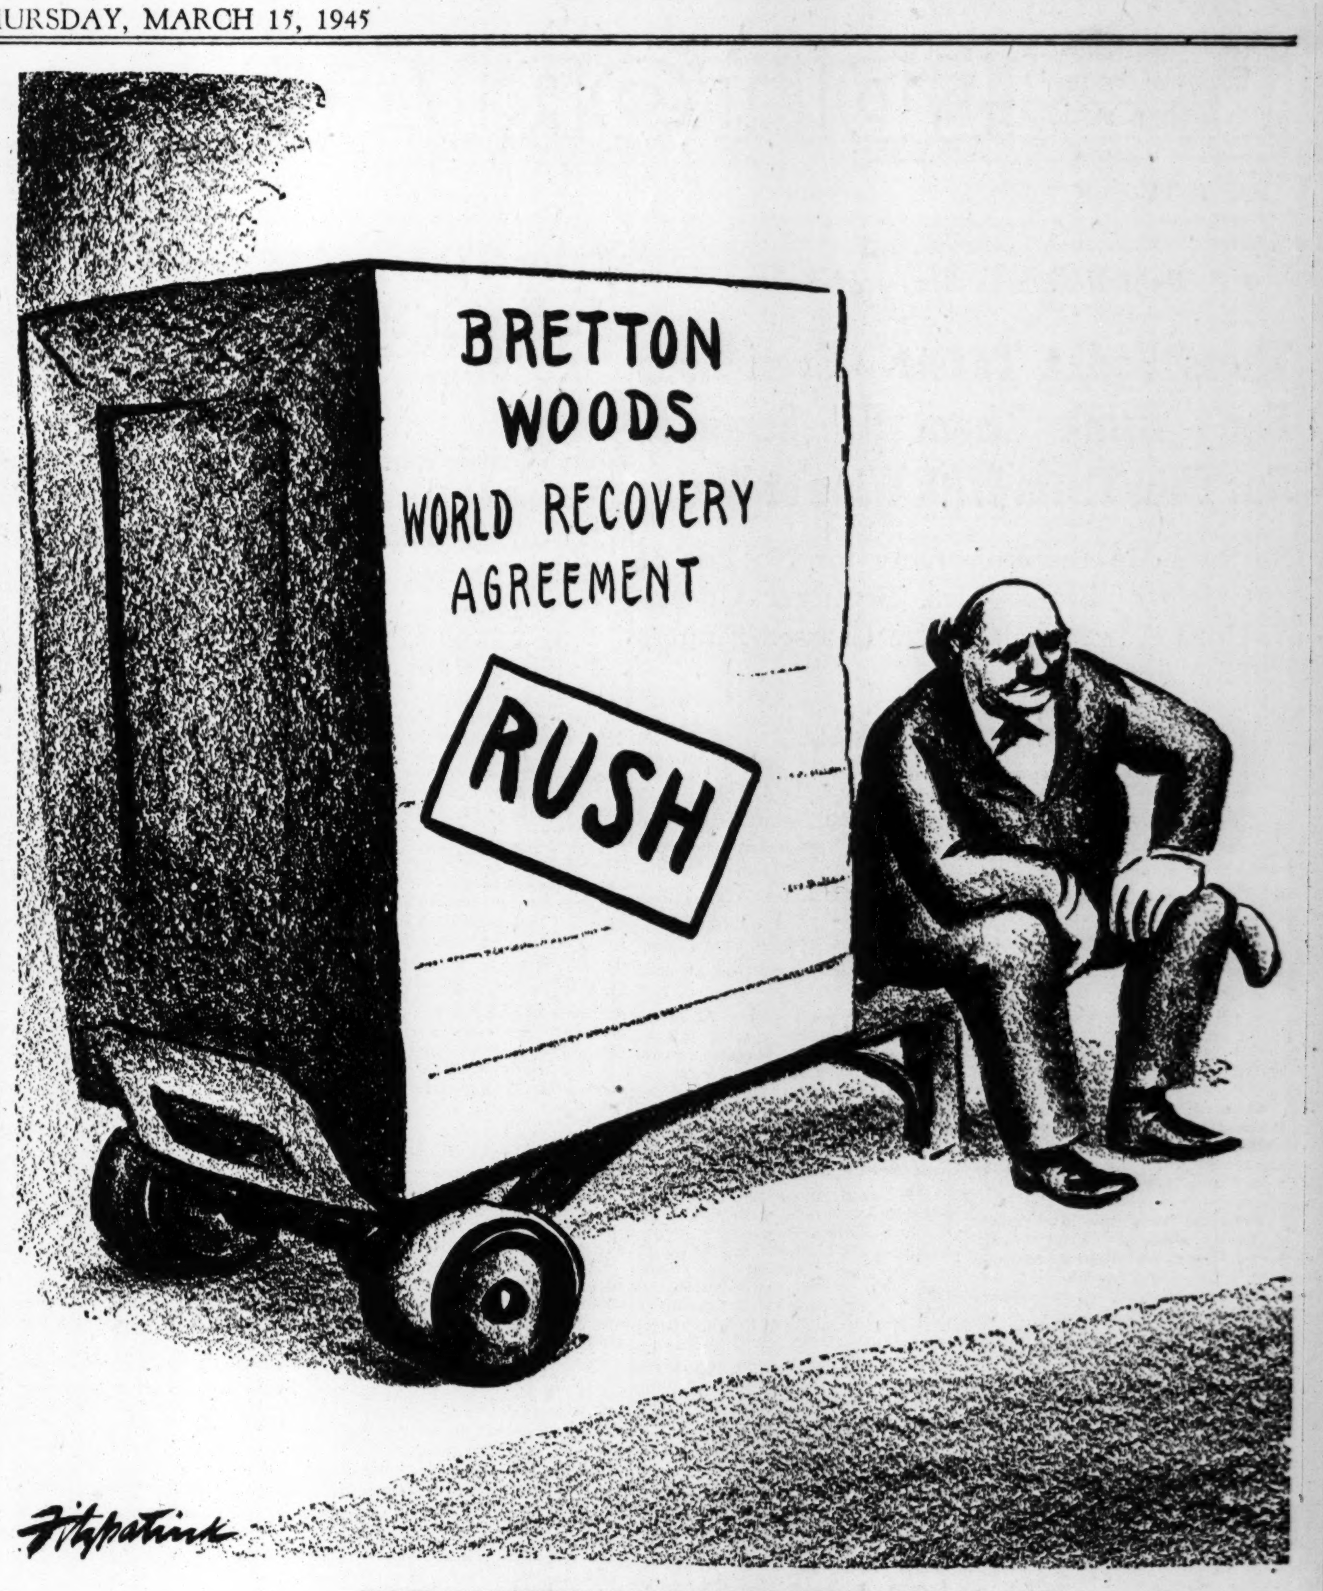
Two Thoughts on the Ides

Day of pain though it is, it would be ungracious to let this 1945 Ides of March slip away without paying tribute to the Federal law's exempting $500 of income for each dependent instead of the less generous previous $350. Certainly the larger figure comes nearer the actual cost of maintaining a dependent. All to the good, too, is the recognition that a family putting a child through college needs tax relief at least as much as one with a child in grade school.

The Ides also calls to notice an interesting difference between the State of Missouri and the United States of America. According to the chivalrous Legislature, a wife is worth $1000 to any man. Is it misogyny, perhaps, that causes Congress to value her at only $500? Congress, to be sure, values children at $500 per, whereas the Legislature, evidently confident that Missouri's population increase will take care of itself, rates them at only $200.

Five, two or any number of hundreds, however, it is, as we said, a day of sorrow. One might suggest just forgetting the whole thing—but whose budget can?



HOW CONGRESS DELIVERS THE GOODS

Radio Men Consider Plug-Uglies

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Recommendations for proper advertising in news programs are made by committee of National Association of Broadcasters, but report lacks specific stand on middle commercials or objectionable sponsorship; does not go to roots of matter, its chairman concedes.

From Broadcasting Magazine

Editor's Note: Recommendations on advertising in news broadcasts are contained in a report by the National Association of Broadcasters' News Committee, which includes several station managers and network news directors. The radio trade magazine, Broadcasting, says the report was accompanied by a letter from Karl Koerper, committee chairman and managing director of KMBC, Kansas City. His letter says, in part:

"The statement . . . is admittedly one which fails to go to the roots of the matter. The 'roots' are whether it is in the public interest to deny broadcast facilities to all sellers and/or manufacturers of patent medicines, to the most obnoxious or none at all. . . . Of this we are certain: If the industry fails to judge the type of sponsorship of news programs with the same considerations of good taste and seriousness which govern the preparation and presentation of the news, the public in due course will take matters in its own hands."

The part of the committee report dealing with newscast advertising follows.

In the light of the industry's obligation to the public, is every type of business acceptable for sponsoring the news?

It is our belief that, to a greater extent than is the case with any other type of radio program, the type of sponsorship must be given careful consideration. What might be acceptable sponsorship for one type of program might very well be questionable sponsorship for a news program.

It is suggested in all sincerity that the type of sponsorship of news programs be determined with the same good taste and seriousness which governs the preparation and presentation of the news itself.

It is felt that better over-all service would result if commercial copy of news programs would "flow" like news copy itself. It should be prepared in a simple, clear, concise and straightforward manner to match good news writing. The commercial message should be live copy; the use of the transcribed musical jingle and other novelty type should be discouraged with the idea of ultimate elimination.

Length of "Commercials"

Length of the commercial in news programs should be severely limited with particular attention given to shortening the opening. Short commercials build good will for both sponsor and station.

Simply as a guide, it is suggested that stations think in terms of a maximum of 150 and 250 words of commercial, respectively, for five- and 10-minute news programs, these figures to include open and close.

Stations which may sell three one-minute commercials to three different sponsors, in an "unsponsored" five-minute news program, are violating the NAB Code as amended April 28, 1943. Such practice is also inconsistent with News Committee recommendations. On five-minute shows, a short open and close is an ideal arrangement.

Commercial sponsor identification and the commercial message should in no way be made an integral part of the news. Sponsor message should not use tie-ins with news copy or other artificial devices to attract listeners' attention.

The use of a separate announcer is helpful when commercials are given. This is not considered mandatory as long as a clear-cut identification of the commercial segment of the broadcast is given.

In common practice, there are variations, predicated on local conditions, as to whether news commercials are given before, after or within newscasts. The manner in which the commercial is placed is more important than mere mechanical arrangement. The position of a commercial with respect to its proximity to certain subject matter of the news is of utmost importance, particularly in wartime.

Where to Put Plugs

When placed within the newscast, the commercial may be delivered at the conclusion of any item, but there should always be a clean-cut line of demarcation between the news and commercial copy.

An individual news story should never be interrupted for the sponsor's message. It is equally important to guard against improper placement from the standpoint of the nature of the news immediately preceding the commercial. For example: the commercial should not immediately follow reports of casualties, ship sinkings, domestic disasters, etc.

The number of stations reporting elimination of middle commercials is increasing. A station which embarked on such a policy reports that its news sponsors are now adhering to this plan and are finding it completely successful.

MAINE AND THE NATION

From the Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Advices from Augusta, State of Maine, indicate that the State may decide to go with the nation in the matter of holding elections. It has been conclusively proved that the nation does not by any means always go as Maine goes, anyhow, and the Maine habit of holding State elections in September and going to the polls again in November in a presidential year is double trouble and added expense.

If there was ever any political value in the Pine Tree State's early elections, it has long since vanished, as witness the fact that it has been possible to rewhittle the slogan and make it read "as Maine goes so goes Vermont" within the last few years. In any case, legislation to change the date of Maine elections from September to November has been introduced.

Philosophy Is Made Intelligible In Book by a Scottish Professor

"An Introduction to Philosophy," by W. A. Sinclair. (Oxford University Press, New York.)

This book of 152 pages is a gem. The author, lecturer in philosophy at the University of Edinburgh, tells us that the first five chapters will be accepted by most contemporary philosophers, as outlining the field of inquiry. The following five chapters give an outline of his own views on the problem of knowledge, and with these, he says, most contemporary philosophers will not agree.

Most of us have taken the works of the master philosophers and tried to understand them, usually with exasperation as the result. Sinclair explains why this is so. We have read "popularizations" of philosophy, which have left us in complete bewilderment. Sinclair explains about that, too.

"No one philosopher can be understood, considered by himself," he says. "If you read the great philosophers in something like chronological order, you will find the views of each appear as impressively plain common sense; e. g., what you yourself would have concluded in the circumstances."

Furthermore: "Discovering what is best to direct your attention to is the work of the biologist, or physicist, or philosopher, as such. To use language to carry out the directing is the art of the literary craftsman, and there is no necessary connection between the two. Men who are good at the one are not necessarily good at the other. The naturally easy exploiter is seldom given to original thinking, and the original thinker is irritated by the detailed work of exposition. It is a melancholy commonplace that most of the greater philosophers—for instance, Kant—did not so enjoy exposition, with the result that their books are extremely difficult to read."

The author believes it is his business, as a philosopher, to take you by the hand (if you want to be taken by the hand) and lead you to the point from which you can see for yourself what it is all about. Then you will be on your own—making "the attempt to understand the universe, and ourselves, and our place in the universe, whether for theoretical interest or for material practical purposes," which attempt IS philosophy.

This little book is the continuation of the grand campaign to bring learning to the ordinary man. Learning is "selecting" the relevant. Education is an internal, individual process, taking place in a society. It is observation, and thought.

All the important stuff that the wisest man knows can be quickly imparted to a receptive mind. This is the common sense of democracy. The breakdown of the monopoly of "learning" goes on apace. The channels of communication are widened and extended, until "every man shall be filled with light."

Thank you, Prof. Sinclair.

Stephen Benet's Radio Plays

When the war came, Stephen Vincent Benet put aside his work to contribute everything he could to the nation's service. Part of his time went into writing a series of patriotic radio scripts, now collected in "We Stand United" (Farrar & Rinehart). Mr. Benet was so masterful a writer that his plays have an inspiring quality even to a reader who does not have the benefit of the stirring sound effects and the voices of outstanding actors with which radio presented them. The poet's last energies went into these productions, and the book in which they appear is a lasting memorial of his devotion to America.

WALTER LIPPMANN

Peace-Making Not on San Francisco Agenda

THE State Department is making every effort to see to it that before the San Francisco conference our people are well informed about the Dumbarton Oaks proposals. But I cannot help thinking that the department is devoting too much attention and emphasis to the objectives, which few are criticising, and to the mechanics of the organization, which is not of the first importance.

The point which is, I believe, least understood, and therefore most needs careful and sustained explanation, is that the Dumbarton Oaks charter is not now an instrument for making peace but one for keeping the peace.

Though eventually the distinction between these two operations will disappear, we shall confuse everything if we do not hold to it firmly at San Francisco and for some years after the fighting ceases.

Problems of the Treaty.

When we look at some of the matters that have to be decided and acted upon, we can best see why the making of this peace is not the business at San Francisco and of the new world organization.

There are the new frontiers of Germany, of Japan and of their satellites. There is the problem of governing Germany in the period which begins with the disintegration of her armies.

There are the problems of provisional governments in liberated countries. There are the problems of the territories which Germany and Japan are to lose, and how they are to be administered.

There is the whole complicated task of relief, rehabilitation, reconstruction and of how the nations are to demobilize and reconvert and how a normal trade is to be established.

These, and many other similar problems, are the substance of peace-making, and they cannot be taken in hand and dealt with by the world organization.

Issues Now at Hand.

For one thing, the organization does not as yet exist, whereas many of these problems have already had to be dealt with, at least in some measure. For another thing, the world organization, precisely because it covers the world, cannot deal effectively with the particular and regional issues that arise in making peace.

The peace will be made by a series of treaties and conventions embodying concrete decisions on the unsettled issues arising from this war. The peace will not be made, as so many suppose, at San Francisco, or by the Security Council which will be instituted at San Francisco. These particular treaties and conventions will define the rights and duties of the nations that sign and ratify them, and it is here that most of the immediate practical questions about the small, the middle-sized and great powers will be answered concretely.

Commitments as respects Germany, as respects Japan, will not be defined in the Dumbarton Oaks charter but in specific treaties. Because there will be many specific treaties dealing with most of the concrete situations that need international regulation, it reflects a misunderstanding of Dumbarton Oaks to treat the charter as if it were the whole scheme of international relationships.

One of the great unfinished chapters of the Dumbarton Oaks plan is to define the relationship between the world organization and the local, the specific and regional agreements and institutions which, like Pan-America, already exist, or will be created.

Part of Our Experience.

The American people have had a long experience of this very problem of the relation between a Federal Constitution and state constitutions, between constitutional and statute and common law. The experience will stand us in good stead if we draw on it now.

From this experience we can learn also a lesson of the greatest pertinence; namely, that the initial text of a constitution does not establish a constitutional order. An order has to be developed by judicial decision, by legislation, and also by usage and custom.

In international relations, politics is called diplomacy, and we must not imagine that, having created the world organization, diplomacy will disappear. Diplomacy will continue operating through the Security Council and the Assembly, but also outside these institutions in direct intercourse among the nations concerned in particular problems.

That is another reason for not over-emphasizing the mechanism of voting and of membership. For diplomatic intercourse will be the real determinant of how the mechanism is to operate.

MARQUIS CHILDS

ROME.

AN endless source of speculation here is why the Germans kept large numbers of their best troops in Northern Italy when, by withdrawing to the passes of the Alps, they could have held that frontier with only a few divisions.

The industrial plants of the North are one answer. But the volume of production in Milan and other industrial centers is not sufficient to justify such an illogical use of military man power. In fact, recent reports indicate that, through repeated Allied bombing and through sabotage by the Italian underground, production in the Po Valley has been greatly curtailed.

No Passage to Reich.

It may suffice to supply Marshal Kesselring's 26 or 27 divisions, but there is little left over. If there were any surplus, continuous bombing of the passes of the Alps has made it all but impossible to get it into Hitler's besieged Reich.

The decline of production in German-held Italy, by far the most productive part of the country, points up the extremely effective work being done by Italian Partisans. The Partisans in the rugged Apennines have shown extraordinary courage and tenacity. By their knowledge, skill and boldness, they have saved countless American lives.

Supplies are dropped to them from the air under conditions which subject flyers to great hazards. For obvious reasons, little can be said about this now.

The Italians are helping the Allied war effort in many ways. Military men with whom I have talked in this theater almost all agree that Italian divisions are performing a valuable service. The pressure on the Allied line that runs across the peninsula is great, and Italian regiments have helped to relieve that pressure.

Busy Behind the Lines.

Behind the lines, in connection with the vast tasks of supply and transportation, you see them working everywhere. It is true that their tempo is slow. As one GI put it, the man who said Rome wasn't built in a day must have watched Italians at work. But their help in the hard drudgery of the war has meant an important saving in Allied man power.

Italian service troops, using mules, have carried munitions and supplies right up to foxholes over almost impassable mountain trails. Again, their knowledge and experience have counted for a great deal.

All this is evidence of the continuing vitality of the Italian people in spite of Fascism, disgrace and defeat. Perhaps, when once again the North and the South are united, there will be a new focus for Italian hope, which today seems to have died utterly.

The destruction in the North will, if possible, be even worse than the destruction in the South. What has not been knocked down by Allied bombing will be demolished by the Germans, who have had ample time to prepare for the kind of demolition they do with Teutonic thoroughness.

Another possible reason, incidentally, why Kesserling's forces have held on in Northern Italy is the fact that more than 400,000 Italian workers, including many of the ablest and most highly skilled, are working in Germany. To abandon all of Italy would be to risk the loss of those workers' productive capacity.

The road back for the Italian people is bound to be a long one. Their moral bankruptcy is painfully evident. Even hard-boiled GIs are shocked by young Italian boys who, in parts of Southern Italy, solicit on the streets for their sisters.

The extent of thievery is appalling. United States property must be protected at all times. If jeeps and command cars cannot be stolen because they are locked and double-locked, then leather is cut off the seats and every part removed that can be pried off. Pilfering of American supplies is serious. Unfortunately, here as in France, some Americans in uniform have participated in looting and in rackets which extend into the upper reaches of the black market.

Two Types of Reaction.

Those who have followed the progress of the liberation from the beginning say there are geographical variations in the reactions of the Italians. In Florence, for example, something of the pride of Northern Italy enters in.

One curious example of differing reactions is cited. Currently, one of the most popular of the old films that were barred in Fascist Italy is Charlie Chaplin's "The Great Dictator," with Jack Oakie's broad take-off of Mussolini. In Naples, audiences almost literally roll on the floor with laughter. But in Florence, in the North, they weep in shame at the thought that they ever surrendered their freedom to such a gross caricature of a human being as Mussolini.

Italy today is a museum of the horrors of Fascism. No worse punishment could be devised for Mussolini, who now hides behind Hitler, than to bring him back to see the plight of the people he debauched and deceived.

The liberation of the North may be long in coming. There are many who believe that organized resistance by the Germans will persist in Italy even after it has ended elsewhere. And Italy's ordeal will only just have begun when the entire country is finally freed.

The recent escape of Gen. Roatta, former chief of staff under the Fascist regime, and the violence that followed, are evidence, on the one hand, of the weakness of the Government and, on the other, of the unrest that is close beneath the surface of the country. The Government could not cope with the situation but for the presence of Allied troops.

YANKS PUT ON SHOW OF OWN IN CAPTURED COLOGNE THEATER

St. Louisan in Cast at Impromptu Matinee With Opera House Costumes.

There was an unscheduled matinee at the Cologne Opera House, shortly after the city's fall. Battle-stained American soldiers, among them a St. Louisan, captured the damaged building in the German Rhine city, and then went to town on the glittering costumes and musical instruments.

Pfc. Robert H. Jones, 4171 Blaine avenue, was a member of the whooping un-Wagnerian cast, and the "Siegfried" of the ad lib music festival rendered the "St. Louis Blues," an Associated Press dispatch reported.

The dressing room corridor was the stage, and there were seven pianos going at once—most of them playing "Chopsticks." For two hours the boys went at it—"like a fancy dress ball on the Bowery," the correspondent wrote—then they put back the costumes, had a little wine and crawled into bunks which the German garrison in the opera house had slept in the night before. Sgt. William G. Cox, Centralia, Ill., and Pvt. Robert M. Thorson, Hinsdale, Ill., were other participants.

WOMAN TAXICAB DRIVER DIES; GUIDED OZARK HILLS TOURISTS

BRANSON, Mo., March 15 (AP).—Mrs. Pearl Sparkey Spurlock, who long will be remembered by tourists of that section of the Ozarks made famous by Harold Bell Wright's novel, "Shepherd of the Hills," died Tuesday in Altamont, Mo.

One of the first woman taxicab drivers in America, Mrs. Spurlock drove tourists along cow trails and down creek banks to see the landmarks described in Wright's books. It was largely through her efforts of the last 30 years that many of the hills' traditions have been kept alive. She was also author of a book, "Over the Old Ozark Trails."

NAZI PRISONERS COMPLAINING OF SHORTAGE OF MUNITIONS

LONDON, March 15 (AP). — Lord Selborne, Minister of Economic Warfare, addressing the London Rotary Club yesterday, said Germany's coal production now was half what it was three months ago and its steel production less than one-fifth that of a year ago. German prisoners, he said, are complaining for the first time of a lack of munitions.

PLEA FOR TOLERANCE MADE BY DR. COMPTON

Noted Scientist Says Wartime Unity Must Continue in Peace.

Americans must maintain their present wartime unity in time of peace if they are to remain free, and this can be achieved only through co-operation by Catholics, Jews and Protestants, Dr. Arthur H. Compton, the noted scientist and Nobel prize winner, declared in a plea for religious tolerance last night.

The University of Chicago physicist addressed the St. Louis Round Table of the National Conference of Christians and Jews at a dinner meeting at Hotel Chase.

"It is a law of social evolution that any part of society in which people will not co-operate declines in influence and becomes weak, to be displaced by a more unified group," he said. "To gain the co-operation necessary for preservation of our nation, we must have a firm determination to love our neighbors and must be inspired by a common objective.

"It is the joint task of Catholics, Jews and Protestants to give us guiding vision and show us what are the things which will contribute to a fuller life. An international challenge faces our nation, which is entering an era in which we must share the responsibility of maintaining world peace. To preserve unity through the co-operation which stems from religious tolerance is the only way we ourselves can remain free."

Contributions by Science.

Dr. Compton, who won the Nobel prize in physics in 1927, pointed out that science is making nations increasingly interdependent, and stressed the need for co-operation in a specialized society.

In an interview before the meeting, he expressed the opinion that the situation of Jews in the United States had improved, partly as a result of sympathy for victims of persecution in Europe, and partly through constructive efforts in this country. There have been "shifts" in the mutual attitude of Protestants and Catholics, he continued, but apparent rivalries at home have a compensating factor in greater unity among those on the fighting fronts. He said relations of Negroes and whites would hinge on the extent to which the Negro employment problem was solved.

Regional Director Installed.

Dr. Compton, who is co-chairman of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, formally installed L. K. Bishop as director of the central region of the conference and Virgil L. Border as St. Louis director.

The Rev. Andrew W. Gottschall of Washington discussed the work being done among men and women in uniform.

A feature of the meeting was the reading of a tribute to the late Boyle O. Rodes, who was co-chairman of the St. Louis Round Table.

'BABY FLAT-TOP' IN PACIFIC SINCE '43, PYLE FINDS

a general store. Deep in her belly she carries tons of bombs. She has a daily newspaper. She carries fire-fighting equipment that a city of 50,000 back in America would be proud of.

She has a preacher; she has three doctors and two dentists; she has two libraries, and movies every night except when they're in battle. And still she is a tiny thing, as big carriers go. She is a "baby flat-top." She is little. And she is proud.

She has been out so long that her men put their ship above their captain. They have seen captains come and go, but they and the ship stay on forever.

They aren't romantic about their long stay out here. They hate it, and their gripes are long and loud. They yearn pathetically to go home: But down beneath, they are proud—proud of their ship and proud of themselves. And you would be too.

impending change and had a chance to check our policies in the light of its observed and measured effect upon the economic currents.

"Now is no time to relax either the price controls or the wage controls developed under the stabilization act of Oct. 2, 1942. It is rather a time to push ahead with all the seven points of the stabilization policy announced in the President's message to Congress of April 27, 1942."

SENATORS SPLIT ON BAR ON UNION POLITICAL OUTLAYS

ing Roosevelt campaign funds.

2. Recommended removal as "utterly unrealistic" of an existing Hatch Act ceiling of three million dollars on receipts and expenditures by political committees and a $5000 limitation on individual campaign contributions.

Senator Green told the Senate in an address that 25 million dollars was collected and 23 million spent in last year's campaign. He contended that Federal prohibitions had been ineffective in preventing large expenditures.

"The amount of campaign contributions is not the most important matter, but sources of these contributions and the manner in which they are expended are more important," he said.

"Consequently, it is felt that greater emphasis should be placed upon publicity—full and timely publicity. When the public knows where campaign funds are coming from and for what purposes they are spent, then the public is in a position to resist effectively any attempt to purchase a Federal office."

The committee said that, while the Republican National Committee reported spending $2,828,651 and the Democratic National Committee $2,056,121, groups supporting the national tickets spent as follows:

Democrats: Independent committees, groups or individuals, $2,327,659; intrastate independent groups, $1,024,648, and state committees, $2,033,370.

Republicans: Independent committees, groups or individuals, $609,291; intrastate independent groups $493,905 and state committees, $9,260,528.

3. Reported it had referred to the Attorney General testimony concerning a complaint by Senator Taft (Rep.), Ohio, against distribution by the Ohio CIO State Council of a campaign pamphlet entitled, "He wanted to do business with Hitler and Hirohito—the amazing story of Senator Taft."

In doing so, the committee said it recommended a test case to determine whether circulation of the pamphlet could be considered a Democratic campaign contribution under the Corrupt Practices Act.

The committee absolved Taft of CIO complaints that he spent excessive amounts in his November election campaign and that he used his position to prevent the CIO from using radio broadcasting facilities in Ohio.

4. Disclosed it had turned over to the Justice Department information gathered in an investigation of Senator O'Daniel's weekly newspaper, the W. Lee O'Daniel News. O'Daniel is a Democrat from Texas. The committee said the publication collected more than $191,000 and asked the Justice Department to examine the matter in relation to the Corrupt Practices Act.

5. Reported excessive spending in the Arkansas Democratic primary, "fraud and glaring irregularities" at the polls there, but not "a scintilla of evidence" that the election of Democratic Senator Fulbright was affected in any way.

6. Said it had turned over to the Justice Department "for consideration and study of the proper enforcement agency" a transcript of testimony concerning the American Democratic National Committee, organized to oppose a fourth term.

The committee said this group, of which former Secretary of War Harry Woodring of Kansas once served as chairman, solicited funds with the understanding that contributions would not be publicized. After a hearing, it added, the A. D. N. C. agreed to file a complete report of its collections with the clerk of the House.

7. Said it found no violation of the law in its inquiry into the publication by the Trade Union News Publishing Co., Inc., Philadelphia, and distribution of a booklet entitled "Clear Everything with Sidney."

"Jan Valtin" in Philippines.

IN THE PHILIPPINES, March 15 (AP).—Richard J. Krebs, who wrote the anti-Fascist book "Out of the Night" under the pen name of Jan Valtin, is a Private First Class with the Twenty-fourth Infantry Division in the Philippines. He volunteered for Army service in August, 1943, and has been overseas about a year.

MVA BILL LIKELY TO BE REVITALIZED IN MISSOURI HOUSE

Committee Accepts 3 Amendments, One of Which Would Restore Emergency Clause.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 15.—Restoration of effectiveness to the Ricketts bill, creating an investigative body to tour the Tennessee Valley Authority area and make a recommendation to the Legislature as to whether a similar authority should be established for the Missouri River basin, was nearer realization today, after the House Flood Control Committee indicated favorable action would be taken on revitalizing amendments.

Sponsored by Senator Claude B. Ricketts of St. Louis, the measure was stripped of its effectiveness in passing the Senate when the emergency clause failed of adoption. Without the emergency clause the bill could not become effective until sometime next year.

Final House committee action on the measure was deferred until next week to let Republican Floor Leader Randall R. Kitt of Chillicothe appear before the body.

However, the committee accepted three amendments to the bill, one of which would restore the emergency clause. The other two amendments were prepared by Senator William M. Quinn of Maywood, chief Senate opponent of the measure, who said he would accept the bill if the amendments were adopted.

Quinn's amendments are largely technical, with one limiting the commission's investigations to the TVA and excluding a tour of investigation of the Missouri River basin.

Apparently the only obstacle to passage of the bill in the House is the desire of Speaker Howard Elliott of St. Louis County and Kitt for appointment of the four legislative members of the commission to be taken from the Governor and placed in the hands of the presiding officers of the two houses.

This would leave appointment of the three other members to the Governor, who, as the bill now stands, has power to appoint all members of the commission.

Senator Ricketts has contended that such action would dissipate responsibility of the commission and that the appointive power should be centered in the Governor, who would be responsible for appointment of qualified persons.

Despite urging by Elliott and Kitt to acquire appointive power of the legislative members, Speaker Pro tem Murray Thompson, who has been presiding in the House the last month because of Elliott's absence, asked the committee to recommend passage of the measure. Thompson said he would handle the bill in the House in order to get it in shape for agreement by the Senate.

The committee yesterday also recommended passage of legislation authorizing the Governor to designate a state agency to cooperate with the Federal Government in carrying out the flood control bill passed by Congress last December. The measure provides for the agency named by the Governor to act as go-between for the State and Federal Government.

The bill to impose a 2 per cent tax on premiums of Missouri insurance companies in an effort to prevent repudiation of $2,500,000 of taxes by companies organized in other states, was introduced in the Senate today by Senator M. C. Matthes and several others.

The outside companies, which have been subject to the tax for many years, are threatening to refuse to pay May 1 on the ground that, under a recent decision of the United States Supreme Court, insurance is commerce, and that the tax on them is unconstitutional as a discriminatory charge against interstate commerce.

By taxing the Missouri companies on the same basis as foreign companies officials of the State Insurance Department believe there will be no basis for the charge of discrimination and that the foreign companies will have no legal ground for refusal to pay their tax.

'BUSTER' WORTMAN ARRESTED FOR CRONIN CASE QUESTIONING

Frank (Buster) Wortman, former convict and Shelton gangster, was held today by police for questioning in the attempted assassination last Dec. 30 of Timothy R. (Ted) Cronin, boss of the AFL Service Car Drivers' Union, and his bodyguard, William (Bozo) Remphry. Both were wounded when nine shots were fired into Cronin's car parked beside his home at 6201 Itaska street.

Wortman was arrested yesterday by detectives at Broadway and Popular streets in his red Cadillac automobile and was found to have $414 in cash in his pocket. He denied knowing anything about the Cronin shooting and said he now operates a tavern in East St. Louis, police said.

Police are checking to determine whether a hole in the left front ventilator window of Wortman's car was made by a bullet. Wortman also was held for investigation by the Office of Price Administration because of two new tires on his automobile. A man arrested with Wortman also is being held. The companion was carrying $403 in cash.

CHARGES OF ASSAULTING DOG CATCHER NOLLE PROSSED

Charges of assault and violation of the rabies control act against Mrs. Erma Noble and her husband, Charles Noble, growing out of an attack on a St. Louis County dog catcher last Feb. 15 were nolle prossed yesterday by Justice of the Peace Roy Erickson of Normandy Township.

The incident occurred when James Blair, the dog catcher, attempted to pick up the unlicensed bulldog of the Nobles in front of their home at 3600 Calvert avenue, Overland. Mrs. Noble had been charged with attacking Blair while her husband hid the dog.

Justice Erickson acted on the request of the Prosecuting Attorney's office when informed that the Rabies Control Office did not wish to prosecute the case.

Len Schulte, New Infielder, Figures Prominently in Sewell's Plans

Gutteridge Joins Club For Indoor Practice

By W. J. McGoogan

Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., March 15.—Rain this morning forced the Browns indoors after three days of outdoor workouts. Later in the day the sun came out but the field was too wet and the drill was confined to the Arena, where the club did so much of its training last spring.

Don Gutteridge, veteran second baseman, arrived in camp and immediately went to work. He had been ill recently with a bad cold but he displayed his usual amount of energy the minute he got into uniform.

Gutteridge was accompanied by Teddy Atkinson, 16-year-old high school boy who attended camp last spring and hopes one day to be a member of the Browns.

The ground in the Arena is covered with clay but it, too, was a little damp, making footing sticky, but that didn't prevent the pitchers from throwing the ball nor the batting cage from operating, so Manager Luke Sewell was pleased with being able to accomplish as much as he did.

Hurler Hit by Batted Ball.

Al La Macchia was tossing the ball in the batting cage to Junior Stephens, who hit one back at the pitcher on a line. La Macchia barely had time to turn his hip into the drive and at that got a severe wallop.

Sewell said recently that he thought his club had brought up more promising youngsters this spring than any other in the American League. That is, he thought the men the Browns had added would do the team more good than those acquired by any other.

Leonard Schulte, St. Charles, Mo., an infielder, was one of those Luke had in mind when he made the statement, and Sewell has the support of Schulte's Toledo teammates that Len will be a help to the American League Champions of 1944.

Schulte is not a big man. He is 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighs 160 pounds. He doesn't give you the impression of having much power at the plate because in batting practice he doesn't hit many long balls.

Batted in 96 Runs.

"Huh, don't let that fool you," remarked a pitcher who was with Toledo last year, when Len drove in 96 runs with a .288 batting average. "That guy hits them pretty far. And another thing, he doesn't have to be in the game every day to keep his batting eye. Why, I've seen him out of the lineup for two weeks at a time, then step right back in there and get his hits."

Sewell and other Brownie officials must have had confidence in Schulte, for they let Floyd Baker go to the White Sox. Schulte probably should be of more service to the team, as a utility infielder at least, than was Baker.

A Versatile Player.

Len played most of his 153 games last season at second base, but he also worked at shortstop and third base, and did all right at each position.

Schulte was one of the five who struggled against Byron Moser's new batting machine in practice yesterday. The new robot was something of a mystery to the boys, and several of them did not like it, contending that the ball "sneaks up on you." That is, the device has no arm to follow; you simply have to watch the ball every split second, and before you know it, it's on top of you.

It has an advantage that it is tireless, and so early in the season pitchers are not ready to throw a great deal.

It was noticeable that after a little while the boys were able to hit the ball good, although Pete Gray, the one-armed outfielder, contended that he would never be able to work effectively against it. "I simply have to have a pitcher's arm to follow," he declared, "and that thing hasn't any."

Never Gets a Sore Arm, But—

The machine is operated by electricity and a band of rubber projects the ball. Several devices enable the operator to regulate its speed and where the ball is thrown. And the big worry is those rubber bands. There aren't many of them to be had, and they're not too good.

The players, of course, had a lot of fun kidding the contrivance, talking of its knuckle ball, curve ball, sailer, drop, and what have you. It throws only a straight ball, naturally, but the wind causes it, occasionally, to deviate from course.

"It's getting better all the time," said Schulte after his second turn at bat. "It's throwing a change of pace now."

Sephens managed to wallop the ball for real distance after he had a tough time following the sphere on his first two journeys to the plate.

The machine should have its advantages if the rubber stretches far enough.

Practice Game Sunday.

Sewell plans a game for Sunday, with Toledo, Brownie farm club, sharing the training camp here. But if one is played there'll be a lot of Toledo players on both sides. Manager Ollie Marquardt of the Mudhens has nearly 30 in camp, to 12 for the Browns, seven being pitchers.

Les Arnold, a catcher signed to help out with training camp chores, has developed tonsillitis and is in a hospital.

Boy, Wait 'Til They Get That Ball!

Youngsters who gathered at the opening of the new Boys' Center sponsored by Kiwanis Club, at 6821 Gravois avenue last night, watch eagerly as ROBERT SCHUETZ, director, demonstrates basketball form. The new center will have teams in competition at Sherman Park, the Boy's Club League and South Side Y. M. C. A.

The luckiest boy in the whole Ozark A. A. U. boxing tournament is Philip Alberti, South Broadway bantam. He was the only entrant in the 118-pound open class, and, as uncontested champion, will be an interested observer when 18 other boys strive for titles tonight in the 30 bouts scheduled at Alhambra Grotto, starting at 7 o'clock.

Alberti is fortunate, too, in that he is sure of a trip to Boston to compete in the National A. A. U. tournament there, April 2 and 3, whereas the other seven open representatives will have to battle for places. In the case of the featherweights, it will mean double duty for them, for they will have to fight a semifinal and final round before the champion is decided. All other open bouts will be finals.

Busy Program Tonight.

The first part of the evening will be taken up with five novice semifinals. Then will come the final bouts in which there will be three subnovice, eight novice and seven open winners, making a grand total of 19, including Alberti. Only the open champions, however, will be escorted by Charles Gevecker, vice chairman of the National Boxing Committee, to the Boston tournament.

Because of the importance of the national meet, the potential candidates will be watched more closely than the subnovice and novice contestants. That is particularly so of the featherweight semifinals in which only John De Sha of Vashon has fought. He defeated a fellow club member, Leo Taylor, in the quarterfinal round last night and will oppose Fred Latson, Typo A. C. In the other bracket, Charles Able of South Broadway will box John Slazinik of Buder in the first tournament appearance for both boys.

Three other finals also will be decided by contestants who will go into action for the first time. In the flyweight division, Bert Mayberry of the Lead Belt A. C. will oppose Ray Unsell, North Side Kiwanis; in the 175-pound class, John Gulley of Gamble will meet Joe Brown, Red Shield, and in the heavyweight class, Willie Browning, St. Paul, will oppose Ollie White of South Broadway.

Curtis Smith In Action.

The middleweight classes promise to supply tonight's fireworks. Curtis Smith of Golden Gloves fame advanced on a default and will oppose Virgil Akins, who won his bout on a knockout in a minute and 10 seconds, for the 135-pound title. Bob Mohler, runner-up in the Golden Gloves, is paired against Thomas Prince of Tandy who put Martin Castillo of Standard Steel to sleep as the referee moved to stop the fight as the bell rang, ending the first round. All three things happened almost simultaneously. Mohler reached the welter final by defeating Louis Albarron of Buder.

A pair of knockout artists will clash for middleweight honors. Curtis Filer of St. Paul, who sent Cliff Bohlman of Standard Steel home talking to himself after 46 seconds in the ring, will tackle Willie Jackson of Vashon, whose opponent, Wesbury Bascom of St. Paul, quit in the second round when he figured he had taken enough punishment.

Filer's kayo was the quickest of the tournament and was the shortest of five last night. Four bouts ended in technical knockouts and there were seven defaults. Some of the forfeitures were caused by boys who stayed on their jobs in war plants.

About 400 saw the program, making a total attendance for the two days about 900.

9:45—Moline (18-5) vs. Senn (25-3) of Chicago.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., March 15 (AP).—Champaign's upper bracket favorites gained the quarterfinals of the Illinois High School basketball tournament today with a hair-raising 47-46 squeeze past Morton High of Cicero.

Champaign will oppose Somonauk at 3 p. m. tomorrow Somonauk opened the first round session today with a 44-35 decision over Carbondale Community High.

The third team to enter the quarterfinals was Quincy, which eliminated Springfield, 46 to 38.

A tremendous last quarter rally won for Champaign. The Big Twelve conference club started raggedly, apparently demoralized by the hospitalization of two players, and later couldn't match the hot shooting displayed by Morton's rugged Mustangs.

But Champaign got going in the final six minutes. Trailing by nine points, the Maroons suddenly dazzled the big Suburban Leagues with a driving attack that was capped with the winning basket by Fred Major, substitute forward, with only 12 seconds remaining in the game.

Somonauk had little trouble in the first game of the first round, and the tall quintet recruited from a student body of only 90 pupils coasted much of the way after taking a 21-10 halftime lead. It was 38-19 going into the final eight minutes.

The official attendance for the two morning sessions was 7170, largest since 1938.

Earlier Jack Cottrell, star guard and ball handler, was confined to a hospital with a sore throat and fever.

Governor Green Attends.

CHAMPAIGN, March 15 (AP).—Governor Green and his two teen-age daughters were in the stands as the state high school basketball tournament began today.

The girls, Nancy and Gloria, staunch rooters for Springfield high, said they were insisting that their father stick it out through all eight games until late tonight before returning to Springfield.

The Governor professed technical neturality as to title favorites and said he'd wait until he'd seen all 16 teams.

Soccer Winner Here to Oppose Milwaukee Club

By Dent McSkimming

It will be St. Louis against Milwaukee in the semifinal round of the western division of the National soccer competition. While Rafterys and Nationals are still alive and kicking in the local tournament, Milwaukee's representative has already been determined and the date of the semifinal set.

The Croatian Eagles have succeeded the Falk F. C. as the outstanding team in the Wisconsin metropolis and they will be here on April 8 to oppose the winner of Sunday's game between Nationals and Rafterys. Walter Giesler, chairman of the Missouri Soccer Commission, today announced the date. The game will be played at Fairground Park.

Four Chicago teams remain in the National Cup Competition and they will be reduced to two by March 25. Sparta opposes Slovaks and Vikings meet Hakoah.

In the National Junior tournament, the western divisional final will be played in St. Louis, April 15, Giesler said. Six local teams are still involved and two of these will meet Sunday, in a quarter-final round match: St. Philip Neri vs. St. James.

Cpl. John Finn, who was center halfback on the Schumacher senior club at the time he entered the United States Army two years ago, has received serious wounds in the battle along the Rhine, his parents have been notified. Finn was a buddy of young Phil Kavanaugh in their soccer days here. Phil, a sergeant in the artillery, is also in the hot action along the Rhine.

Jim Murray, who used to tend goal for some of the best Sherman Park teams, writes from England that he finally got a chance to play against a British team—with dire results. "Our pickup team of A. A. F. boys were leading the R. A. F. team, 1-0 at half time. What a surprise! But the second half was murder. We tired for lack of practice and they swamped us, 5-1. It rained throughout the game."

Murray is a staff sergeant.

Say It Isn't So!

NEW YORK, March 15 (AP).—Babe Ruth, the home run king, is turning wrestling referee.

Ruth, his wife said today, will inaugurate his mat career on April 4 at Boston and if the venture proves successful the former slugger may make a national tour.

Brighter News From Camps

Giants Lead Way With 26 Men in Training, Pirates and Phils Have 20 Each—Others Sign for New Season.

NEW YORK, March 15 (AP).—Major league baseball's greatest problem, man power, appeared to be solving itself today as big league spring training camp squads are being augmented by new arrivals, including many regulars of last year's teams.

Club owners and managers, openly concerned over the unwillingness of some players to leave their winter jobs to return to baseball, were greatly encouraged by announcement yesterday of several of the game's outstanding stars that they intended to play ball this year.

Ken Keltner, who left a war job a year ago to play with Cleveland, has again quit his winter job to rejoin the Indians. "Baseball is my business. If the Army wants me, it will find me working at it," the heavy-hitting third baseman was quoted as saying a year ago. Pitcher Jim Bagby, teammate of Keltner, will also join the squad today, having resigned his job at a war plant.

Among other players who announced yesterday they would join their teams were Don Gutteridge of the Browns; Pete Fox, Red Barrett and Rex Cecil of the Boston Red Sox; Thornton Lee, Vince Castino, Dan Reynolds and Joe Orengo of the Chicago White Sox; Andy Pafko and Roy Hughes of the Chicago Cubs and George Kell of the Philadelphia Athletics.

Roundup of training camp items:

PHILADELPHIA PHILLIES — Rookie Lou Lucier, who pitched for Louisville and San Diego last year, signed his contract to boost signed player total to 20. Infielder Charlie Letchas has been called up by his Thomasville (Ga.) draft board for induction March 23.

CLEVELAND INDIANS—18 Indians, 10 of them pitchers, in camp, although Manager Lou Boudreau still absent, Pat Seerey slams first ball over fence. Rookie infielder Al Cihocki stands out in early fielding sessions.

CHICAGO CUBS — Arrival of Paul Derringer, 38-year-old veteran hurler at camp raises squad total to 14 active players.

NEW YORK GIANTS — Van Mungo's hurling and Ernie Lombardi's hitting feature drill as squad is increased to 26 with arrival of Pitchers Harry Feldmand and Ewald Pyle and Infielder Roy Nichols.

BROOKLYN DODGERS—Eight players entrain for Bear Mountain as Manager Leo Durocher is cheered by news of the signing of veteran Frenchy Bordagaray and Rookie Catcher Stan Andrews, Youthful Eddie Basinski to remain on war job in Buffalo.

PIRATES—Twenty players on hand as team, led by Catcher Spud Davis, in absence of Manager Frankie Frisch, open camp at Muncie, Ind.

NEW YORK YANKEES—Manager Joe McCarthy expressed worry over his infield with three-quarters of last year's regular inner works still missing. They are First Baseman Nick Etten, Second Baseman George Stirnweiss and Shortstop Frank Crosetti. Arrival of Pitchers Joe Page and Walter Dubiel increased squad to 17.

BOSTON RED SOX—Manager Joe Cronin ready to play first base this season, although Outfielder George Metkovich, who is expected to play the initial sack this year, signs contract.

WASHINGTON SENATORS — Lt. Bert Shepard, one-legged pilot veteran, astounded onlookers at camp by running bases, sliding, fielding at first base and batting. Little hampered by an artificial right leg below the knee, he hopes to make the team while on 120-day leave.

PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS —Arrival of Third Baseman George Kell at camp rounds out regular infield. Outfielder Hal Peck, purchased for $20,000 from Milwaukee, another arrival.

CHICAGO WHITE SOX—Squad of 18 moves at top speed in two-hour drill. George Gray, 17-year-old southpaw, reported.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CLEVELAND, March 15.—The surprising St. Louis Flyers were on their way to Providence, R. I., today to meet the Reds in an American Hockey League game after having held the top-hole Cleveland Barons to a 5-5 deadlock here last night.

The tie closed the season for the St. Louis team as far as Cleveland is concerned. The Barons won six, tied two and lost two out of their 10 clashes this season.

The Barons, minus their aces, veteran center and captain Les Cunningham, and their No. 1 defense duo of Dick Adolph and Dan Sprout, held the fort snugly for the initial 10 minutes of play, but then the levee broke and at the first-period gong the St. Louis sextet, paced by Center Fred Hergert, erstwhile Cleveland star, was enjoying a 4-2 lead.

Hergert and Lou Trudel of Cleveland, the league's leader in goal getting, each turned the hat trick before the game ended.

Spring Training Game Schedule Is Curtailed

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP).—Major league baseball Presidents Ford Frick and Will Harridge said today they will recommend to their clubs the cancellation of spring training games involving public transportation.

Frick and Harridge made this announcement along with Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Senators, after conferring with Col. J. Monroe Johnson, Office of Defense Transportation Director.

In effecting this further voluntary reduction in travel, the big league clubs may play intra-camp games as well as contests en route to their home parks, provided the cities where those games are played are on a direct route home and no additional travel is involved.

Games which the league heads will recommend be canceled are those necessitating special trips by a team from one training camp to another.

Games at service camps, however, may be played when transportation is provided by the armed services.

When the teams reach their respective home cities, intra-city games such as the Yankees against the Giants in New York or the Cardinals versus the Browns in St. Louis may be played.

This arrangement may work a slight hardship on cities that have only one team, such as Cincinnati, Cleveland, Detroit and Pittsburgh.

Willie Pep, Discharged From Navy 13 Months Ago, Now in the Army

FORT DEVENS, Mass., March 15 (AP).—Thirteen months ago Willie Pep was discharged honorably from the United States Navy for medical reasons and yesterday he was processed into G. I. khaki and sworn in as a private in the Army.

Pep, holder of the New York version of the world featherweight boxing title, was inducted in his home city of New Haven, Conn.

Adam Walsh Signed To Coach Pro Rams

SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 15 (AP).—While major league baseball athletes unlimbered in Indiana camps, the football pot boiled over with coaching staff changes at the University of Notre Dame.

Hugh Devore, newly appointed Rambler head coach and acting athletic director, disclosed yesterday Adam Walsh, line mentor, had signed as head coach of the professional Cleveland Rams, while the Irish appointed Gene Ronzani, former Marquette University and Chicago Bear star, as backfield tutor.

'Air Power Show of 1945' Opens; Norden Bombsight One of Displays

One Section in Exhibit at Famous-Barr Devoted to Equipment Made by 14 Firms Here—3000-H. P. Motor Shown.

The Air Technical Service Command's "Air Power Show of 1945" opened today on the ninth floor of the Famous-Barr Co. store with exhibits of aerial warfare equipment including the Norden bombsight and new technical developments such as the Curtis counter-rotating propellers and the Allison four-bank, liquid-cooled motor developing approximately 3000 horsepower, which is used on the experimental B-19 bomber.

One section of the show is devoted to the display of the products of 14 St. Louis manufacturing concerns engaged in making equipment for the Air Forces, including the power turret made by Emerson Electric Manufacturing Co. The purpose of the show is to stimulate the production of such equipment by demonstrating the use to which it is put.

Equipment is demonstrated by eight civilian girl employes of the Air Technical Service Command and by three WACs and three Army enlisted men. The show takes up 13,000 square feet of space and demonstrations are continuous, taking an hour and a half altogether.

Aerial gunnery devices include "machine guns" which fire beams of light at motion pictures of approaching enemy planes and a device for training pursuit ship pilots in aerial combat. This consists of a plane cockpit and a screen; the pilot watches a motion picture and as he manipulates his controls the scene in front of him simulates the changing positions of earth, sky and an enemy plane as he would see them in actual combat.

The power turret, which is the one used on the B-24 Liberator bomber, is whirled about and the guns rapidly raised or depressed; the girl who tells about parachutes has a member of the audience pull the rip-cord, then says "it takes 35 minutes to pack a 'chute, but only one and three-fifths seconds to open it," and Master Sgt. James W. Robb of Seffner, Fla., who demonstrates the exhibit of Arctic weather station equipment adds some anecdotes of Iceland, where he was stationed earlier in the war.

Equipment on display is valued at three million dollars, Second Lt. Eugene F. Earley of Philadelphia, who is in charge of the show, said today. It will be open from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. week days through April 15.

"Iowa Corn Song" Author Dies.

DES MOINES, March 15 (AP).—George E. Hamilton, author of the "Iowa Corn Song," a tune that made the world associate Iowa with tall corn, died last night after a two-week illness. He was 72 years old.

Flashes of Life

And Peaches Too?

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 15 (AP).—There'll be peach trees on Peachtree street—if they'll grow downtown. Then visitors, viewing Atlanta's eight-mile long thoroughfare, won't ask: "Where are the peach trees?"

A department store which takes up a block of Peachtree street is planting the peach trees in front of its entrance.

Sheriff's Willing.

CLOVIS, N. M., March 15 (AP).—Engine trouble stalled Ekie Large, a Clovis man, and he flagged a passing automobile driven by Deputy Sheriff Charlie Witherspoon.

The officer was glad to stop. The Sheriff said Large was the very fellow he wanted to see because—the stalled car was stolen.

Out Three, Saves Three.

SALT LAKE CITY, March 15 (AP).—If Mrs. Katherine Kutulas had filed her income tax return by mail, it would have cost her twice as much. So she waited in line at the Internal Revenue Department and presented three cents to the clerk.

IWO MAY BE 'MARINES ISLAND'

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP).—A change in the name of Iwo Jima to "Marines Island," commemorating the Marines' great fight on this Pacific isle, was proposed in a resolution prepared today by Representative Hays (Dem.), Arkansas.

Hays said the name was suggested by a friend, C. N. Rainwater of Little Rock, Ark.

TWO LOAN FIRMS SUSPENDED FOR CREDIT RULE VIOLATIONS

Licenses of two small loan companies have been suspended for five days for violating Government consumer credit regulations, the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System announced today. The firms, the Local Finance Co., and Safe-Way Finance Plan, Incorporated, were ordered to close their offices from next Monday through Harch 23, except for accepting payments on existing obligations.

The firms were found guilty of exceeding maximum credit values of listed articles in making loans, granting longer termrs than permissible on installment obligations, and other irregularities, the board of governors reported. The firms accepted the suspension order and promised future compliance. They are located at 5899 Easton avenue, and have branches at 3500 North Grand boulevard and 3636 Washington boulevard.

OPA SUSPENDS GASOLINE STATION MAN FOR DURATION

Herman J. Bianco, operator of a service station at 3224 St. Louis avenue, has been suspended from dealing in gasoline for the duration of gasoline rationing by Covell Hewitt, hearing commissioner of the Office of Price Administration. His attorney admitted at a hearing before Hewitt last Monday that Bianco had obtained 4128 gallons of gasoline over a three-month period with counterfeit gasoline rationing coupons. The suspension is effective Monday.

Harry Kammarmeyer, who operates a Shell service station at Mexico, Mo., received a six-month suspension from Commissioner Hewitt after a hearing Tuesday. He was charged with having sold 5770 gallons of gasoline without collecting rationing coupons.

STOCKS VERY QUIET; 'BLUE CHIP' SHARES UP

NEW YORK, March 15 (AP).—"Blue chip" specialties were fairly wide gainers in today's stock market, one of the slowest of the past several months, although leaders were content to add small fractions.

Advances ran to a point or more after the opening but the ticker tape loafed throughout and transfers for the full proceedings were around Wednesday's low turnover. Top marks were reduced here and there near the close and scattered losers were in evidence.

Idle capital continued to seek stocks that might prove an inflation hedge while earnings, dividends and individual situations served to inspire selective bidding. Prime Minister Churchill's comment that European victory might be achieved by summer or sooner kept reconversion skepticism in the foreground as a trend barrier. Wall Street caution also again was based on possible Washington moves to stem speculation.

Sales Again Small.

Transactions were 800,000 shares compared with 750,000 shares yesterday.

Of the 864 issues traded in today, 430 were higher, 233 lower and 201 unchanged. Thirty-five made new 1945 highs and six new 1945 lows.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed up .5 of a point at 61.7.

Touching 1945 highs were Eastern Air Lines and Atlantic Coast Line, up about 6 and 4 each; Cudahy, American Cable and Radio and International Telephone. Ahead the greater part of the day were du Pont, Eastman Kodak, Texas Co., J. C. Penney, Westinghouse, Santa Fe and Sears-Roebuck. Intermittent stumblers were Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Great Northern, Baltimore & Ohio and Western Union "A."

Trend on the Curb.

In the curb support was accorded Lamson Corp., International Petroleum, Cuban Atlantic Sugar and Transwestern Oil.

The early bulge of Atlantic Coast Line common, on the big board, apparently was a further response to the proposed 2-for-1 split-up of the stock of its subsidiary, Louisville & Nashville. It was figured that the Coast Line's financial structure would be bolstered substantially by the split.

Pleasing to holders of the oils was a batch of favorable profits compilations from this field. For 1944 Texas Co. reported $4.85 a share against $3.83 in 1943, Phillips Petroleum $4.26 versus $3.04 and Atlantic Refining $5.30 compared with $3.79.

BOATMEN'S BANK PLANS 20 PCT. STOCK DIVIDEND

Boatmen's National Bank will distribute a stock dividend of 20 per cent to stockholders of record May 1 provided the latter approve of the proposal at a special meeting that day.

The bank as of March 13 had capital of $2,500,000; surplus $2,500,000; undivided profits $887,113.41; reserves for contingencies $608,809.01. Deposits were $138,025,823.

Directors declared the regular quarterly dividend of 40c a share, payable April 1 to holders March 21. It is contemplated that the present dividend rate be continued on the increased amount of stock.

BONDS HOLD TO RELATIVELY STEADY UNDERTONE IN TRADE

NEW YORK, March 15 (AP).—The bond market held a relatively steady undertone today as interest tended to broaden in a selected group of secondary rail loans and modest investment demand was evident in the higher-priced loans.

Late firm spots included bonds of the Rock Island, St. Paul, Northwestern, Central of Georgia, Rio Grande Western, International Great Northern and Kansas City Southern.

New Haven bonds joined the rising ranks in the final hour. The convertible 6s ended up 1⅜ at 66½, the 4s added 1½ at 61½ and the 3½s moved up 1¾ to 59¾, all on good volume.

Northern Pacific 4½s advanced 1⅛ to 97 and Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron 6s improved 3⅜ at 233⅞. Peoria & Eastern 4s and Pittsburgh & West Virginia 4½s lost fractionally.

The various stamped, unstamped and certificates for the 4 per cent issue of the Seaboard Air Line Railway of 1950 sold at par, equalling the highest prices ever paid since the road has been involved in reorganization proceedings. The consolidated 6s also moved up a point or so at one time.

Southern Pacific 4½s of 1968 and 1981 were active and higher along with the income bonds of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Chicago & Northwestern 4½s and Childs Co. 5s.

A limited investment demand kept the higher priced group pointing higher. Goodrich 4¼s sold at 106, Gulf States Utilities 3½s at 109, Illinois Bell Telephone 2¾s at 105 and Pennsylvania Railroad 4½s at 122.

The public offering of $110,000,000 of Tri-Borough Bridge Authority sinking fund and serial bonds at prices representing exceptionally low yields reflected the current stability in investment markets.

Brazilian bonds fell behind in a quiet foreign section.

BIGGEST REVENUE BOND ISSUE EVER UNDERWRITTEN, TO SELL

NEW YORK, March 15 (AP).—The largest revenue bond issue ever underwritten will be placed on public sale today by a nation-wide banking group headed by Dillon, Read & Co. which will offer $110,000,000 of New York Tri-Borough Bridge Authority sinking fund and serial bonds.

The bonds will be in two pieces, $55,000,000 two per cent sinking fund and $55,000,000 of 2¼ per cent serials. The latter will become due at intervals from August 1, 1950, to Feb. 1, 1975, and will be priced to yield from 1.5 to 2.125 per cent, according to maturity. The sinking fund bonds, due Feb. 1, 1980, will be priced to yield about 2.04 per cent.

Proceeds from the sale will permit the Authority to retire outstanding bonds carrying higher interest rates and allow it to proceed with major improvements to bridges and approaches that have been delayed.

Dillon, Read announced this afternoon that books have been closed on the bond offering.

COTTON CLOSES LOWER

NEW YORK, March 15 (AP).—The cotton market turned firm today as light mill buying and demand from locals encountered a scarcity of offerings. Early losses of 30 cents a bale were registered on liquidation influenced by a lower than expected Bureau of Census report of February cotton consumption, favorable war news and uncertainty over price control legislation.

Late afternoon prices unchanged to 15 cents a bale higher. March, 22.16; May, 22.16; July, 21.90.

PROFIT-TAKING, STOP-LOSS SALES BREAK WHEAT 5C LIMIT

CHICAGO, March 15 (AP). — Wheat dropped as much as 5 cents a bushel, the limit, in the final seven minutes of trading on the Chicago Board of Trade today when the market, apparently overbought and vulnerable to selling orders, broke under an avalanche of offerings.

The selling, started by a broker with Eastern connections, found buyers backing away and immediately the plunge started. Stop-loss orders, closely placed, were uncovered on each successive break.

Fifteen minutes after the finish the wheat pit, usually deserted at that time, was crowded.

The break affected other grains, but their losses were not nearly as severe as those in wheat.

At the finish wheat was 2 to 4¼ lower than yesterday's close, May $1.69¾ @ ⅞. Corn was off ⅝ to ⅞, May $1.14⅝. Oats were down ¾ to 1⅜, May 66⅝c. Rye was off 1⅝ to 2⅞, May $1.12⅜ @ ⅞. Barley was down 1 to 1⅛, May $1.11⅛.

Army flour bids are due today, it was said, for acceptance tomorrow and trade sources estimate that purchases will total nearly three million sacks, providing mills will accept that much business.

YANK WHO KILLED 116 JAPS ON BATAAN BEATEN AS CAPTIVE

CHICAGO, March 15 (AP). — A liberated prisoner of the Japanese said yesterday that Capt. Arthur Wermuth, "one-man army of Bataan" credited with killing 116 Japanese, was brutally beaten by the Japanese because he "stood up for his men" in prison camp and presumably was later transferred from the Philippines to Japan.

Pfc. Louis C. Zelis, Chicago, a member of Capt. Wermuth's detail, who has returned to Chicago, told of one day during the internment at Cabanatuan when some of his buddies, hardly able to stand because of the ravages of dysentery, were ordered to clean away a dung pile while barefooted. Some of the men, he said, were insane with disease.

"Without hesitation, Capt. Wermuth complained to a Jap officer," Pvt. Zelis said. "The officer pulled a bit of judo on Capt. Wermuth, knocking him to the ground. Then they kicked him in the face, in the stomach and all over his body.

"Unconscious, Capt. Wermuth was taken to a hospital. The camp grapevine said he later was taken to Japan."

6000 MEN FLOWN TO FRONT FROM BRITAIN IN 5 DAYS

LONDON, March 15 (AP). — Approximately 6000 troops, needed recently in Belgium on short notice, were flown from England in five days, the Air Ministry disclosed today.

The soldiers were transported in C-47s of the R. A. F. and the United States A. A. F. Transport Command.

Not New Idea

St. Louis Fair Big Event in Old Days

By Carlos F. Hurd

A ST. LOUIS FAIR, the first week in October, would be the height of a good idea, Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann thinks. He has announced his plan to name a committee, which would plan details of such an annual event.

A fine idea, Mr. Mayor, if not a wholly new one. The name of one of our large parks, Fairgrounds, gives a hint of what used to go on there—what might have continued to go on, up to wartime, if the bigger idea of a World's Fair had not absorbed the St. Louis imagination.

But after a whole summer of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, with its Cascades, Pike, and Palace of Varied Industries, St. Louis couldn't quite go back to the livestock amphitheater, school children's pageants and Big Thursdays which were the Fair Week thrills of earlier years.

So the St. Louis Fair, an annual event since 1856, suspended for the big international show of 1904, was never revived. Its one-mile racetrack went the way of other tracks when Gov. Joe Folk cracked down on pool-selling in 1905, and the 143-acre inclosure bounded by Grand and Fair, Natural Bridge and Kossuth avenues, became a real estate problem, solved by its sale to the city for a park.

THE ST. LOUIS FAIR, starting before the Civil War and suspended for the four years of that war's duration, ran into the motor era. In its next-to-last year, 1902, automobile races were run on the mile track two afternoons.

The first contest, a five-mile race, was won by Harry S. Turner, whose time was 9 minutes and 12 seconds; this figures down to a speed of nearly 33 miles an hour. The second day, B. G. Sykes won the five-mile from Turner and A. C. Halsey.

"Sykes seems to have the fastest machine in the city,' a chronicler of the time wrote. "He covered one mile in 1:35½, which is the fastest time ever made by an auto in this part of the country." Almost 38 miles an hour; the make of Sykes' machine was not stated. There was also a motorcycle contest, or at least an exhibition of that type of vehicle; Harry R. Geer won, no other competitor being named.

But the horse was king at the Fair Grounds. In that same season of 1902, the Big Thursday throng in the amphitheater saw O. P. Langan's show horse, Beau Brummel, win the prize from Park von Wedelstaedt's champion runabout McL., lately purchased by David R. Calhoun. Mayor Rolla Wells, E. R. Cuendet, J. P. Hughes and Thomas Dunn had horses entered in other events.

The throng at the grounds, and the crush at Union Station, on that Thursday, were declared to be "unprecedented." So many went to the grounds that "after 1 p. m. the business district looked deserted." The entire gate receipts went to the Provident Association, St. Vincent de Paul Society and Jewish Charities.

A DECADE EARLIER, in 1892, the Big Thursday crowd, "simply tremendous—at least 50,000," reached the grounds on street cars, the motive power of which had lately been changed from horses or mules to electricity—there were three cable lines in other parts of the city; and by buggies, surreys, coupes, coaches and spring wagons.

"In the amphitheater," said a writer, "the whirl of fast trotters and the strains of lively music made one dizzy." Special attractions were Doc, the wonderful trotting dog; Shetland ponies in a chariot race; and the feeding of the sea lions. An elephant, pulling a brush harrow, was pronounced "all right for breaking land, but he couldn't earn his salt on a farm." Chief of Police Laurence Harrigan refused to bet on the pony race, saying it was fixed.

Gov. David R. Francis and other State officials were at the Fair on Big Thursday in '92; the attendance of Governors on that day was traditional, and Cabinet members were frequent guests. President Grant visited the Fair in 1875 and 1876; President Cleveland and his bride in 1886; President Harrison in 1889; other visitors were Vice Presidents Wilson, Hendricks and Colfax; presidential candidates Horace Greeley and Winfield Scott Hancock; Senator Stephen A. Douglas; Gens. Sherman and Sheridan, and Emperor Dom Pedro of Brazil.

MOST HISTORIC of the visits of notables was that of the Prince of Wales, later King Edward VII, in the course of his American tour in 1860. He traveled as the Duke of Renfrew; but everybody knew who the visitor was, and local his-

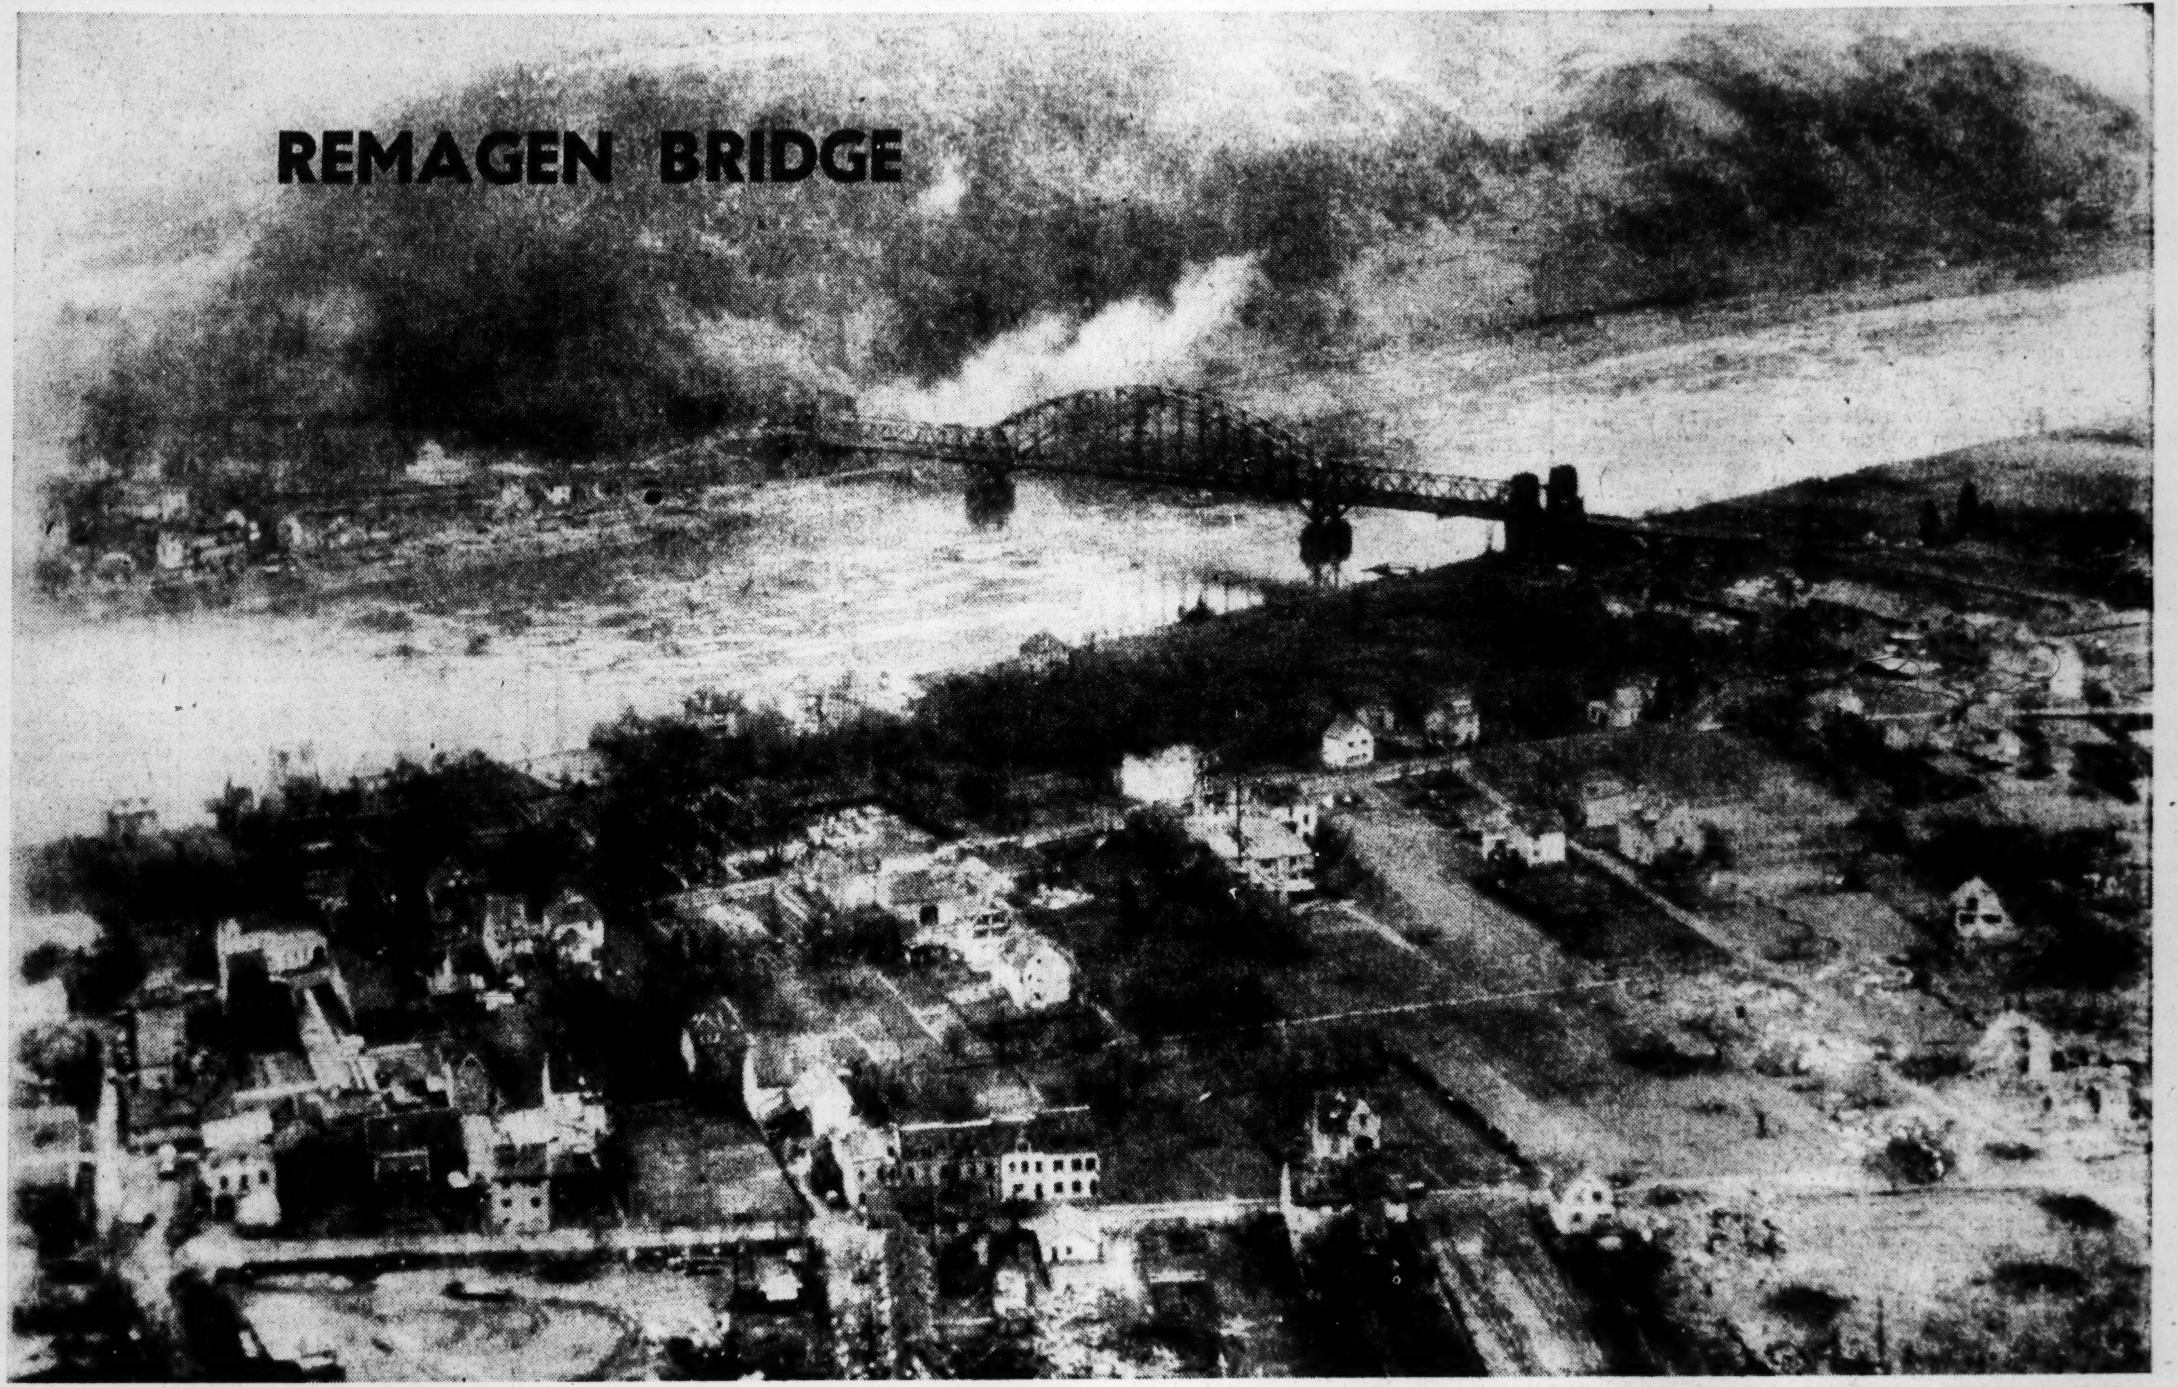
AN Australian infantry division, recalls George Johnston in Pacific Partner, was stationed in England during the blitz in 1940. The boys were invited to visit Manchester and were given a wonderful time.

At the end of their stay, a huge-muscled sergeant respectfully asked the Mayor to attend a little gathering in the City Hall. The Australians, he explained, would like to make a presentation as a gesture of thanks.

The Mayor, touched by the request, attended the function. The sergeant, speaking on behalf of the assembled Australians, made the usual remarks of appreciation and then handed the Mayor a most magnificent collection of Australian curios and native weapons. The Mayor, stuttering with emotion, pride and gratitude, mumbled his thanks. The Australians marched out of the hall and filed solemnly to the train that would take them back to camp.

It was not until the next day that the police department reported the great burglary of the Manchester Musuem, a burglary notable for the fact that the theft was confined to the entire Australian aboriginal art collection.

REMAGEN BRIDGE



The Ludendorff railroad bridge at Remagen, over which troops and supplies of the U. S. First Army are pouring in the drive against the Germans on the east side of the Rhine. This photograph was taken by William C. Allen Associated Press photographer with the wartime picture pool, from an artillery spotter plane. Smoke rises from the farther end of the bridge (center) beyond which are the Rhineland hills. In the foreground are German buildings, many of them shattered by shellfire. The accompanying data did not state whether the picture was taken before or after the bridge was captured by the Americans, one of the most daring and brilliant actions of the war.

CASE RECORDS

By Dr. George W. Crane

CASE F-217: Parmentier, aged probably 30, was a French apothecary who found himself a prisoner of war during the days when the potato was first becoming familiar to Europeans.

An Englishman, Thomas Coke, had already appreciated the value of this new tuber as a means of staving off famine among the poorer classes, so he determined to popularize it. He began with his own tenants and neighbors, but they grew incensed at his idea, for they said it would sterilize the soil. Many ailments were also attributed to it. Almost everybody seemed violently prejudiced against it.

Though Coke offered land to his tenants rent free, he couldn't induce anyone to grow potatoes, so after five years he grew some himself. As he dug the large Ox Noble variety, his neighboring farmers would only admit that perhaps "'twouldn't poison the pigs."

IN A CONTINENTAL prison at this time, Parmentier and his French companions were served potatoes. His fellow soldiers protested at the outrage of having to dine on such "ungodly provender." But Parmentier thoughtfully inquired about methods of cultivating the tuber and also recipes for its use on the table. As soon as he returned to France, he obtained an experimental farm from the Emperor, which he planted entirely in potatoes.

The time finally came when they were ready to be harvested. But Parmentier then used some psychology, instead of the coercion and pleading which Thomas Coke had fruitlessly employed for five years in England.

AT HIS OWN EXPENSE, Parmentier hired a few soldiers to patrol all sides of his famous potato patch during the daytime. Meanwhile, he conducted distinguished guests through the field, digging a few tubers here and there, which they peeled and devoured with evident gusto. At night, however, he withdrew his guards. Two or three days later one of his men hastened to Parmentier with the news that thieves had broken into the patch at night, and had dug part of the crop. To the surprise of his informant, Parmentier was overjoyed.

"When the people will steal in order to procure some of my potatoes," Parmentier exclaimed, "then their popularity is assured."

IN OUR CHURCHES we have too long witnessed the Thomas Coke method of mild coercion and pleading, when a little applied psychology would have produced far greater results.

"Sugar will catch more flies than vinegar," runs an old adage ably illustrated by Parmentier's strategy.

The changing emphasis in child psychology today, for example, is not how to make a child do a certain thing, but how to make him WANT to do it.

In marriage that same principle is invaluable. Don't stress how to make your mate remain true to you, but concentrate on how to make him WANT to do so.

Mother Must Be Diplomat In the Home

By Angelo Patri

THE children, two boys and a girl, high school students, reached home together, which in itself was unusual. They gathered about the kitchen table over cocoa and sponge cake. Said Anna between mouthfuls, "That old sourpuss in the science room gave me a minus this morning."

"Yeah?" said Peter derisively. "You didn't earn it, of course. Not you. Truth is, you don't know negative from positive and anything he gives you is velvet."

"So I'm a dumbbell?"

"You said it. You ought to know. And Dr. Slowboy is a mighty good teacher and he knows his eggs. Girls are no good in science anyway. Why don't you take sewing or hair dressing or"—

"IF YOU'RE so smart," began Anna, and stopped short because George, who up to this point was too busy with the cocoa and cake to talk any, broke in with, "Girls are no good at science. Right. But Dr. Slowboy is a sourpuss all right, all right. He gave us a whole chapter on molds, and that wasn't enough. He has to add the chemistry to it. The"—

"You only think so because you're no good in chem."

From there on the noise became deafening, one shouting down the other until mother entered and said, "George, I need some flour right away. Quick! I'm waiting—and Anna, run down to the corner and bring me the afternoon paper before they are all gone. I want a recipe from it. Hurry! Come along with me, Peter. I need a little help here with the apples. You're a good peeler and I'm in a hurry."

MOTHER'S HURRY was her one dependence in the crisis. Get each one off on another road, and fast, and the battle will be over and forgotten. That is about the only way to settle such tempests. Send each of them scuttling off on an errand, separate them, scatter them, and give their thoughts another direction.

Pick out the leader of the squabble and send him off first. Then the others. Don't bother telling them how wrong it is for children to quarrel because they cannot hear you just then. Afterward, when the noise and even the cause of battle have vanished, say what you like. But first, scatter them and give them something else to think about.

This is the recipe of an experienced and able mother and it is a very good one.

Your Stars

WHAT TO EXPECT TOMORROW

Sun in Pisces.

General Tendencies — Good all day tomorrow for any activity which calls for taste, appreciation of art or music and a love of the dramatic. This is also the beginning of a full 10 days of social activity. Make plans for the future and include at least one extra special evening with you-know-who, if not for this week end, then at least before next Sunday. While you are about it, take a look at the planet Venus in the western sky that evening.

If Tomorrow Is Your Birthday.

You must be glad that you are starting on a new year, since the past 12 months have not been too favorable for your deepest interests. You have a chance now to catch your breath, take a look around and start over again. I hope you use this time, during 1945, for the broadening of your social contacts; don't confine yourself to rigid limitations, but make new friends.

Tomorrow's Watchword—Good manners teach us to say "thank you" for any gift, but we very generally accept great privileges without thinking much about them except perhaps that they were coming to us, anyway. We ought to receive every benefit with sincere gratitude to God. This is our first payment upon our debt to the rest of the world. Maybe we have only a few instalments, but then again we may be so fortunate that our thanks should be everlasting.

Regret and Forget

By Elsie Robinson

HOW do you feel about your old mistakes? There, though you may not realize it, is the toughest test of your character—and the one by which you'll stand or fall.

Do you weep over yesterday? Spend your time in bitter humiliation and remorse . . . telling yourself and your public how differently you'd act if you could live your life over again? Or do you say you're sorry—and mean it—then snap out of it into new and wiser days?

George Sand did the latter. No dead duck days for her. Yes, we have talked about her before but she's good for a hundred town meetings. Two centuries felt the flame of her brilliance and beauty. Many more will bear the imprint of her courage. For here was a woman who dared to live life to the full at a time when feminine existence had little worth . . . a woman who dared to believe that the greatest sin was to waste or evade life in any way, even in regret.

Make mistakes? No woman ever made more. But always she refused to make the greatest mistake of all—the mistake of running away from life and refusing to pay its price.

BY EVERY conventional concept of the nineteenth century George Sand was a bad girl. There were reasons. She was born in an age which gave no woman, good or bad, a break. Brilliant, beautiful, utterly reckless in fighting for what she thought was right, she battled back. And was lashed by the world in return. So what? She faced it. She could not heal the past by whining about it in the present. She was sorry and she admitted it, often. But whining wouldn't help now. Anyone could make mistakes. The great thing was to rise above them—build new glory on their ashes. So, in the splendid biography by Marie Jenney Howe, she refused to look back. And where others would have grieved "she felt within herself the creation of a new personality."

"She had so many selves. She had left several behind her and did not care to sit and weep over their outgrown shells. She did not indulge in remorse. She started again in the present and turned her back on the past.

"She was willing to accept the consequences of every act of her life. But acceptance meant to George something different from orthodox submission. It meant facing and, if necessary, grappling up to it, as a fighter prepares for combat.

"She was going somewhere and no cruel consequence was to be allowed to crush her or keep her from moving freely on her way. She bent all her energies toward the woman she intended to become. In this courageous spirit she was ready to solve her personal problems and go on to new life—to many new lives."

GEORGE SAND may have been a reckless spirit in the 1800s but she will be a shining example because of her courage in centuries to come. She had the tallest form of courage. She could make a mistake and then—regret and forget. She refused to spoil the present or block the future merely because she had gummed up the past. She realized that tremendous truth—that it's as wicked to waste Today by useless remorse as it was to spoil Yesterday by stubborn error.

It takes a rare soul to face and admit that fact. Most of us are inclined to make side shows of yesterday's Naughty Doings. We have few opportunities to grab the spotlight in our normal righteous routine. We'd like to be saints but we seldom make the grade. So we do the next best thing—we blossom out as sinners. Which is merely another and extremely cheap form of exhibitionism.

There's just one thing to do with a bad blunder after you've made it. And that is, say you're sorry and then forget it. No one, at least of all yourself, can be helped by a prolonged wake over your misdemeanors. And no one is fooled for long by your caterwauling. They know you're just showing off.

All of which applies to every one of us. We waste more life Seeing Our Sins than we ever do by committing them in the first place. A real Regretter doesn't have an audition. He gets wise and gets busy and calls it a new day.

My Day -o- By Eleanor Roosevelt

MONTREAT, N. C., Wednesday.

THIS is beautiful country, and our rooms face Presbyterian College across a charming lake. I am attending a meeting of the Council for Southern Mountain Workers and finding it most interesting.

After arriving at Montreat Inn yesterday morning, we had breakfast and by 10 o'clock met for the first session of the council. The subject under discussion was "The Rural Mountain Church." After the brief religious exercises conducted by Mark A. Dawber, executive secretary of Home Missions Council of North America, there were statements and discussion on various subjects.

Dr. A. Rufus Morgan, who is the priest in charge at Franklin, N. C., spoke on the rural church and self-support, and I gathered that he felt the churches were important enough for the rest of the country to be interested in their support. Other areas should feel that they are amply repaid, in view of the number of boys and girls who go out from this area and live in communities all over the country.

HE WAS FOLLOWED by Henry S. Randolph, secretary of the Rural Church Unit, Presbyterian Church, U. S. A. His topic was "The Role of the Rural Minister—Spiritual? Social? Economics?" He felt strongly that the minister served the community and not his own parishioners alone. Finally Ladmir E. Hartman, field worker of the council from Berea, Ky., gave a report on the institute for rural pastors.

To me, one of the interesting things to come out of the morning's discussion was the similarity of the problems facing the rural areas of the South today with the problems facing rural areas elsewhere in the country. They are probably a little more acute because the poverty is greater, wages have been lower, land has deteriorated more and reforms have been slow. Some of the conditions existing today I can remember as existing in New York State 25 years ago, and I know of places in other parts of the country where land is poor and therefore people are poor. I know other parts of the country where wages are low and where general social conditions are unsatisfactory.

AFTER LUNCH Mrs. John C. Campbell, director of the John C. Campbell Folk School at Brasstown, N. C., talked about "The Folk School and Community Planning," and an interesting discussion followed. I had to miss the report on recreation given by Miss Marie Marvel because at 4 o'clock I went with Col. Willoughby and Col. James to see the redistribution center in Asheville.

This is a new and very interesting attempt by the Army to give overseas men who have been returned after their period of hospitalization and furlough a two-weeks' rest and reclassification period. They live very comfortably in hotels which have been taken over. Recreation is planned for them, and if they are married their wives can be with them.

Delicious Sugar-Sparing Apple Pie . . . Try it

1 recipe Spry Piecrust
6 large tart apples, peeled and sliced thin
¼ cup sugar
⅓ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Roll ½ of dough and line a 9-inch pie plate. Combine apples, sugar, honey, salt, cinnamon and lemon juice. Fill pie shell with apples. Roll remaining dough for top crust and cut a few slits to permit steam to escape. Fit top crust over fruit and seal edge of pie. Bake in hot oven (425° F.) 50-60 minutes.

Variations. Instead of sugar and honey, use ½ cup sugar and ½ cup dark corn sirup or ½ cup sugar and ¼ cup light molasses.

Spry Piecrust

Mix 2¼ cups sifted ALL-PURPOSE FLOUR and 1 teaspoon SALT. Measure ¾ cup SPRY and divide into two equal parts.

Step 1 for Tenderness—cut in first half of Spry until as fine as meal. See how quickly and easily creamy Spry cuts in. You never need to chill Spry.

Step 2 for Flakiness—cut in remaining Spry until size of large peas.

Add 5 tablespoons cold WATER, mixing well into a dough... Makes enough pastry for one 9-inch 2-crust pie.

"Guess My Age!"

New Kind of Face Powder Makes Her Look Years Younger!

ONCE this lovely girl looked quite a bit older. Some people actually thought she was rapidly approaching middle age . . .

For she was the innocent victim of an unflattering face powder! It was such an unkind powder—treacherous and sly. It showed up every tiny line in her face—accented every little skin fault—even seemed to exaggerate the size of her pores.

But look at her now! Can you guess her age? Would you say she is 20-30-35?

At last she has found a face powder that really flatters her skin—makes it look younger and more enchanting!

Why Lady Esther Face Powder Is So Flattering

Lady Esther Face Powder is extra flattering because it's made differently. It isn't just mixed, just sifted, in the usual way. It's blown by Twin Hurricanes—blended with the speed and power of hurricanes—to look clearer, smoother and more flattering on your skin!

Because of this patented, exclusive method of hurricane blending, the texture of Lady Esther Face Powder is much smoother and finer than ordinary powder. The first touch of your puff spreads a delicate film of beauty on your skin, hiding little lines, little blemishes. And Lady Esther Face Powder clings longer, too—clings four long hours!

But the most exciting difference is in the shades. Lady Esther shades have a subtle new quality—because the color is blown in by hurricanes. Many women say that the Lady Esther shades are so fresh and alive that ordinary powder shades seem dull and drab by comparison.

My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Martha Carr:

MY boy friend and I are 19 and have been engaged since we were 15. We were supposed to be married in January but his father wouldn't consent. My family feels it would be all right. He is now in the Navy. Is there any way for us to get his father's consent? I left town for a while to visit an aunt, and my parents think we got married then and are expecting me to get the allotment of a wife to help pay my expenses. I don't know what to say to them, for if I say his father won't agree to the marriage, then my own people may put their foot down, too. What shall I do?

Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest, but of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

At 19 you and your fiance can afford to wait. If you have managed to stick to each other for four years then you should be able to manage a little longer. A boy has to be 21 in all but five of the states in the country before he can marry without his parents' consent, and those states are not in this vicinity. So give up the idea. I think my leaflet, "Shall We Marry in Wartime?" will give you some good reasons for not marrying till later on. The only thing to do is to tell your parents that you and your fiance do not intend to marry at the present time, and if they need financial help which they were apparently looking toward since they had counted on the allotment, get yourself a job and pay board.

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM A GIRL 15, in my second year of high school, but have never yet had a date. I'm wondering if there is something wrong with my personality. I'm considered fairly good looking. Would it be all right to ask a boy I have seen often but have spoken to only once, to go to church with me to a party we are having there? Mother wouldn't mind me going on a date but the only boy who has ever asked me is not the type I would want to be seen with. What shall I do? I would also like to have more girl friends.

B. W. M.

There may be nothing at all wrong with you, and the only trouble may be that you simply haven't yet got into a group of young people your age, or if you have it could be the wrong one. First of all check up on yourself and see how you measure up. Are you good company? Can you dance well? Do you bowl or play a passable game of tennis or the like? Are you interested in people and things around you and not just in yourself? My Popularity Hints and Sub-deb leaflet will give you some suggestions and if you will send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope I will mail them to you. I don't think it would be well to ask a boy you know so slightly to go to the party with you.

IN ANSWER TO "Dumb Dora": Purple Heart is awarded members of the armed forces and civilians who are citizens serving with the armed forces, who are wounded in action, provided the wound necessitates treatment by a medical officer. Subsequent to Feb. 22, 1932, it is also authorized to be awarded to those who while serving in the Army of the United States perform any singularly meritorious act of extraordinary fidelity or essential service. The Oak Leaf Cluster of the Army is given in lieu of a second award of the Medal of Honor, Distinguished Service Cross, Soldier's Medal, or Distinguished Flying Cross. Not more than one of these medals is issued to any one person. For each deed meriting a second award of these medals the Oak Leaf Cluster is given.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

SO VERY especially do I like the similar plan inaugurated by two or three church committees on behalf of the church members who are in the armed forces, that I want to print the composite of their letters explaining the plan, so that any others who also may like the idea, can follow it. Their letter tells me:

"We obtained a list of members of the church who were willing to write at least one letter each fortnight, to the service man or woman whose name was drawn by lot. Some of these correspondents are single; others married; some have membes of their own families in the service, but we are all considered friends within the church.

"All of the names of our service men and women are written on small strips of bristol board, kept in a special box with a hand-hole in the top. Before drawing the names are thoroughly mixed. And even when the writer may not know the person he or she draws each time, the letters are easy to write since there is always two weeks of accumulated news of general interest concerning activities in the church, in the town, etc. The result of the above program is that some of our married folk in the service get letters from single girls, and the few young women of the church in the service, hear from married men.

"After more than two years of carrying this idea out, someone now advances the opinion that it is improper for a single girl to write to a married man! The committee would like to call a meeting, fortified with your expression of opinion; and suggestions, too, if you have any to offer."

This suggestion of impropriety in a single town-news letter is ridiculous unless there are some people not following the rules—which from your letter does not seem likely.

Economical Menus for Tomorrow

By Meta Given

FEBRUARY and March are the two months for canning grapefruit. The price is within the reach of thrifty housewives who would like to store away a supply of canned grapefruit to serve the family when the fresh is scarce, poor in quality and high in price. The first requisite is heavy, juicy, fine-textured fruit. The second is careful preparation. Remove the peeling in such a way that all the white fiber or rag comes off with it. The most saving way is to blanch the grapefruit in enough boiling water to cover for two minutes, just as you blanch tomatoes for canning. Then cool and peel off the skin and rag all at the same time. Then use a sharp paring knife to separate the sections. This sectioning takes considerable time, because it requires more care to find the division of the sections. The quicker method is to peel off the grapefruit with a rather long, slender sharp knife, using a slanting, saw-like motion of the knife to obtain a shapely, juicy ball entirely free from rag.

When the grapefruit is peeled like this, the dividing membranes are easily seen and the sectioning of the peeled fruit is much quicker. If the peeling and sectioning of the grapefruit is done over a bowl to catch the drip, not a great lot is lost. Next the beautiful sections are carefully packed in clean sterile jars. Add one-fourth teaspoon salt or two tablespoons sugar to each quart.

The flavor is delicious and natural, and when salt is used there is no sign of the fruit floating. Fill to within one-half inch of the top with juice. The next procedure is to leave the jars unsealed and put them in barely simmering water (to be exact, use a thermometer and have the water heated to 165 degrees F.) and let the jars remain for 15 minutes. Then remove and seal the jars and return to the water, which has been increased to 180 degrees F., and let remain for five minutes. The water coming over the tops of the jars. Remove and cool the jars in the usual way and test the seal. This method of processing is called pasteurization and is adequate for the preservation of fruit so acid as grapefruit. Remember this is considerably below the boiling temperature.

Breakfast: Sectioned grapefruit with raisins; French toast with hot concentrated syrup from peaches.

Luncheon: Corn chowder; bacon and peanut butter sandwiches on whole wheat toast; peaches (leftover).

Dinner: Baked fish on escalloped potatoes; buttered peas and mushrooms; cabbage salad with sour cream dressing; crisp rolls; lemon custard filled cup cakes.

Flying Hospitals Bring Boys Back

Only Serious Cases Are Flown From Europe; Care Matches Ground Treatment.

By John O'Reilly

A special correspondent of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch who returned to this country recently on a hospital plane.

THE TWO SERGEANTS DEVELOPED A REGULAR ACT TO DEMONSTRATE TO OTHER WOUNDED MEN THE EFFICIENCY OF THEIR ARTIFICIAL LIMBS.

NEW YORK, March 14.

TECHNIQUE in th air evacuaevacuation of wounded American soldiers from Europe to the United States has improved so rapidly that the evacuation planes are now, in fact, flying hospitals, aboard which the patients receive as much attention as they would in a ground hospital. They get their injections and general nursing care, and on occasion blood transfusions have been given while a plane was soaring above the Atlantic.

Only the more seriously wounded are evacuated by air. The Medical Corps handles their selection and the Air Transport Command has the job of flying them home. The quick evacuation of these long-term cases makes room and releases doctors and nurses for the steady flow of new patients. It also enables certain cases to get special treatment which is more readily available in America than in Europe. Also it is an important gesture on the part of the Army to show its gratitude and continued interest in these men who have sacrificed so much.

Some of them know they are going to die, but they want to go home to do it. The fact that the Army is concerned enough to fly them home makes a deep impression on them and their families.

Selections of those who are to fly home are made at the various general hospitals where certain patients are certified as fit for transportation by air.

The cases sent home by air include facial injuries, such as jaws shot away and which are undergoing plastic surgery; nerve injuries which have resulted in paralysis; amputations in good condition; fractures of bones of the feet; the blind; bad fractures of long bones; patients with malignant diseases and lung penetrations. No mental cases are evacuated by air.

While awaiting the plane on which this correspondent made the homeward trip with the wounded, Capt. John E. Lally of Brookline, Mass., in charge of transportation, led a tour of the facilities for air evacuation. In the wards were the men awaiting their turn to fly home. It is here that they often fall into periods of moroseness, hours of wondering what life is going to be for them after their return. In this connection Capt. Lally told how two sergeants had undergone amputations, made the air trip home and finally were equipped with artificial limbs. Then they volunteered to go back and demonstrate to others awaiting the trip what they had been able to do.

They developed a regular act. Without announcement they would enter a ward, and one of them would begin to strut up and down between the beds and generally call attention to himself. The patients would wonder who this guy was who was acting so important. Then he would pick up the other sergeant, hoist him on his shoulder and carry him up and down the ward. By this time the patients would begin to say, "Who the hell does this guy think he is?"

Suddenly the sergeant would stop and say, "Listen, you guys, I was back here waiting just like you a few months ago." As he talked he would start taking off his pants to display his mechanical leg. Then he would explain how he had been fixed up and as he talked he would continue his gymnastics. Capt. Lally said it had a terrific effect on the waiting patients and was the best thing they had done to raise their spirits.

The patients are divided into plane-loads according to the severity of their wounds. Usually they are accompanied by an air evacuation nurse and a technician, but a flight surgeon is sent along with the severest cases. The nurses are all volunteers. They not only make these trans-Atlantic flights but also serve on planes evacuating wounded from the front to rear areas. There have been no instances of air evacuation nurses refusing to take an assignment. They are permitted to transfer back to the ground forces whenever they so elect.

Capt. Lally displayed the special kits which the nurses take along with them on the planes. They were compact supplies for a small hospital, containing all the usual drugs and dressings, even to plasma and whole blood units. To this regular equipment the nurse adds whatever special supplies she may need for the various cases on a particular trip.

It was a huge four-motored C-54, which had been fitted with special apparatus for this purpose. Along the sides were light metal racks, into which the litters are ranged four deep on either side of the plane, and the racks are set out from the sides so it is possible to work on the patient from either side.

The plane also was equipped with special oxygen outlets, for the wounded need oxygen at lower altitudes than it is normally given. There is an outlet for each patient, and then a longer tube which can be pulled out and moved about the plane if necessary.

The large planes are more stable in the air, and the routes home are selected with greater care in view of weather conditions, so that the trip will be as smooth as possible. Their destinations in this country also are guided by whether the hospitals at the terminals in the United States are crowded or not. Some of them land at LaGuardia Airport after flying the southern route, and others flying the northern route land at Presque Isle, Me.

Patients requiring special treatment have their flights home timed so that they get one treatment in France and the next one in a hospital here. If a soldier is undergoing plastic surgery and has a piece of skin grafted on every three or four days he has one piece put on in a hospital in France. Then he is put on the plane, makes the flight home and the next piece is applied at a hospital in the United States.

In this manner more than 17,000 wounded American soldiers have made the long trip home the shortest way. In all these crossings only one plane has been lost during the trans-Atlantic flight. It disappeared while at sea, and the mystery of its disappearance has never been solved. Occasionally a patient dies during the trip, but it must be remembered that these are the severest cases, many of whom have no hope of living very long. But within the most broken body, within what is left of a man, there is always the one strong desire — the yearning to come home.

This is the first of two articles on the transport of wounded by hospital plane. The second will appear tomorrow.

THE underlead of an ace against a slam is practically unheard-of, but even that bit of boldness can pay high dividends when the conditions are just right. Consider this case:

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	3 diamonds	Pass
3 spades	Pass	4 clubs	Pass
5 clubs	Pass	5 no-trump	Pass
6 clubs	Pass	6 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

North-South were not using any slam convention, hence North's five no-trump call could be recognized by all the players as the willingness to play the hand at no-trump. Actually, North would have been well advised to insist on that denomination for the final contract, to protect his heart holding from a lead through.

When, however, South ended up the declarer at a six spade contract, it was quite apparent to West that the best chance to win a couple of tricks was by making an immediate attack in hearts. Normally, that decision would call for the lead of the ace, but West was not satisfied with that bit of orthodoxy. On North's bidding, specifically his five no-trump call, West was morally sure that the heart king was going to appear in the dummy, and that there would be a good diamond suit. On that shrewd analysis West blandly opened a low heart!

South can scarcely be blamed for going wrong. It was almost inconceivable that West was underleading an ace against a slam —so South played dummy's jack. Finis!

Old St. Louis Fair Drew Big Crowds

torians have declared that 150,000 persons saw him at the Fair.

A (hot air) balloon ascension and parachute drop, at which "all eyes turned upward in awe and amazement," was an 1892 Big Thursday thrill. This, however, had gone on at the larger county and state fairs for several seasons. Later, the so-called races, or distance contests, of gas balloons, starting usually from St. Louis, preceded by a few years the developing of dirigible balloons and heavier-than-air flying craft.

The city's first Zoo was part of the Fair, from 1876, when a committee went to New York and bought animals there and, through an agent, from the Hagenbeck stock in Hamburg, Germany. "Duplicate animals, born in captivity or obtained from the Western states," were regularly exchanged with the New York and Philadelphia Zoos. A zebra, born here was proclaimed the first one born in the United States; but it is recorded that "the royal Bengal tiger never bred at the St. Louis Zoo," whether for lack of a companion or for what other reason was not stated. In the '90s the collection was dispersed, some of the animals being placed in cages in Forest Park.

Slaves were owned here in the Fair's early days, and gaudily dressed slaves acted as grooms, leading horses and cattle into the exhibition arena, and receiving, on behalf of their masters, the premiums awarded. The prizes at first were in gold or silver plate, later in money; this change was made after an Arkansas prize winner demanded and got a watch instead of the plate offered to him.

One of the earliest traditions of the Fair is the Big Thursday cloudburst of 1859, which made dirt roads a sea of mud, and stalled the conveyances which were to take the crowds back to the city; horse cars did not then run to the grounds. More than 5000 persons had to stay all night on the grounds. That was in the last week of September; thereafter Fair Week was changed to the first week of October "on account of it being further from the equinox, and better promise of more settled weather."

The Veiled Prophet, or his sponsors, profited by this meteorological lore, and Tuesday night of Fair Week, in 1878 and thereafter, was made the time for the Prophet's parade, dependent on good weather, and the ball, for which weather did not matter so much. In recent years, the ball was moved to Wednesday night, and Thursday was made the alternate parade night, if rain should interfere on Tuesday.

The St. Louis Exposition, in its red brick building on the present Central Library's downtown site, began in 1884 its annual 40-day fall season. Thereafter, until World's Fair days, St. Louis' Fair, Exposition and Veiled Prophet's carnival high-lighted the city's Fall Festivities, advertised throughout the Southwest and building mightly the trade of the Washington avenue wholesale district.

Exposition Music Hall, and after 1897 the attached Fourteenth street Colseum, echoed two daily concerts by famous bands—Gilmore's, Sousa's, Innes's. State political conventions met in Music Hall, and the Democratic national convention of 1904 in the Coliseum.

And so the story goes—the story of the St. Louis Fair and its kindred autumn attractions, when Washington University was downtown and the Art Museum was in Lucas place, and when cable cars rattled along Broadway and out Olive street.

Can those days, or a reasonable fac-simile, come back?

Our Mayor thinks so, and it may be worth trying.

CONDUCTOR TO DONATE HIS FEE TO SYMPHONY

Morton Gould to Contribute $1000 to Maintenance Fund —Special Concert Sunday.

Morton Gould, American composer-conductor, who will direct the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra in its final concert of the season Sunday, has announced that he will contribute his $1000 fee to the orchestra's maintenance fund.

The special concert, proceeds of which will go to the fund, will be presented at 3:30 p. m. in Kiel Auditorium Opera House.

Gould will offer an all-American program of popular music. The first half of the concert will be devoted to William Schuman's "American Festival Overture," "Evening Piece" by Roy Harris and Aaron Copland's ballet, "Billy the Kid."

The second half will feature a series of Gould arrangements and his own composition, "Latin-American Symphonette," a suite consisting of Rhumba, Tango, Guaracha and Conga. The arrangements will include six Stephen Foster songs, Duke Ellington's "In My Solitude," George Gershwin's "Summertime" and "Long Ago and Far Away" by Jerome Kern.

Gould was guest conductor at the orchestra's final concert last season.

It's New!
POST'S Raisin BRAN

Ask G.I. Joe's family what your Red Cross is doing for them . . .
and you'll be proud of the answers you get!

THE Red Cross is doing a tremendously important job in relieving the pressure of war on civilians. This pressure is especially heavy on servicemen's families. Their fears and worries and griefs deserve and get special attention from the Red Cross.

But in this war, all are affected. And the Red Cross reaches out to aid all—in many and varied ways. The scenes below show the Red Cross in action on the Home Front!

GIRL WITH A HUNDRED JOBS! Red Cross Motor Corps girls drive ambulances, military vehicles, blood donor trucks; are trained to meet all emergencies. →

↑ WHEN JOE RETURNS—WOUNDED! Red Cross Recreation and Hospital Workers brighten long, dreary hospital hours—relieve the worries that spring up in sick men's minds.

JOE JUNIORS THE COUNTRY OVER will be a healthier, happier generation because of Home Nursing courses given by the Red Cross. ↑

↑ THE NURSE SHORTAGE is being relieved in civilian hospitals everywhere by Red Cross recruited-and-trained Nurse's Aides. The Red Cross also trains Dietitian's Aides.

↑ DOMESTIC DISASTERS INCREASE IN WARTIME! During the past fiscal year, there were 257 disasters in the United States—more than ever recorded for any single year. And the Red Cross was on the scene for all of them! Victims were fed, clothed and sheltered by the Red Cross! The Red Cross also aided their rehabilitation.

GIVE NOW! SPEED UP!

Will the Red Cross continue to serve on the Home Front? The answer lies with you—with America! For the Red Cross is your Red Cross. It is supported entirely by your voluntary contributions. You are asked to contribute just once a year. The time for giving to the Red Cross in 1945—is now!

Give now and give more! For in 1945 more and more veterans will be brought home. They and their families will have more and more need for Red Cross! Give — that the Red Cross may continue to give to them!

KEEP YOUR RED CROSS AT THEIR SIDE, TOO!

Solution Of Yesterday's Puzzle

New Face Powder.

Out in Hollywood someone thought up the idea that an ideal shade of face powder could be used on any skin tone or over any tinted foundation lotion or cream. It is supposed to give an overglow to your skin and to blend with your current coloring or the artificial tint you select to use. Women having difficulty finding the right shade of face powder might try this.

MALLINCKRODT FIRM CLEARED OF UNFAIR PRACTICE CHARGE

A National Labor Relations Board trial examiner's report said today that charges of unfair labor practices against the Mallinckrodt Chemical Works, 3600 North Second street, were unfounded and should be dismissed.

Trial Examiner R. N. Denham said he found upon study of the testimony given at hearings here last year that three employes, Miss Jewel Price, Miss Gladys Poe and Miss Marguerite Held, were discharged because of their inability to work harmoniously with other employes.

It had been charged that they were dismissed because of activity in behalf of the AFL.
